BETWEEN TIME & SPACE

Change occurs with all new beginnings. Last year I became yearbook adviser after Mr. Fred Brower retired. The newness and significance of this position deemed that I and my staff create a standout book of new ideas, but new ideas do not emerge without growing pains. Unfortunately, the student body reacted to that change by rejecting a critical aspect of the book-the cover. "Too colorful," you whined, "Too bold! Girlie!" "It was thematic," we retorted. We called it "New Horizons." An artist's rendention of a burnished-orange sunrise appeared on the front cover of the 1999 yearbook while on each section divider we portrayed the sun traveling through its daily cycle from sunrise to sunset. We even won an award from Jostens, our yearbook company, for the quality of our design.

We created the yearbook, cover and theme, with pride, nurturing it along until we delivered it to you, the student body. We understand that change can be hard to accept, but you have to understand that change will continue to occur as we grow, as the program develops, and as the future embraces us all.

This year we awaited that magical millennium future as we reflected on Washington's magnificent history which began in 1891. We proudly present to you this year's theme which reflects on Washington's place between the past and the future. We call it "BETWEEN TIME AND SPACE." We hope you enjoy this year's yearbook as much as we have enjoyed producing it. Thank you for allowing us that little space of creativity between September and May in which all of our ideas unfolded.

Mrs. Howerton
Yearbook Adviser

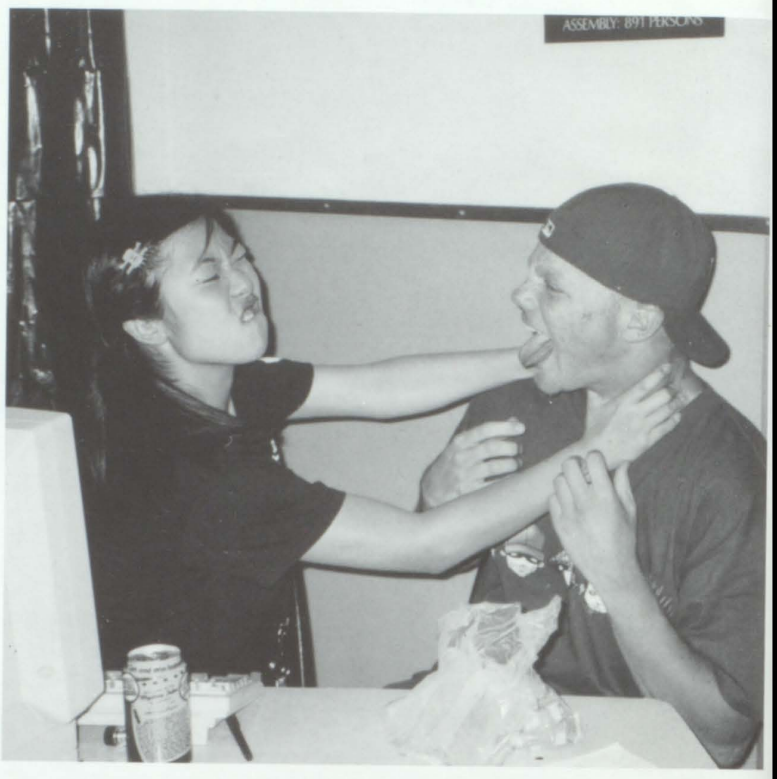
ALL OVER AGAIN

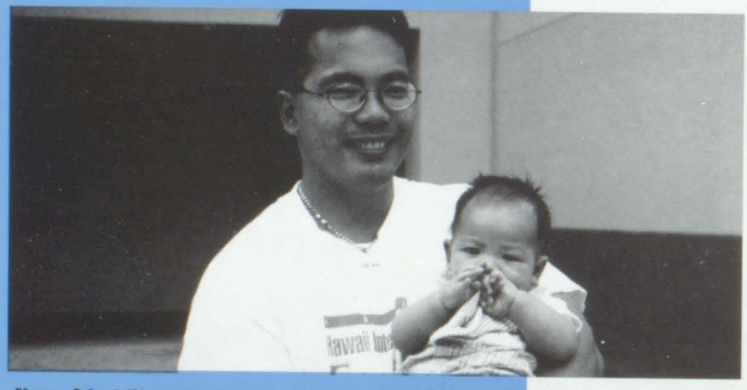
Orientation: A Maze of Fun

Say goodbye to summer, say hello to Washington! It was that time again to get ready for school. Students paid for yearbooks, ASB stickers and picked up ID's and schedules. Orientation was a time of anticipation and surprises. Students got to see old and new faces while friends compared schedules. It would be the last orientation, not only for the millennium, but also for the seniors. All in all, orientation was a success with over 75% attendance because students were excited to get back to school.

Right: With thousands of students going through the Maze, orientation was a little stressful for some. Senior Jacki Lee took out her frustration on fellow senior Jeff Fisher. "I can't take it anymore Jeff, too many kids!" "Jacki, quit strangling me, I can't breathe!"

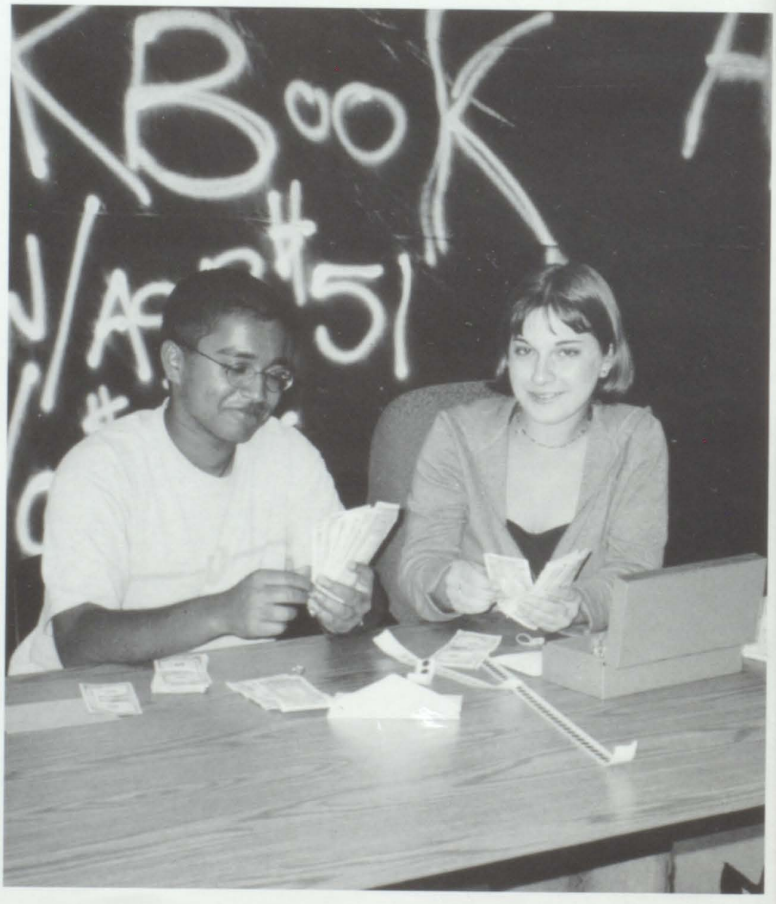


Right: It was the last orientation for seniors at Washington. Seniors Lara Kellogg and Heidi Gentry were excited to receive their last schedules of their high school career. Fellow senior, Trevor "the baller" Debenning, had a great time seeing old faces after a stimulating summer.



Above: Orientation was not only a time for students, but teachers as well. Mr. Collo brought his son Samuel who seemed to be a bit camera shy.

Above: Incoming freshmen made up the largest attendance at orientation with over 600 students. Parents were encouragd to accompany their freshmen kids as well. Here, senior Ambika Sopory accompanied her freshmen cousin Suhail Durani to show him the ropes.

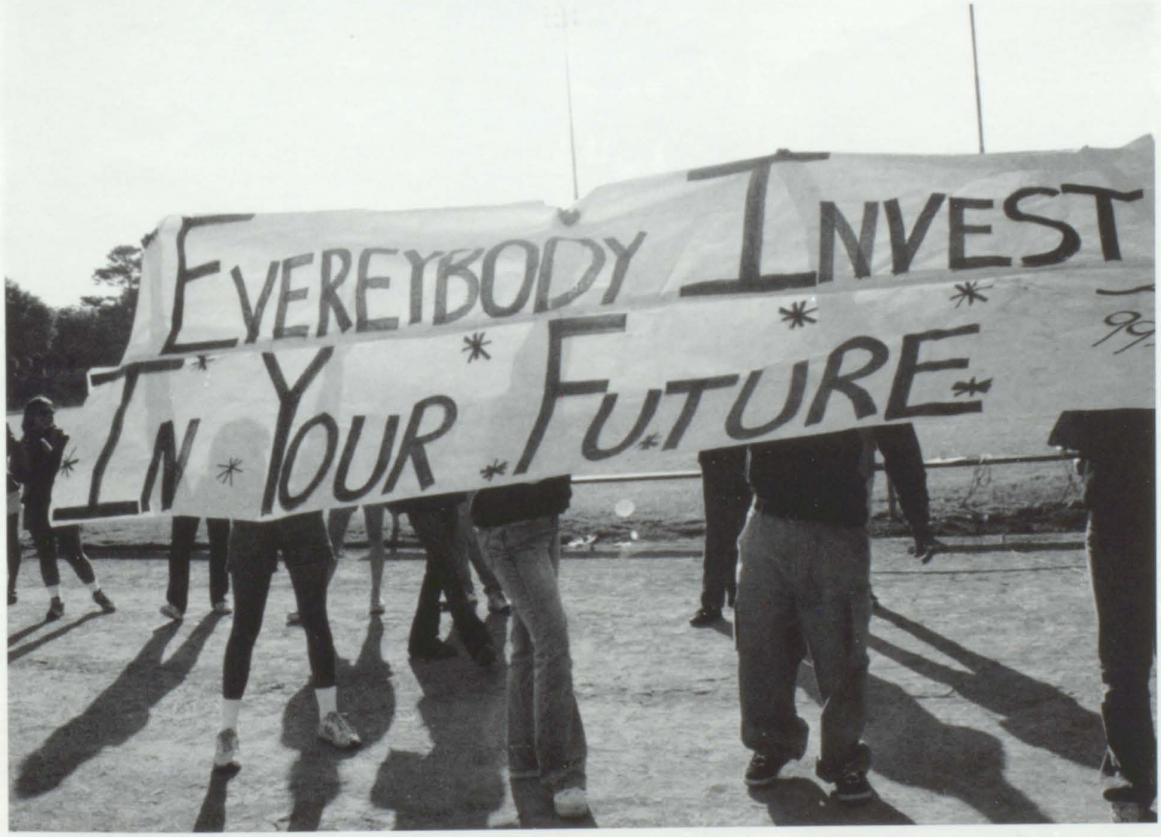


Above: Students purchased yearbooks and ASB stickers at orientation. They may not have known what they were getting themselves into when they forked over their money to seniors Chery George and Jessica Moore. "I'm gonna be rich," said Chery.

Washington High poured into Tak Fudenna stadium cramming the stands by grade level. ASB welcomed everyone to the start of a new school year and the end of the millennium. ASB also revealed their motto for the millennium: "Everybody Invest In Your Future." Class spirit points were awarded for playing "Say What Karaoke" and Coach Ingram gave us his traditional pep talk. New staff members were introduced along with our new principal, Mrs. Duran. Mrs.Duran made a smash entrance with her "construction crew" as they entered the field on a skiploader. The rally started off the year with a bang and united Washington as one.

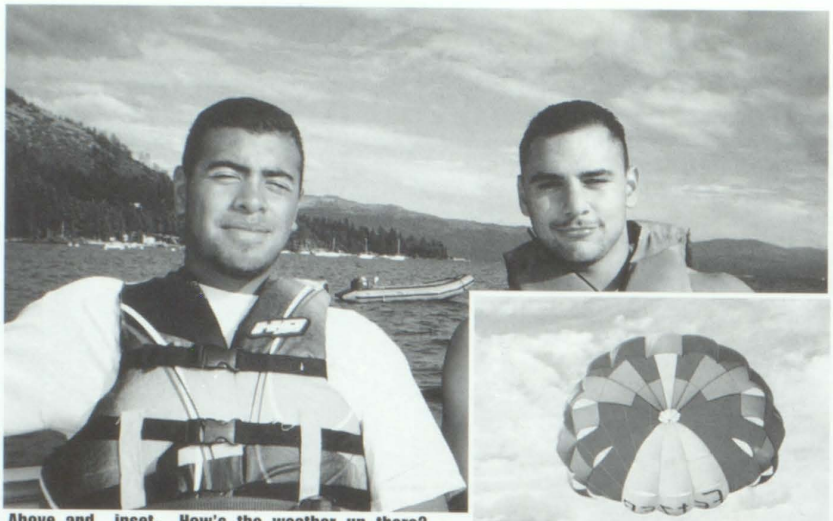
Top left: Seniors showed the most spirit at the rally. All the seniors stood for their class to earn spirit points. Senior Brandon "Stewart" Edwards led the way with his gesture of "we're number one!"

Below: New staff members were introduced at the rally. This included our new principal Mrs. Duran and her "construction crew" who arrived in style. "Can't this thing move any faster?" exclaimed Mrs. Duran.



Above: One student from each class participated in "Say What Karaoke" to earn spirit points. Junior Jared Snelson placed second by getting jiggy wit' it to Britney Spears' "Baby One More Time."

Left: ASB was excited to reveal their new motto for the millennium. It seemed like somebody was a little tired when they made the sign.



Above and inset: How's the weather up there? Anthony Velarde (WHS '99) and Johnny Parra thought it was fine so they decided to go parasailing to cool off in Lake Tahoe during Hot August Nights. They sure knew how to travel in style, but maybe next year they'll be able to afford a car.

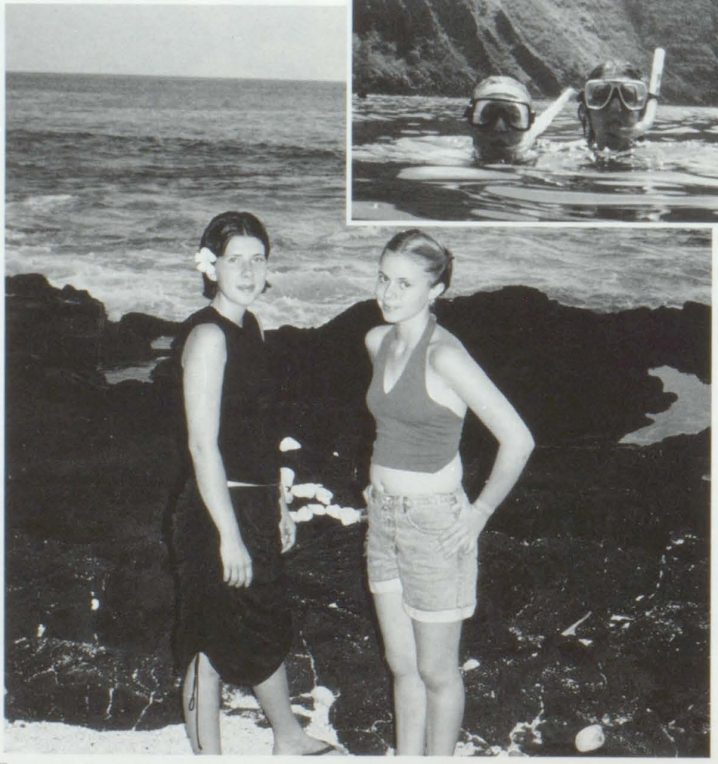
Above: Open calls for all inner-tubing models were held at Shaver Lake, California over the summer. Well, they weren't really, but Erica Flora and Allison Rawlings would have been leaving other contestants in their wake with their creative riding style.

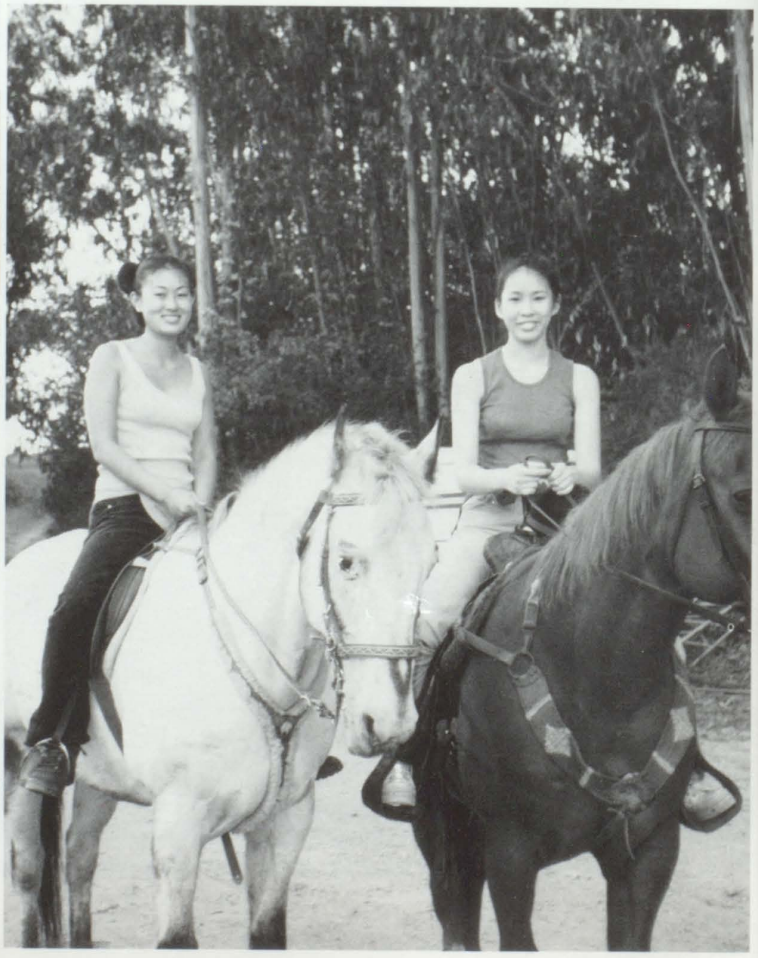
Left: It was the first day of summer! Matt Jones, Jeff Beck, David Jester, David Steffeck, Keith Scott, and Nelson Amaral celebrated by going to the boardwalk to bare their chests and pick up on chicks. Whether or not they were successful was another story.

You've got three months of free time to enjoy yourself. What will you do? There are trips to the beach or to other countries. Washington's students really know how to party, and with summers getting shorter as the school district pushes for year-round school, they are going to have to get more creative about relaxing in less amounts of time." In the summer of the millennium, what will you do?

Below: I wanna be a cowboy, baby! Riding at night 'cause I sleep all day! Kimmi Lowe and Deanna Jew took horses Cowboy and Joker for a ride in Watsonville. These seniors sure knew how to saddle up.

Below and inset: Sisters Patrice Ehrlich-Speed and Erin Ehrlich-Speed traded their Husky spirit for the spirit of Aloha when they went to Kona, Hawaii. Their tough schedule included hanging on the beach and snorkeling. After all that, who wouldn't want to come back to school?





Left: Luck be a lady tonight! Vernetra Young, Jackie Boot, Sarah Green, Jenni McClain, Michele Celino, Lauren Ogata, Cassandra Sisco, Sara Bohanan, Sofia Miller, Marissa Vigil, and Aadika Singh tried their hand at the girls' team basketball camp in Reno, Nevada. When they were done scoring points on the court, they got to head downtown to check out the night life.

Below: If you can't be famous, the next best thing is to hang out with someone who is. Jeff Fisher did just that with the guitarist of Lit. After scoring backstage passes to their concert, he got to brush up on his bowling skills with them at a bowling alley in San Leandro.

Left: Look!! In the tree... it's a monkey! It's a sloth! No, it was Matt Washington, Nick Field, Nathan Baker, and Kevin Dowd just hanging around on the ropes course at the Woodleaf camp. They went there over the summer and had a swinging good time.

DOG DAYS OF SUMMER

Huskies Traded Their Books and Backpacks for Sand and Sun

Above: After a long year of El Niño, we finally had a warm summer. Who can resist taking advantage of California sunshine? Jessie Winsted, Aaron Higgins, Zach Chin, Josh Wize, Myles Madlock, Ryan Lynch, Will Uhlig, Paul Severson, Roger Mihalko,Sarra Reid, Erin Hodson, Corinne Vairora, and Valerie Jonutz took the fun outdoors in Roger's swimming pool.

Above: This isn't Micro Machines, this is Hot Wheels, baby! Reno was the place to be this summer, and Kelly King, Yvonne Lerand, and Wendy Weber weren't about to be left out. They headed to Nevada to check out Hot August nights. With the classic car behind them they made their own sizzling statement.

Dance the

After a messy dinner at Boss Hogs, Jenniffer Rodriguez, Christina Richardson, and Liz Civiletti practiced good hygiene by licking their fingers clean.

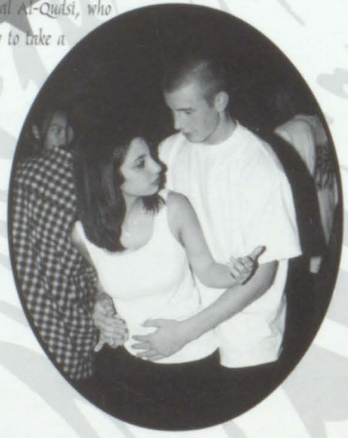
Kevin Dowd, Sean Butterfield, and Joey Vaughn--"The Backstreet Boys"--wowed the Winterball crowd with their sick dancing moves.

Eddie Culin and Cassidy Raby looked adorable in their matching Old Navy fits.

"Who needs dates?" asked John Macciola, Kyle Emmitt, Justin Raber, and Brandon Edwards? "We look good all by ourselves."

David Jester and Melissa Horn and Laura and Matt Jones spent their time before the dance coordinating their matching outfits.

Kyle Frazier held desperately to his date Dalal Al-Qudsi, who seemed ready to take a water break.

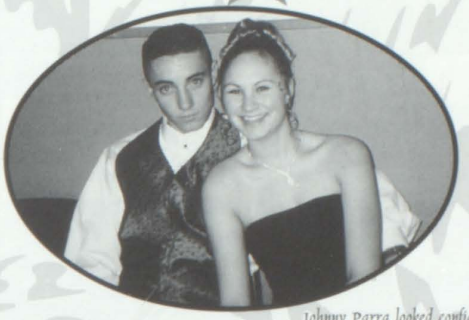


Rebecca and Nelson Amaral held each other tight at Winterball this year.

This group of friends had a blast at this year's Sadie's dance.

Nirmal Bassi and her boyfriend Mont danced together at Winterball. Didn't they look great together? He obviously made her happy.

Night Away



Jacob Strong and his girlfriend Melissa Irving found a quiet corner by themselves to get away from the crowd at Winterball.

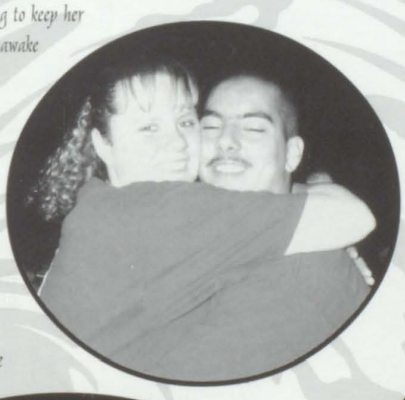
Richard Adams and Nick Field showed how handsome they could look in tuxes and smiles.

Johnny Parra looked confident with these two pretty girls, Stephanie Brown and Kristin Tuers under his arms.

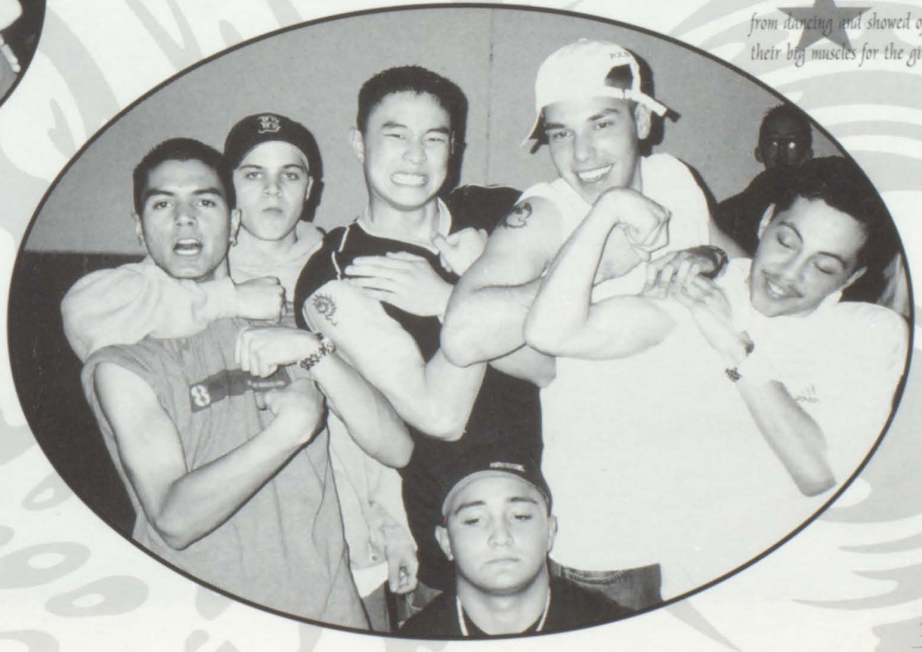
Kellen Mitchell, Javona Harrington, Ricky Rodriguez, and Cory Audiat demonstrated what a fashion statement visors could be.

Rachel Valentine and Jon Macciola danced the night away at the Sadie's dance.

"C'mon, you know we're tight, said Jennifer Lee and Tyson Rollins."



Cassandra Sisco was trying to keep her boyfriend Ryan Hoskinson awake during a slow dance.



All these dudes took a break from dancing and showed off their big muscles for the girls.

WE BE VOGUEING!

HUSKIES STRUTTIN' THEIR STUFF!

1. Miles Madlock and Richard Watson weren't afraid to strut their stunning good looks before going to class.

2. This hot couple was dressed to kill. Here, Jeff Fisher swept Kimmi Lowe off her feet with his shagadelic attire.

3. Do you see a future in career modeling for these two juniors? Rebekah Sabol and Meagan Kresin struck a pose with their casual yet stylin' apparel.

4. Fashion Queen Valerie Miller "gets jiggy" with her clothes. Here's lookin' at you kid.

5. Wow, Andrew Weaver looking GQ?? Too bad you won't see him dressed like this again. It's amazing what people will do just to get in the year book.

6. Jacki Lee and Marc Chiesa paid big bucks to look this good. Kids, don't try this at home.

7. Arrrggh!!! Better not mess with these Cargo shorts or Joeluel Pascual will hunt you down!

8. Everyone likes girls that wear Abercrombie and Fitch. Natasha Guerguy, Danielle Macedo, and Tina Figuera were sporting their summer gear while the warm weather lasted.

Left: Senior Chery George revealed his feeling about the overcrowding. "I don't like it. There's hardly any space to walk when going to class. They should have finished it during the summer."

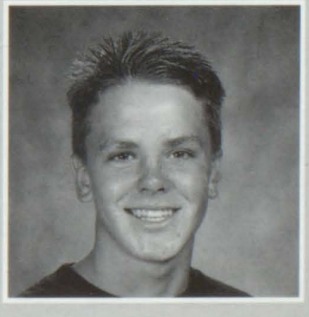
Right: Junior Mike Tsai commented on the overcrowding problem. " I think it's completely stupid. Why did they have to start during the school year? There's just so many people! I have to push and shove just to get to class!"

CLAUSTROPHOBIA SETTING IN

This year, construction for the new Ampitheater began in mid-October. Our once peaceful school had become much like a noisy highway, where trucks and construction workers dominated. However, it was not just the construction that had caused problems. This year, Washington had received four hundred new students due to the closing of Kennedy. With this many new students, and so little space, the halls had become overly crowded. The school administrators had tried to compensate for this inconvenience by extending the passing period by two minutes. However, some people still had trouble getting to class on time. Students used to be able to walk through the big dirt area in front of the Eggers building, although dust storms of significant size had been spotted from time to time in that area. With the construction, the whole area had been sealed off. What's worse, was that it hadn't gotten any better because the rising Ampitheater would be taking up the entire place as well. So the question was, were we to shove and push our way through our high school career?

Left: Sophomore Emma Lin talked about the problem. " It's very disturbing. Everyone walks so slow. I've had to push and shove just to get by the slow people, but they never end, everyone's slow! It's great that we'll have a new Ampitheater but it's just too crowded!"

Right: Freshman Doug Fisher said, "I don't like it at all. I've been late three times already because of the crowded hallways. I had to find a whole new route just to avoid the traffic and get to class ontime."



The Legacy Continues...

Washington students were excited when they found out that Martin Luther King III would be coming to our school to give a motivational speech about patience and tolerance. He spoke emotionally of how he dealt with the mishaps that occurred in his life. Most students found his words very captivating and meaningful.

The main reason Mr. King visited our school was to present scholarships to three Washington students: Natalia Headley, Nanyamka Scott, and Lamin Williams. Along with meeting Mr. King, these students received a $5,000 scholarship, a laptop computer, and gift certificates to shop at the Gap.

Washington High School was pleased to welcome the honorable and worldly Mr. King to our school.

The three scholarship winners waited patiently for the assembly to begin so they could have the chance to go up on stage and shake Mr. King's hand. They were from left to right: Lamin Williams, Natalia Headley and Nanyamka Scott.

Top: Mr. King was flustered as he tried to peek through the many people around him to have his picture taken. This large crowd of people from left to right were: Robert Wasserman, Sharon Jones, Lamin Williams, Gus Morrison, Jenni McLain, Mr. King, Natalia Headley, Nanyamka Scott, and Anna Muh.

Bottom first: Natalia Headley took a quick breather before Mr. King presented her with the award. Second: Lamin Williams couldn't wait for it to be his turn to shake Mr. King's hand. Third: Everyone could see how happy Nanyamka Scott was to be able to stand next to Mr. King.

1. Natalia was a little shy as she smiled for the camera next to Mr. King and her mom, Mrs. Headley.
2. These Huskies were proud to take a picture next to Mr. King. They were from left to right: Markisha Brunious, Makayla Davis, & Desiree Cleveland.

Washington students couldn't help but ask to have their picture taken with Mr. King. These seniors were Keith Scott, Maresa Decena, and David Blood. 3

Mr. Mince did a great job of singing the "Star Spangled Banner" to begin the ceremony. 6 got talent ?

Washingtonians showed off their incredible skills at the Variety Show.

The Variety Show proved that Washington High School was filled with talented and gifted young students. They sang, did improvs, danced gracefully. Overall, the show was competitive and yet a lot of fun! Performers were enthusiastic in showing what they were made of. There was a fashion jam with students dressing up in creative and out of sight outfits, including their own original styles. Each performer whipped up the crowd into a frenzy, and most importantly, they enjoyed performing on stage, which showed their most unique talent -- courage. Hollywood stardom loomed in the futures of these gifted performers. So don't be surprised when you see them at the Grammy Awards or at the Oscars.

1 Joe Freitas, the host of the Variety Show, showed us that he had more skills than Alex Trebek or Regis Philbin.

Ryan Hammond did the "Comic View" which filled our hearts with laughter. 2

3 You oughta have known her. Kelly King inspired all of the audience with her sensational monologue.

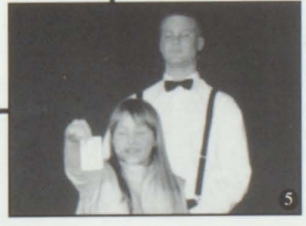
Julia Karpinski's tap dancing talent convinced everyone that learning it takes great skill. 4

5 Jeff Fisher and an audience member were proud to be part of the talent show as assistants to the magician.

Jamie Bellini and Eddie Culin in "Two For the Seasaw" demonstrated a dynamic peformance which showed their gift for acting. 6

7 Amber East performed an emotional monologue called "Beauty For Sale."

What good was a variety show without Matt Close and Myles Madlock performing "Under the Sea" from the Little Mermaid. They were hilarious and great. 8



9 A melodious duet was sung by Theresa Zaragoza with Elvin Reyes to the song, "From the Moment."
10 Washingtonians were lucky to have their version of a boy band with Chad Balanza, Aaron Nuss, Eddie Culin and Sean Maganito. 11 Got Skill? Annette Ramirez sure did when she performed "Mix Control."
12 Jonathan Libby gave the speech which showed that he was a very articulate and emotional speaker.
13 Washingtonians didn't need Mariah Carey or Whitney Houston with Cynthia Henderson's beautiful singing voice around. 14 "Abracadabra!" shouted Jackie Lee while the crowd stared in amazement at her magic tricks.

FLASHING BACK

That was then...

Top right: Mia Scafani and Brian Mojzes graduated from preschool in the spring of '86, and were pulled aside for a mini- photo shoot.

Middle right: Long days packed full of glue eating contests and finger painting weren't enough to calm these two (Trevor DeBenning and Nick Noard) down. They still found enough energy to demonstrate their kung-fu styles.

Bottom center right: Rheanna Keiper and Bianca Pardini have spent many a summer day sitting pool side, wrapped in the comfort of a warm fuzzy towel.

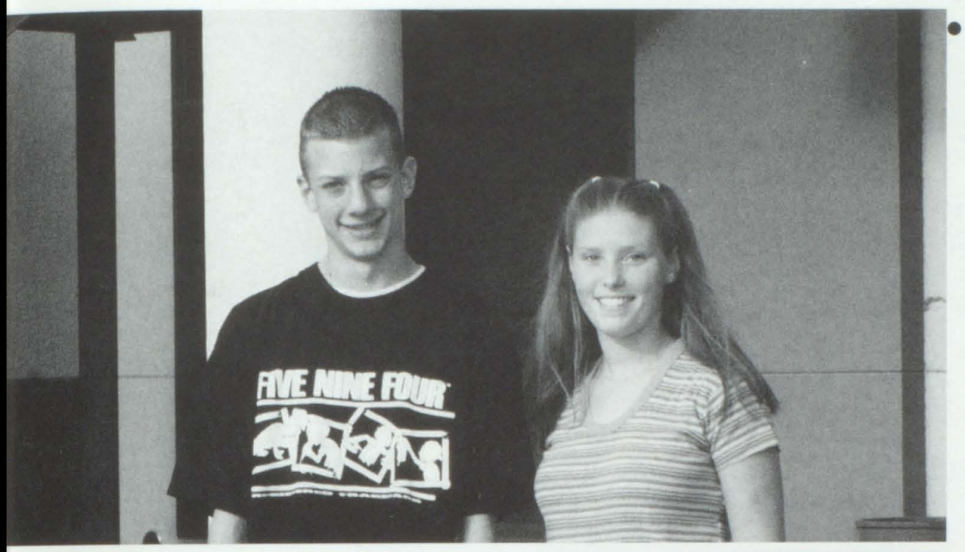
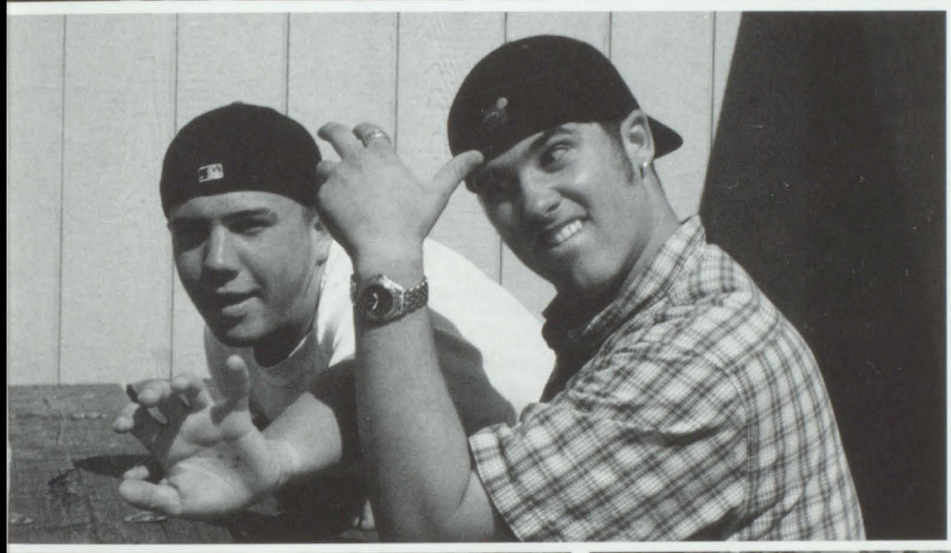
It seems like only yesterday that you were catching lizards, ripping the heads off of your neighbor's Barbie dolls, having crayon-eating contests, and hosting a neighborhood tea party on your mother's finest china. But while you were reminiscing about those oh-so precious days of your rapidly dwindling childhood, the rest of us were busy digging out pictures of those unforgettable times. Yearbook is proud to present to you some of those little memories captured on film.

...this is now



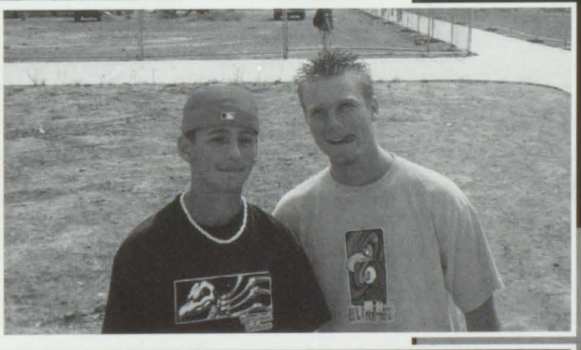
Top left: Mia and Brian were soon to experience deja vu as they planned to graduate with the rest of the class of 2000.

Middle left: You'd think that between then and now these two would've grown up a little. Student reports concluded otherwise.



Bottom center right: Friendships don't always last as long as Mike and Jeff's has. They lasted from highchairs all the way through to highschool.

Bottom center left: Some things just never change. Rheanna and Bianca are still good friends and they still look to their towels as poolside conveniences. Their smiles endured the years,too.



Bottom left: Some things remain the same. Where are those gorgeous smiles? These three still felt the need to look intimidating in photos - Guys! This isn't basketball anymore ... Relax!!!

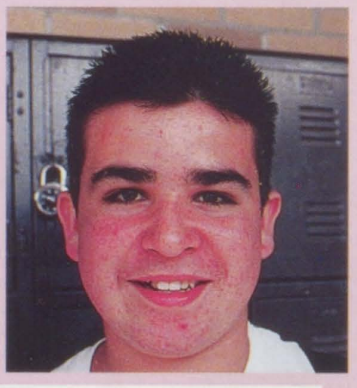
Bottom right: These four still kept in touch. Good thing, too. Who else would have stuck around to keep these boys from making serious fashion boo-boos? Good job girls!

A Fresh New Spirit

Spirit Week Was an Exciting New Time For The Class of 2003

Right: Jon Hua and Justin Velez were all geared up and ready to go to Hawaii just in time for their Freshman class skit. "Wanna come to paradise?" they asked, "C'mon, girls, we've got lots of spirit!"

Below: The Freshman skit was exceptionally well done with great sound and dancing. Among the Back Street Boys rendition and others, they incorporated authentic hula dancing. All of the Freshman boys were excited at their first glance of high school girls wearing short sarongs.



What did you think about your first Spirit Week at Washington High?

"We dressed up in regular clothes so I felt out of place."
-Emily Yamamoto

"I didn't go. I'm sure no one else from here did either. I'm sure it would've been fun."
--Zack Sutherland

"I heard it was good. The skits were good. The dress up days were cool except for the old people day."
-Afroza Faruque

"I thought it was cool because you all join and like have fun. You can yell and we beat the Sophomores, just to let everyone know that."
-Justin Velez

Left: The WHS staff looked older and older every year. It must have been the stress of spirit week, but the Freshman advisors, Granny (Ms.) Due and Granny (Ms.) Maniscalco came down with a 24-hour case of senior citizenship. Luckily, they fully recovered in time for the staff skit on Friday.

Below: Shake your groove thang! The Class of '03 boogied down during their skit. They were so entertaining that they got a leg up on the Sophomores and beat them in the spirit competition.

Left: Hard work and a whole lot of fun made for a great Freshman skit. Despite the lack of millennium costumes and Kriss-Kross wannabes all week, they came together and put on a great show.

Crazy costumes. Yelling in the halls. Lunchtime rallies. These were all things that came to mind when someone mentioned Spirit Week. To a Freshman, though, it was something you heard about from older siblings and friends and it hit you before you knew what had happened. Ninth graders entered school trying to prove themselves. The attitude carried by Freshmen was that of: if it sounded dorky, it probably was and you were better off not doing it. The end result was a scarcity of 2003 classmen in costume during Spirit Week this year. Even with the fun dress-up days- Backwards Day, Millennium Day, Hawaiian Day, and Old Folks Day- many chose to wear everyday attire and escape what many felt would have been unwanted ridicule from upperclassmen. The Freshmen that knew better, though, made a colorful addition to our student body and pulled off a superb skit with a Hawaiian theme. If this year's Homecoming was less than paradise for the class of '03, they certainly have the spirit to make it happen as Sophomores.

CLASS OF 2003

ONe Step HIghER...

Reaching for the Upper Class

Far right: Wearing orange shirts with shorts, these girls had fun dancing. They were Heather Krochak, Cari Ham, Amanda Taylor, and Rachel Valentine.

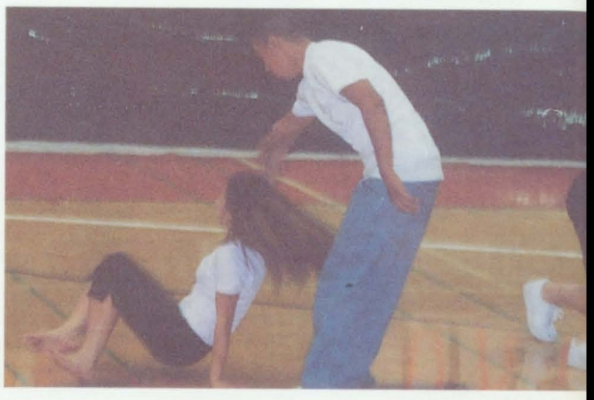
Far right: Kelly Yanamura sure got swept off her feet by the "ever so gentlemanly" Matt Rossi.

Right: Nick Field, as Tom Green, wowed the audience with his funny and witty nature in the sophomore skit. Joining him were Hank and Hanna.



Pajama Day

Cowboy Day

SuperHero Day

Fellow sophomores were excited during Spirit week as they huddled in the girl's locker room for a quick pic. Wearing their comfy P.J.'s, from left to right, were Marissa Vigil, Keri Soto, Cari Ham, and Amanda Duke.

"Don't you just love my hair!" exclaimed Masoud Hamsafar, as he smiled away with hi funky rocker look.

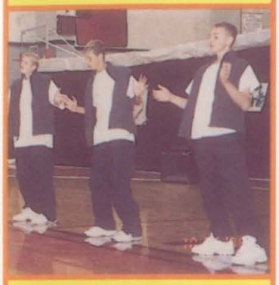
These sophomores had disco fever as they blasted to the past. This was only one of the many commercials the sophomores presented in their skit during Spirit Week.

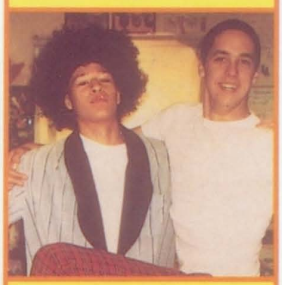
SoPHomoREs GeTTin' rEadY...

class of 2002

Having had the experience of last year's Spirit Week, the Sophomores were a little more prepared this year. They started off their week with Pajama Day. They showed off their comfortable look with cute stuffed animals. On Tuesday, The P.J.'s were gone and replaced with cowboy hats and boots. Yup, Cowboy Day was on Tuesday along with the sophomore skit. The skit was the Tom Green Show. To bring a little more jam to the skit, the sophomores had all kinds of commercials. Wednesday rolled by and along with it came Super Hero Day. Sophomores were all types of super heroes, the most unique being "Super Swimas." Once Thursday came, the sophomores couldn't wait to strut that Punk Rocker look. Class of 2001 had a fun-filled week and on Friday sported all their orange and black. Way to go Sophomores!!!

David O' Hara smiled as he showed us how his hair looked every morning. Nick Field didn't seem to mind as he grandly strutted his red and white P.J.'s during Spirit Week.





"All you people, can't you see, can't you see!" How could the Washington girls miss these five cute faces with the cool dance moves? They are from left: Richard Adams, Kevin Dowd, Sean Butterfield, Joey Vaun, and Sean Oliphant.

Metallica fans Keri Soto and Cari Ham showed off their rocker shirts with matching metal chokers. "Hmm," they said, "We kind of like this look."

To CheeR!!!

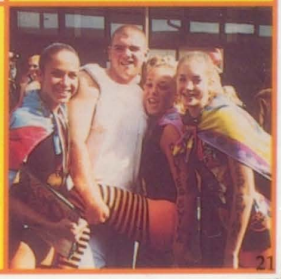
Lisa Visconti flaunted her artistic flair, as she became "Ms. Husky to the rescue!"



MIGHTY MIGHTY JUNIORS

Below: Juniors Lauren Inglish and Felicia Lilienthal glowed with excitement on Mafia Day. With the leather jacket and flashy boa, these girls showed what it took to be a "Mighty Mighty Junior."

80's DAY

TOGA DAY

50's DAY

Above: Juniors Amanda Ortman and Allison Rawlings decided to dress up as twins on Fifties Day. They looked so adorable as they gave their classic fifties pose.

MAFIA DAY

Below: Junior goblins John Lough and Tyson Rollins strutted their stuff for the skit. John Lough said, "I see a quarter," while the cast looked on behind the set.

Left: The Junior skit was filled with great dances including this Fifties swing. Junior Ashley Salaz thought to herself, "I look good as a blonde."

Above: Juniors Christina Santos and Erica Flora not only sported their toga outfits but even sang a song. "I'm a little teapot, short and stout, here is my handle, here is my spout."

It couldn't have been a better Spirit Week for the Juniors who rallied to defeat the Star-Studded Seniors. An extremely successful Spirit Week for Washington, the class of '01 led the way, capturing last honors for the millennium. The Juniors' skit, "Back to the Future," was a huge success filled with great performances and dances. In the end, the Juniors stole the show. To celebrate their sweet victory, the Junior class hosted a barbecue for themselves to reward everyone for their hard work.

Left: Instead of going "Back to the Future," Junior Jared Snelson (Doc), hoped to go into the future. "I'm ready to graduate, but I can't leave Marty," he said.

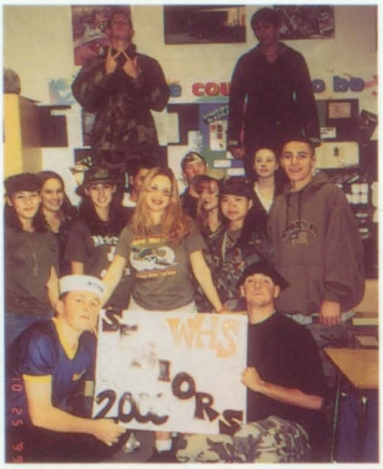
Class of...2001

STAR STUDDED SENIORS

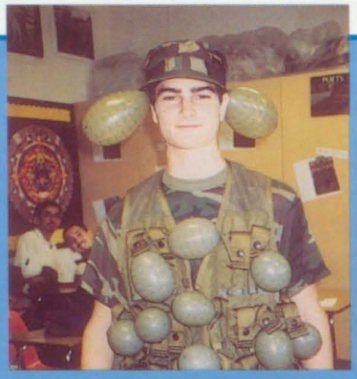
Who let them Seniors out?

Right: Just getting back from Calculus 7, Christina Richardson, Liz Nasedkin, Jennifer Rodriguez, Nelson Amaral, Jeremiah Pricer, Samantha Lawrence, and Brandon Edwards (in front) showed that it was cool to be a nerd . . . for a day. These Seniors got decked out in their nerd attire in hopes of winning Spirit Week.

Below: In what appeared to be a remake of an episode of M.A.S.H., these Seniors looked like they were ready to go to war and fight for school spirit. Of all the dress up days, Army Day proved to be the most popular to dress up and show school spirit.



2000



ARMY DAY

Chris Schwan was a ticking time bomb waiting to go off. Chris demonstrated his creative ability to get attention and be "the best he could be" at the same time.

NERD DAY

Kristin Tuers, Natalia Headly and Natalie Oboodiyat showed their Senior spirit during Nerd day. When these girls weren't catching up on creating new test vectors for databases, they relaxed at the shrine of their idol, Steve Urkel.

70's DAY

With that suave 70's look, Liz Civiletti was hoisted into the air by two of her followers, Brandon Edwards and Matt Jones. These three looked like a late nineties' version of the early seventies T.V. show, "The Mod Squad."

CELEBRITY DAY

Cleopatra (Monica Chavez), Christina Aguilera (Sarra Reid), and Britney Spears (Samantha Lawrence) showed us a few of their moves. Throughout the day these three stunned the crowds not only with good looks but their stellar dance moves.

Left: Forget "Night Fever," those "Love Machines" were going to "Boogie Oogie Oogie" through the halls, "Shadow Dancing" their ways into ladies' hearts and all the way through 70's Day. L-R: T. DeBenning, C. Balanza, C. Corcoran, and J. Strong.

Below: These Seniors put their chess games on hold and showed us that nerds had friends too, or should we call them check*mates*. Let the games continue.

Above: In this image of Sarra Reid and Trevor DeBenning, you would think that they were headed off to Boot Camp. In reality these two were going to the Abercrombie & Fitch photo shoot.

Below: Pimp daddy Reag Wood showed off his girls (Ashley Sanchez, Monica Chavez, Erin Jones, Dana Duge, and Tonya Glanz) to the drooling underclassmen. Pimpin' ain't easy but with beautiful girls like this, it sure is a bit easier.

Above: Washington nerds took revenge on the underclassmen during Spirit Week when the Seniors reigned supreme. Many of the clothing styles took us back to a time when high school students today wouldn't be caught dead wearing those duds except during Spirit Week. Pictured clockwise Alex Huang, Deanna Jew, Radha Sharma, Kimmi Lowe, Samir Pathak, Nanyamka Scott, Eunji Cho. In front: Henry Tsai.

It would seem that every year the seniors dominated Spirit Week by dressing up and showing their Senior pride. The Class of 2000 was put to the test to try and prove that they were the best. With three years of practice and preparation for this one day, the Class of 2000 tried to come out on top for the first time ever in Spirit Week. In the end, through all of the hard work and staying up late to finish posters and paintings, the Seniors never got their justified first place. The response to this decision was astounding! Seniors were disappointed in the second place finish and Juniors were surprised that they took home the trophy. To most of the school, this was a terrible mistake. Seniors' emotions were calmed, however, when Juniors openly admitted that the Seniors truly deserved to win.

HOMECOMING MASSACRE

Who let them dogs out?!? Well, someone certainly did because the Huskies completely and utterly demolished the Eagles. The team, carried by Todd Beck and Nelson Amaral, killed American by twenty-eight points. Final score was 41-13. With the announcement of the Homecoming Queen and the winner of Spirit Week, the night just got better and better. Nanyamka Scott won the honor of being this year's Homecoming Queen and the juniors won Spirit Week. Summing that up, it was a night to remember.

Above: Our team destroyed American, ending with a score of 41-13. American was sent home with all their feathers plucked

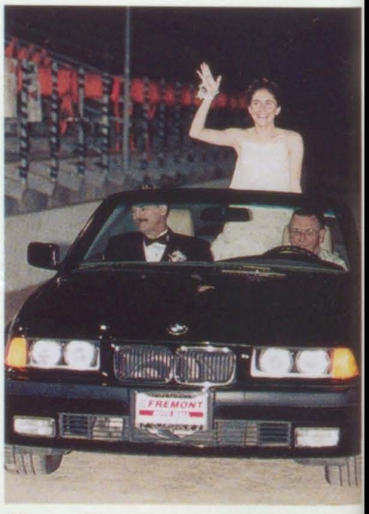
Above: Our new Mascot looked mean and tough against American. The Eagles learned not to mess with us.

Above: Ryan Wittmer passed the football for another easy touchdown. You gotta' love it!

Above: Last year's Homecoming Queen, Diana Cangco, made her way onto the stage. She couldn't wait to receive the new queen.

Above: The nominees and their fathers, Ambika Sopory, Jenni McLain, Chrissy Lemmon, Nanyamka Scott, and Jessica Moore, waited anxiously, each hoping that it was them who won the honor of being this year's Homecoming Queen.



Above: The BMW that Chrissy Lemmon was riding in was loaned to us by Claridge Auto.

You Can Do it!

PUT YOUR BACK INTO IT!

Below: Mini-me (Kevin Neault) tried to get freaky with Ashley Sanchez. It looked like they were having a blast, but in reality, Kevin had to bribe Ashley to dance with him.

Below: Here, the D.J. slowed it down a bit and gave everyone a chance to relax and dance with that special someone.

Below: These nominees were friends on and off the dance floor. Chad Balanza, Trevor DeBenning, Tony Cimino, Marc Chiesa, and Jeff Fisher showed off their friendship for the cameras. They couldn't wait for the judges to reveal who won the Mr. Husky title.

Below: Peter McClure and Meagan Bounty danced the night away in each other's arms.

Below: Trevor DeBenning couldn't believe he won. Chad Balanza, his bud, gave him a fat hug, congratulating him.

The homecoming dance has always been the most anticipated dance all year. This year's dance was nothing short of a blast. The announcement of Mr. Husky took place at the dance and the the tension was thick. Who would be the next Mr. Husky? All the nominees were well qualified to fill the role, but unfortunately, only one person could be crowned. As the dance went on through the night, people got their groove on and when the dance ended, the only thing that was on peoples' minds was killing American at the homecoming game.

LIGHT EM' UP

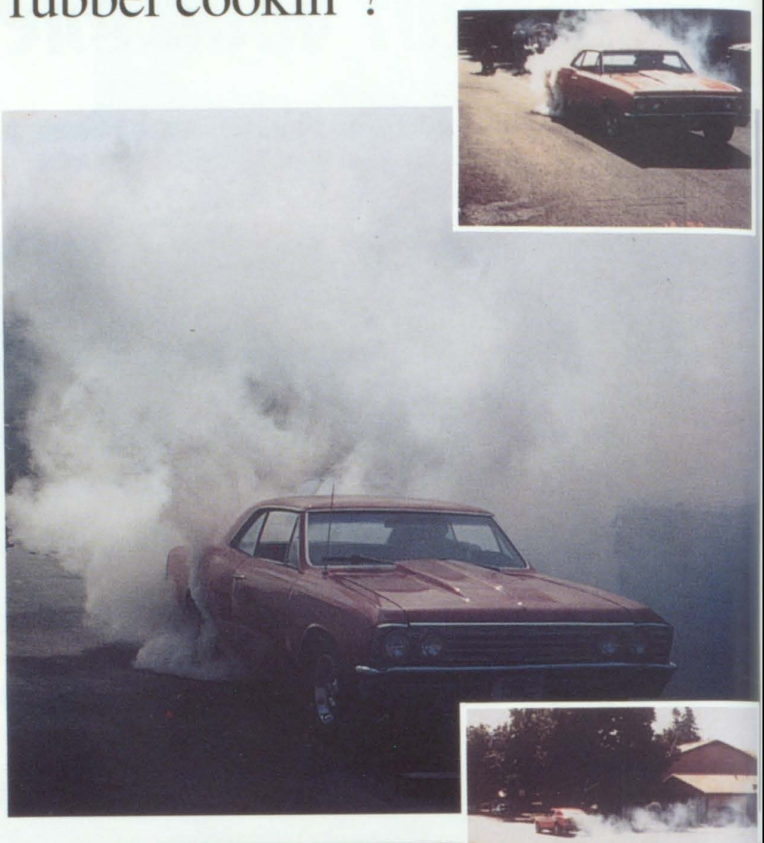
Do you smell the rubber cookin'?

For years teenagers have been using their cars as tools to uplift their social status. Whether you like it or not, cars portray your personality through color, model, style . . . it all reflects who you are. If you drive a Bug, you're the type of person who is in shape because you're always pushing the Bug off to the side of the road to get it to the nearest mechanic shop for repairs. If you have a Saturn, you're the economical type who doesn't like to part with your hard earned paycheck. If you drive a Camaro, you're the type of person who likes the wind blowing through your hair as you shmob through the red light. So next time you pass that slow car in front of you, take a minute to figure out what your car says about you.

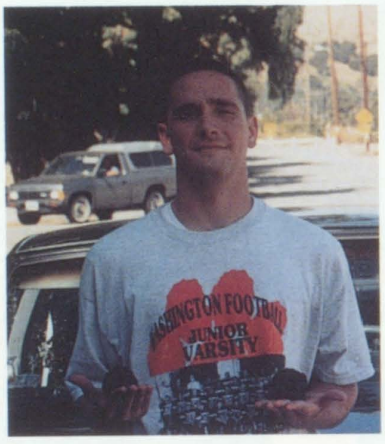
RATINGS ON BURNOUTS
(scale of 1-4 pts.)

1. We've seen Pintos smoke em' better than that.
2. Nice try but I've seen granny in her 85' Caravan do better.
3. Now we're getting somewhere. I think I smell some rubber cookin'.
4. You're the burnout king. You excavated enough smoke to choke the competition.

Right: For weeks people were anticipating the event of Paul Johnson roastin' his tires in his Chevy Malibu. Paul put so much smoke into the air that everyone behind his car came out of the cloud chokin'. Score 4.

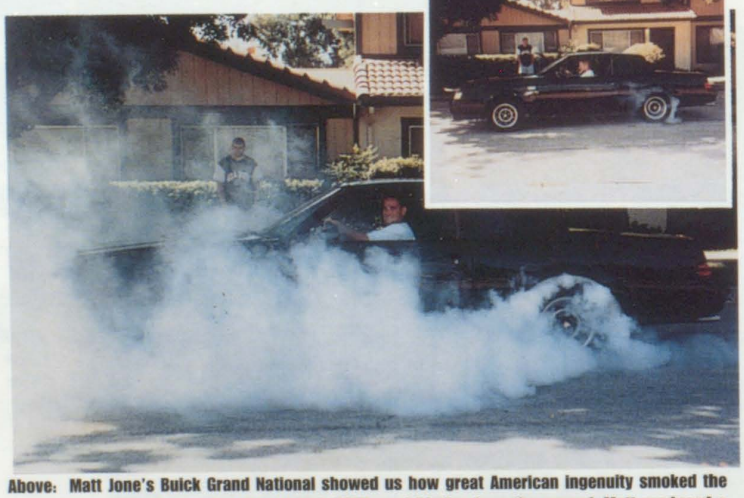


Below: Matt Jones showed off his proud trophies of rubber after smokin' his tires. The balls are the sizes of baseballs and made of rubber from Matt's tires while attempting to win the "Light Em' Up" competition. It looked like he was going to need to buy new tires for his car soon.

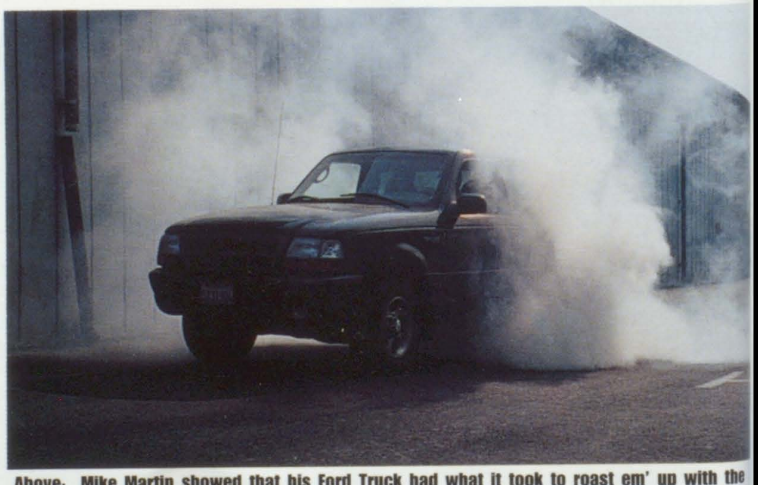


Above: Ricky Novotny's efforts were in vain to get his tires smokin' as he hammered down on the gas pedal in his IROC-Z28. Although he didn't produce a whole lot of smoke, his car looked sweet trying. Score 2.

Above: In his 68' Camaro, Ryan Hall tried to mimic the hard-to-duplicate burnouts of Paul Johnson and Matt Jones. Ryan ended his roasting event with an exciting car chase when a local off-duty co disliked our choice of showing off our cars and decided to chase after Ryan. Score 3



Above: Matt Jone's Buick Grand National showed us how great American ingenuity smoked the competition. With the combination of high RPM's and friction from the ground, Matt produced a cloud of smoke that soon filled the street and made innocent bystanders cough their lungs out. Score 3.999



Above: Mike Martin showed that his Ford Truck had what it took to roast em' up with the big boys. Although not many people believed in "Martin," he showed them a thing or tw on lightin' em up. Score 3.5 (scored by Jeff Beck)

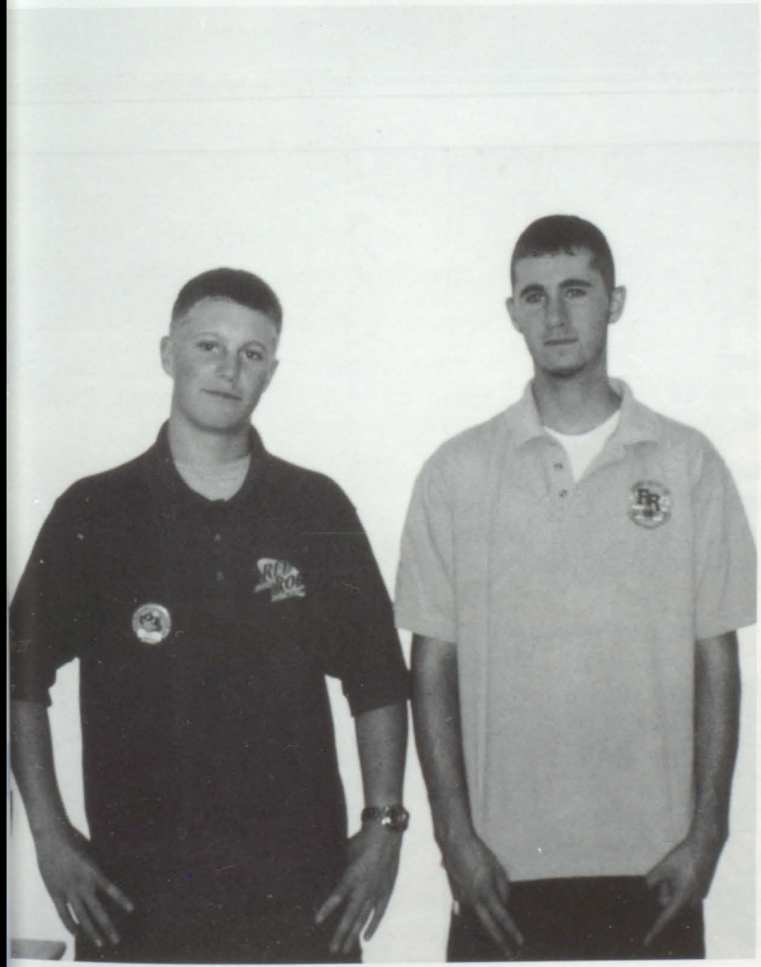
WORKIN' IT

You may not like it and it may not be by choice but sometimes you just have to work. Whether it be to earn money for car insurance, to buy new clothes, or to pay for that expensive date, everyone needs a little extra cash. So if you can't get money out of Mommy and Daddy, start asking the question "Would you like fries with that"?

Above: Hungry? Got no money? Come through to K.F.C. where Michael Martin, Chris Gonzales, and Will Wong (not pictured) spent their time earning money to pay the bills. Whether it was having waterfights with the managers or playing baseball with packets of butter, they were always staying busy. If you were ever hungry, you knew that "Martin," "Colonel Mexico," and "Asian" delivered with the hook-ups.

Below: For the past two years Jeff Beck (standing) and Colin Troia (in chair) had been gettin' paid like kings at "Hoot" Judkins Furniture. The latest addition to the group was Marcus Holguin (in car) who started during the summer. They passed their time at work playing home-run derby and soccer in the back room or going to the Dana Bazaar (a.k.a. smelly spice house) to get hooked up by B-2 for some food and other important items.

Above: At Pizzaria Unos, Christina Richardson (a.k.a. Ghetto) served up all of the customers. . . with pizza of course. Christina had been working there for over a year but became a server this past year in hopes of making more money.



bove: Jon Krulc (a.k.a. Crawler) and Justin DeBenning found that getting motivated very day before work helped them to concentrate on work at Red Robin's. The only roblems were trying to keep the two from grizzin' all of the grub from customers' ates.

Above: For the second year, Davina Hooker enjoyed her job at Drug Emporium as she served a customer with gladness. "It pays to work," said working gal Davina. "It makes it easier to pay for the things that I want."

LETTING LOOSE

What did Washington Huskies do in their spare tim

Huskies experienced a variety of activities during their leis time throughtout the school year. Everyone's hobbies diffe depending upon the individual's interests and personality. So students chose to continue to stay active while others took option to calm down and relax. A hobby is a labor of love- you the work because you love to do it. It's an activity that you because you enjoy it.

Above: What might you see if you went scuba diving? Mike Armes saw this gigantic Mantua during one of his trips in the sea. Throughout his many dives, Mike witnessed several unique creatures of the sea.

Above: A former member of "Good For Nothën," Vince Guevara, mastered his Bari Sax with all of his practice. He could play you any tune if you asked him to.

Above: School DJ's Chad Balanza and Oscar Ramirez may have seemed like they were working hard to provide WHS with music at every event, but don't let that fool you. These guys could spend hours playing music. . . in fact one could almost say it was a hobby.

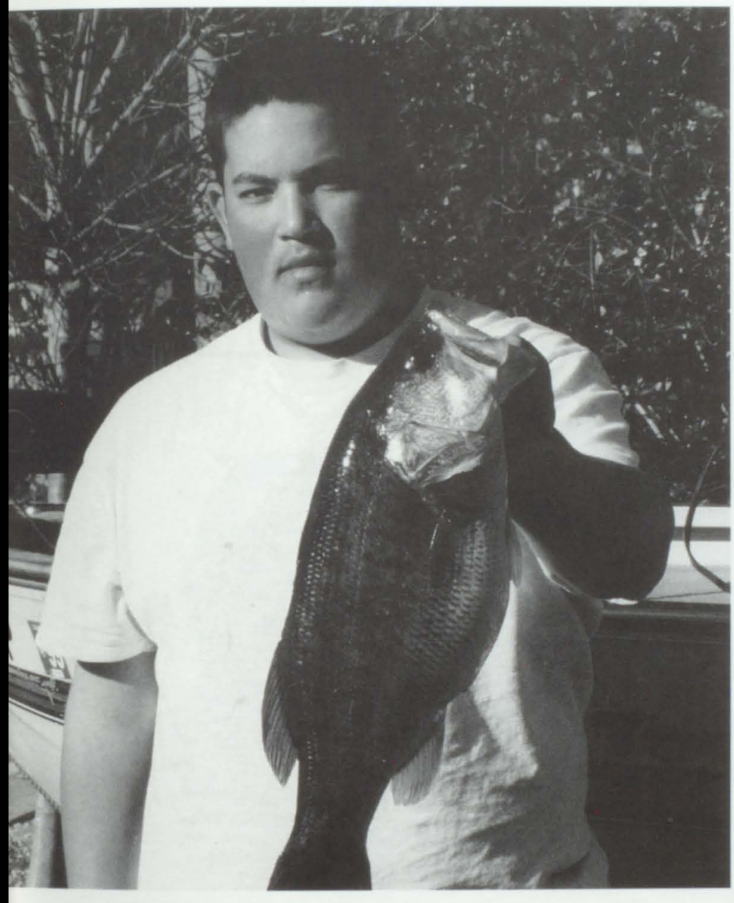
Right: Renee LaRose danced as gracefully as a butterfly. Renee started dancing when she was a young girl and continued to pursue her passion into her high school years.

elow: Arthur Soroken seemed to be able to get everyone's ttention with his slick moves. He had been breakdancing nough to know moves that astonished the crowds he at- acted.

Above: Some girls just want to have fun. Shannon Spalding, Bianca Pardini, Lisa Visconti, Veronica Weber, and Rheanna Keiper spent a night camping to enjoy the outdoors.



Above: Eric Curtzwiler took the time to keep up the maintenance of his'59 VW Bus to keep it at superior condition. Hopefully the dancing Hawaiian doll didn't stray his eyes from the road while he was driving.

Right: When parents leave town for a few days, their house becomes unknowingly the site of a friendly get together. Chad Balanza, Kristi Sinnot, Danny Clark, Alysha Anderson, Shannon Mattingly, John Macciola and Nolan Dixon headed out to confirm rumors of a parentless gathering.

It's Friday, you ain't got no job, and you ain't got ish to do. So we are bringing to you Nightlife for the first time ever. Since you couldn't make it to every party or gathering, we brought them to you. Here are some of the ways Fremont weekends were livened up. Whether it was parties, a night out on the town, "dinner and a movie," or just chillin' with the homies, you all found an outlet to relax and unwind from a school week full of torment from teachers.

Above: Monica Chavez, Ashley Sanchez, Dana Duge and Tonya Glanz sang their hearts out at Guido's Pizza on a Wednesday night when they had Karaoke. They sang "I Will Survive" and after their spectacular performance their lives were never the same again.

Middle Right: As a reward of working hard in a weekend long D.E.C.A. competition, Megan O'Neal, Christina Richardson, Liz Civiletti, Jennifer Rodriguez and Stephanie Brown, got a chance to show off their dance moves to rival schools from the competition.

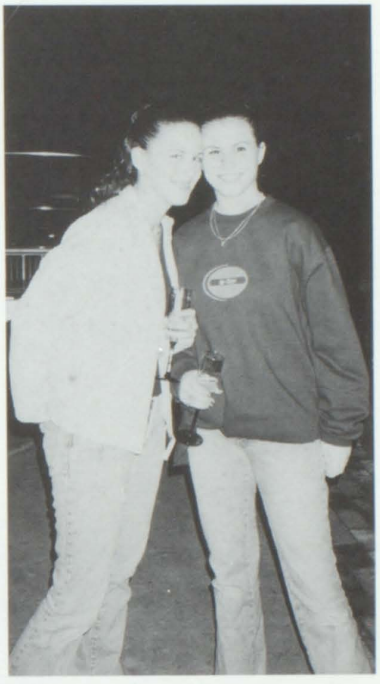
Bottom Right: Here we saw some students enjoying a challenging game of cards. It was hard to decide whether Jon Krulc and Justin DeBenning were conspiring on their own game, or agreeing on how effervescent and refreshing their. . . soda was.

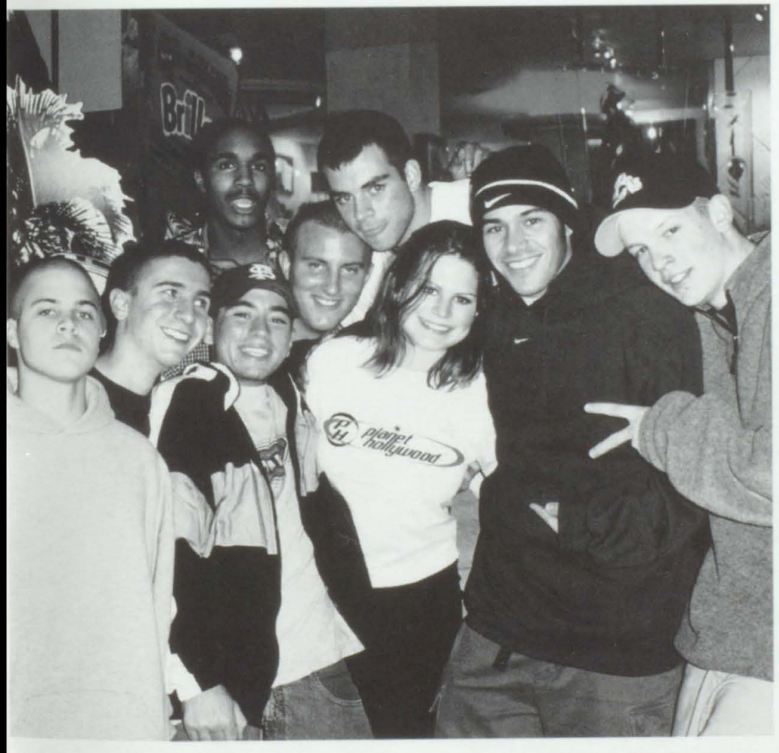
Above: Sara Jester, Lindsey Fisher, and Lauren Maurer went out looking for a good fright on Halloween. . . They wound up with a memorable night at the Winchester Mystery House Midnight Tour.

Below: Lauren Inglish, Sarra Reid, Felicia Lilienthal, and Corinne Vairora brought in the New Year in the company of school friends and recent Washington alumni. They all did the best they could to make a millennium celebration to remember. With the help of the Anderson girls, they had a night they will never forget (flashlights and all).

Below: Laura Lineback and Kelly King rang in the New Year with festively feathery tiaras. What better way to celebrate the long-awaited year of graduation than with close friends and plenty of good food.

Below: To their disappointment, Danielle Martin and Christine Bradley found that their champagne glasses were supplied with apple cider and not the traditional celebration drink that gave the infamous glasses their name. But that minor setback didn't stop them from welcoming the year 2000 with style.





Above: Collin Troia, Kyle Sana, Nick Barba, Jeff Beck, David Steffeck, Nelson Amaral, and Marcus Holguin posed with their server Jordon (in back) and waitress Brittney (in middle) after a grubbin' meal at Planet Hollywood in Frisco. These boys were regulars here and were treated well by the locals.

When Fremont got too quiet, Patrice Ehrlich - Speed and Felicia Constantine left to go to San Francisco. They had house parties with their friends up by Sutro Tower where they relaxed and enjoyed themselves without parental stipulations.

Frosh Football

THE FRESHMAN FOOTBALL TEAM WAS ACCEPTED VERY WELL THIS YEAR. THESE FRESHMEN DIDN'T CATCH ANY HEAT FOR BEING ON THE ENTRY LEVEL TEAM. THE FROSH TEAM WORKED JUST AS HARD AS THE J.V. AND VARSITY TEAMS. BEING ON FROSH FOOTBALL GAVE THEM THE EXPERIENCE TO MOVE UP IN LEVELS FROM YEAR TO YEAR. WE ALL KNEW THAT THEY PRACTICED HARD AND ALL THAT GOOD STUFF, BUT THEY HAD PERSONALITY AND SPIRIT. WHEN THEY MOVE UP TO J.V., THEY WILL BE MUCH MORE EXPERIENCED.

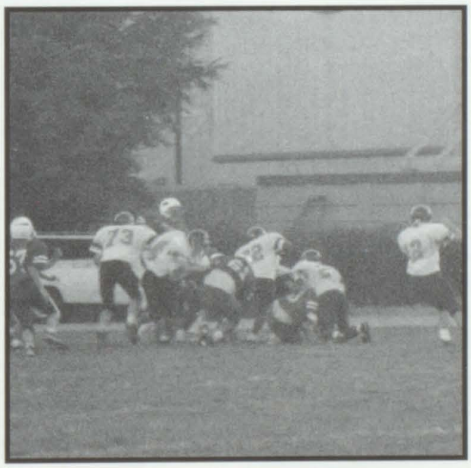
LEFT: NUMBER 88 TOOK LONG, FAST STRIDES TO BACK UP HIS TEAM MEMBER WITH THE BALL.

THE JUNIOR VARSITY FOOTBALL TEAM DID AN EXCEPTIONAL JOB THIS YEAR. THEY WENT INTO THE GAME KNOWING THEY WERE GOING TO DEFEAT THEIR OPPONENTS. MAYBE THEY DIDN'T CONQUER EVERY GAME, BUT THEY PLAYED THEIR HEARTS OUT. DUE TO THEIR GREAT DEFENSE AND WELL-PLANNED OFFENSE THEY TOOK HOME SOME VICTORIES. BEING ON THE J.V. TEAM PREPARED THEM FOR THE INTENSITY OF VARSITY AND THEY WILL BE VERY THANKFUL THAT THEY WORKED AS HARD THIS PAST YEAR. WE HAVE TO GIVE CREDIT TO COACH JONES FOR THE OUTSTANDING JOB HE DID WITH THE GUYS THIS YEAR.



ABOVE: NUMBER 42 WENT TO PASS THE BALL WHILE HIS OTHER TEAM MEMBERS OCCUPIED THE OTHER TEAM. GREAT STATEGY AND IT TURNED OUT TO BE ANOTHER SUCCESSFUL VICTORY.

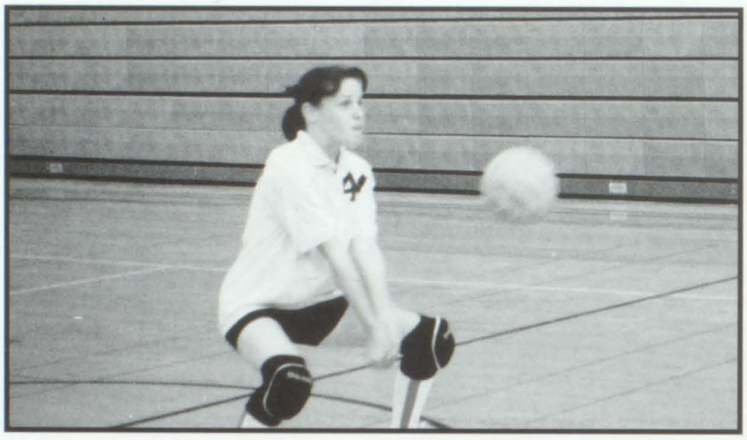
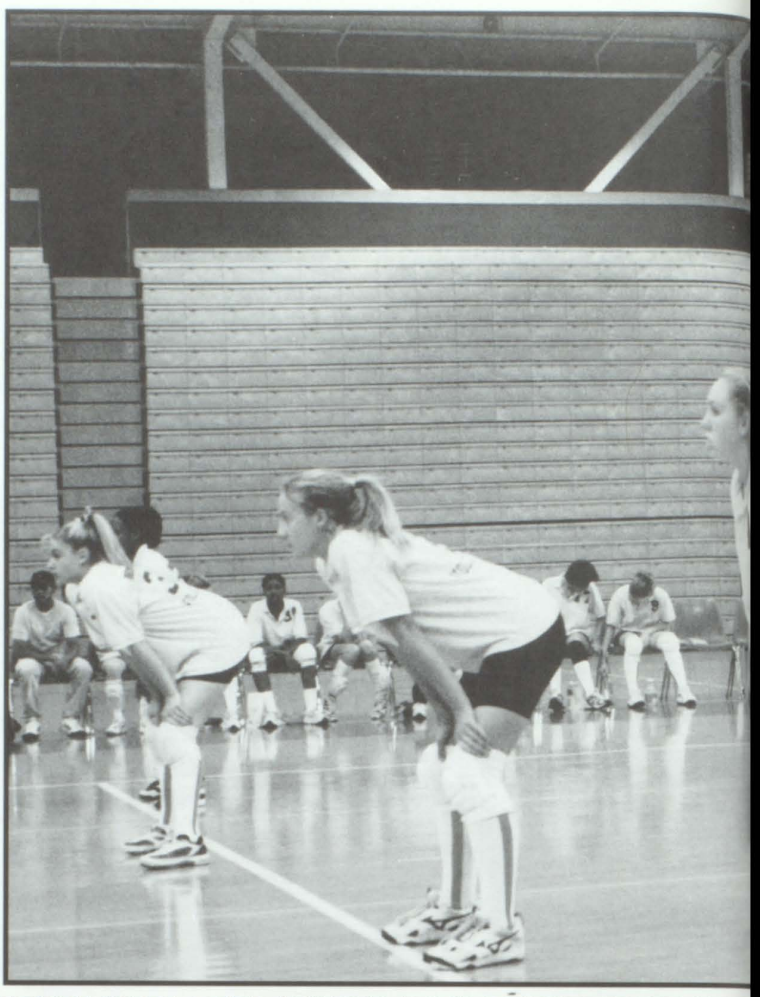
THE BIG DISCUSSION!!! ON A TIME OUT, THE TEAM DISCUSSED THEIR FAULTS. EVEN THOUGH THEY WERE IN THE LEAD, THEY STILL WANTED TO MAKE SURE THEY NEVER GOT BEHIND ON ANYTHING.



THE PERFECT PASS!!! KIRA SISCO RECEIVED STYLE POINTS FOR THIS AMAZING DIG. SHE DEFINITELY KNEW HOW TO PLAY THE BACK ROW.



CAPTAIN KENNA SMITH AND TEAMMATES RACHEL MADANY, ALISHA ANDERSON, JANELLE JOHNSON, EMILY RUSCH AND STEPHANIE SAENZ NEEDED A SIDEOUT AND A COUPLE OF POINTS TO WIN THE GAME.

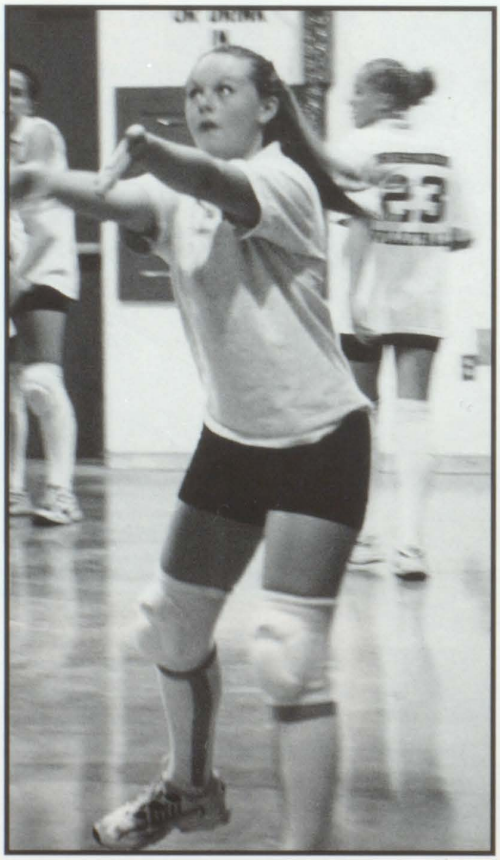
Chicks Diggin' It!

BUMP, SET, SPIKE ARE THREE WORDS THAT THIS TEAM LIVED OFF OF. BUT WE CAN'T FORGET ALL THE SACRIFICES THIS JV TEAM MADE, LIKE DIVING FOR UNREACHABLE VOLLEYBALLS, HAVING A POWERHOUSE SERVE, AND WINNING ALL THE SIDEOUTS THAT THEY POSSIBLY COULD.

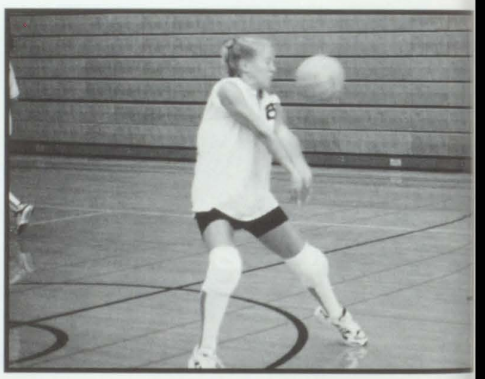
RETURNING THIS YEAR WERE SOPHOMORES KENNA SMITH, DESIREE CLEVELAND, HEIDI TEGNER, AND ALYSHA ANDERSON. THEY ALL WERE READY AND WILLING TO WORK HARD AND STAY STRONG ALL SEASON LONG.

THIS TEAM OF EXCEPTIONAL AND TALENTED YOUTH HOPED TO REACH THEIR GOALS AND TAKE FIRST PLACE. KENNA SMITH, THE CAPTAIN OF THE JV VOLLEYBALL TEAM, SAID THAT IT TAKES HARD WORK, DEDICATION AND YOU HAVE TO REALLY WANT IT. THE ONE THING THAT SHE THOUGHT HER TEAM NEEDED TO ACCOMPLISH THIS SEASON WAS TO LEARN TO WORK BETTER AS A TEAM.

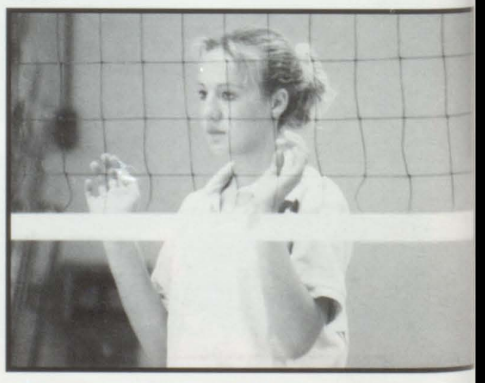
THIS YEAR WAS VERY GOOD FOR JV WITH NEW COACH TED BABU. THAT GOT THEM PUMPED UP AND READY FOR ANYTHING.



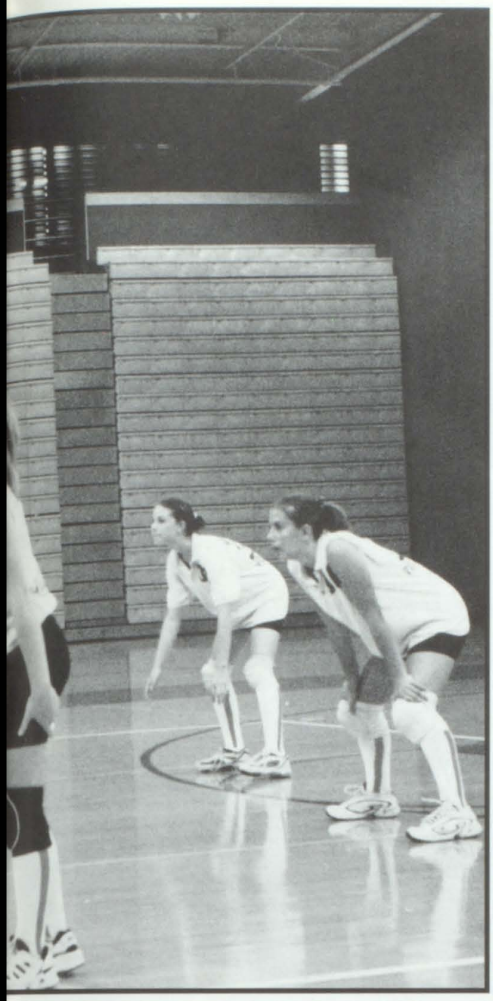
IN THE EYES OF THE BEHOLDER!!! JANELLE INDERKUM LOOKED INTO THE EYES OF THE VOLLEYBALL AND DECIDED TO MAKE AN OUTSTANDING PASS. SHE WAS READY AND WILLING FOR ANYTHING AND EVERYTHING.



PUT ON YOUR GAME FACE!!! MARCI CLARK TRIED TO MAKE A PERFECT PASS TO THE SETTER. SHE DID THIS WITH SUCH ENTHUSIASM YOU COULD SEE IT IN HER FACE.

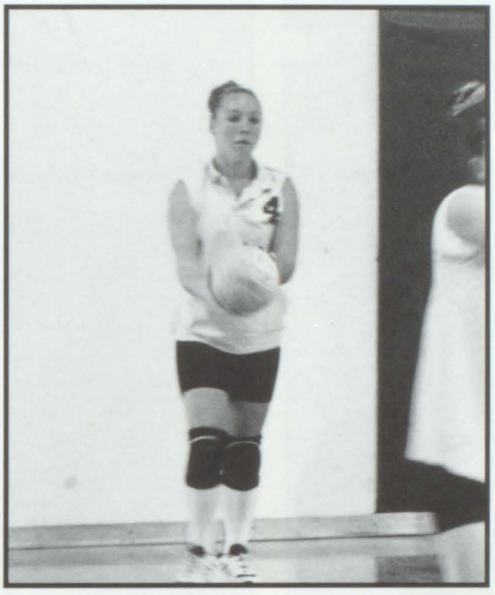


BIG DOG IN THE MIDDLE!!! RACHEL MADANY WAITED FOR A BALL AT THE NET WITH MUCH EAGERNESS. SHE TIMED HERSELF FOR THE OPPONENT'S HIT TO BE ABLE TO BLOCK THE BALL.

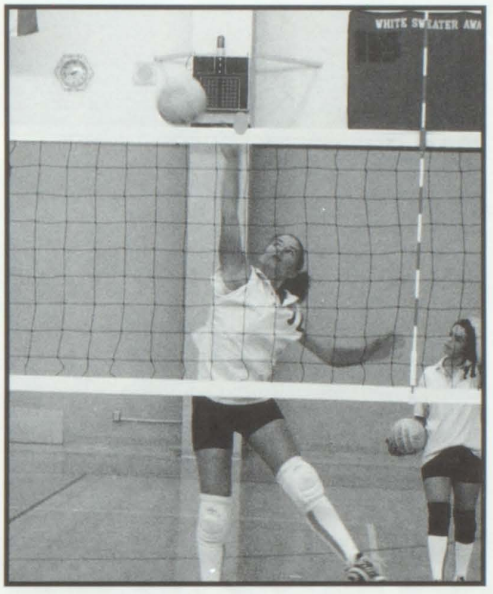


AFTER THEY GOT THE SIDEOUT, JANELLE JOHNSON WENT BACK TO SERVE FIVE STRAIGHT POINTS TO WIN THE GAME AGAINST LOGAN.

TEAM BUDDIES!!! PATTI WALSH, MARCI CLARK, STEPHANIE SAENZ, JANELLE JOHNSON, ALISHA ANDERSON, DESIREE CLEVELAND, AND SARAH WASHINGTON SMILED AFTER A HARD DAY'S WORK OF PLAYING VOLLEYBALL. ALL OF THEIR SKILLS COMBINED TO HELP THE JV GET A VICTORY AGAINST LOGAN.



PRACTICE MAKES PERFECT!!! THE TEAM CAPTAIN KENNA SMITH DECIDED TO PRACTICE SERVE BEFORE THE GAME AGAINST MISSION SAN JOSE. LITTLE DID SHE KNOW HER SERVING HELPED THE TEAM BEAT MISSION IN TWO STRAIGHT GAMES.



GOING FOR THE KILL!!! STEPHANIE SAENZ SLAMMED A BALL STRAIGHT DOWN AGAINST KENNEDY'S TITANS. STEPHANIE GOT THE TEAM A SIDEOUT AND WAS READY FOR ANOTHER HIT.

STARS OF THE COURT

This year's dedicated J.V. team consisted mainly of newcomers. The new coach, Ms. Due, enjoyed working with the team because they had a lot of spirit and determination. Their team-building activities varied from running stairs together to complimenting each other with yarn. Tuesdays and Thursdays were when they met their rivals at home or on their opponents' courts. They didn't let their rigorous practices affect their appetites as they gathered at Erin Hodson's house for a festive potluck.

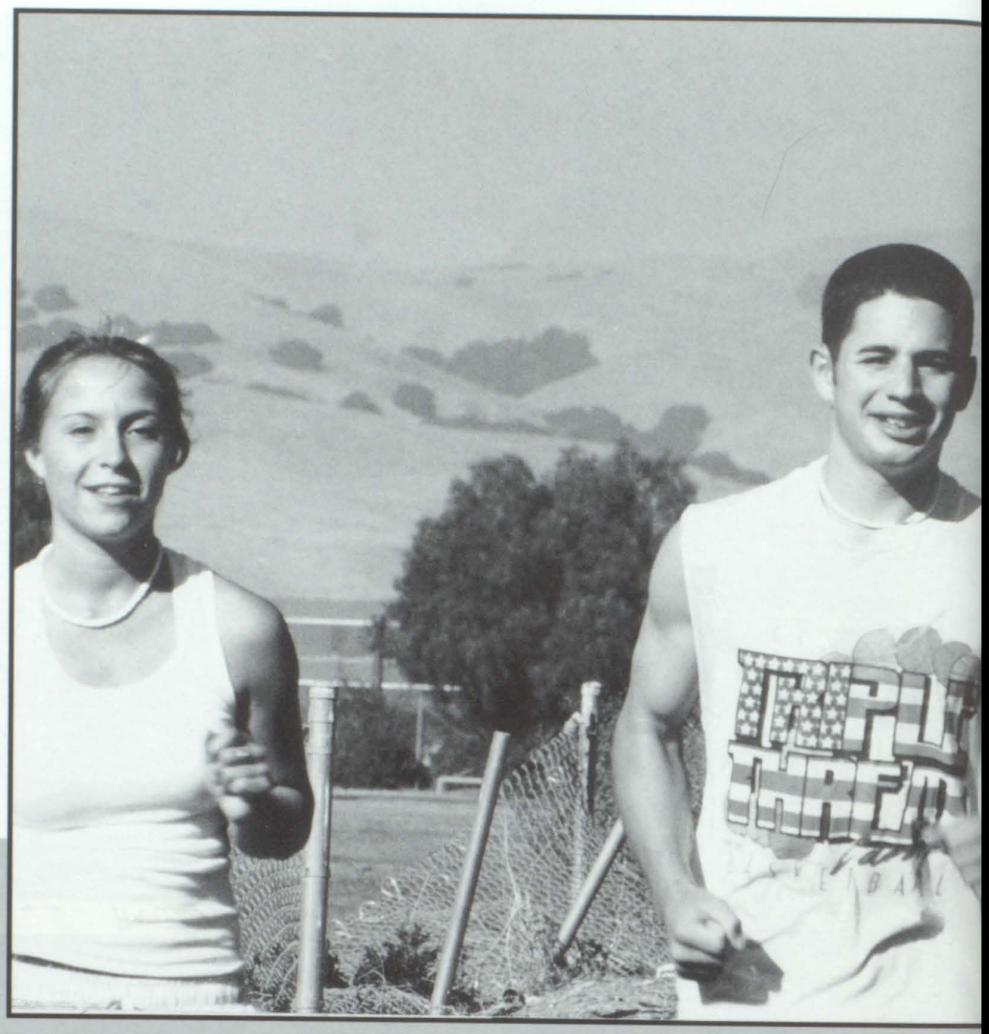
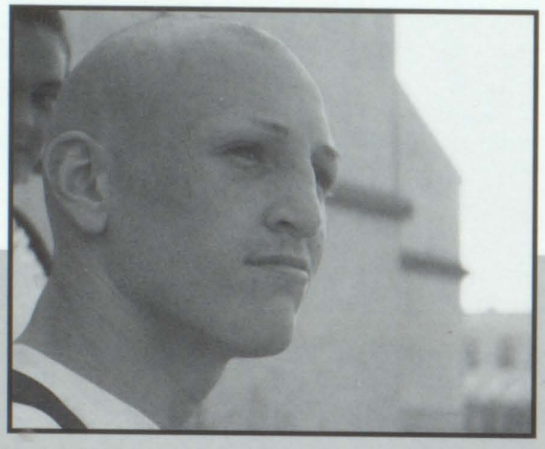
THE '99-2000 SEASON WAS A GOOD ONE FOR THE HUSKIES' CROSS COUNTRY TEAM. ALTHOUGH THE TEAM WAS FAIRLY YOUNG, WITH PLENTY OF FRESHMEN AND SOPHOMORES, THEY WERE ALSO VERY TALENTED. SENIORS NANYAMKA SCOTT AND JEREMIAH PRICER SHOWED GREAT LEADERSHIP THROUGHOUT THE SEASON WITH THEIR HARD WORK. JUNIORS SCOTT CHROMY AND WEI LANG WERE TWO OF THE MOST TALENTED JUNIORS WHO PARTICIPATED THIS YEAR.

RIGHT: SENIOR JEREMIAH PRICER AND SOPHOMORE DANIELLE PACEDO SHOWED WHAT TRUE ATHLETES WERE LIKE. THEY NOT ONLY WORKED HARD, THEY ENJOYED IT TOO.
BELOW: JUNIOR BEN VOSE WENT THROUGH HIS MENTAL PREGAME RITUAL. WITH A LOOK OF CONFIDENCE AND INNER PEACE, HE THOUGHT TO HIMSELF, "TODAY IS A GOOD DAY TO RUN."

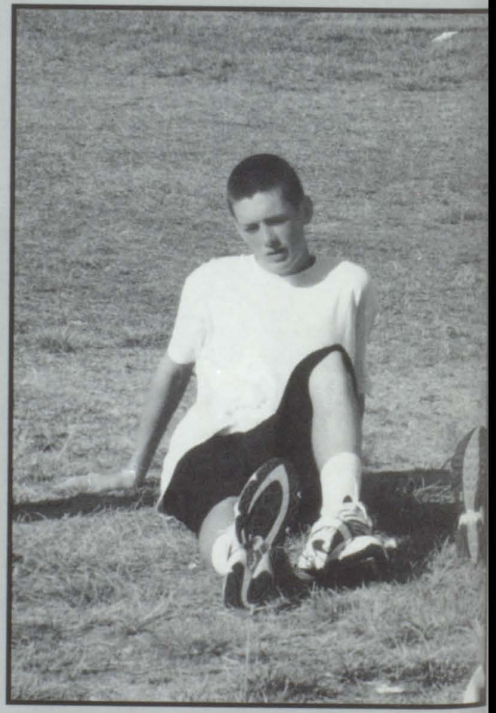




ABOVE: JUNIOR SHARLENE CAPAS PREPARED TO OVERTAKE FELLOW JUNIOR AMRITA GREWAL AND TAKE THE LEAD. DETERMINATION, TALENT, AND SMART STRATEGY WAS WHAT MADE BOTH OF THEM GREAT CROSS COUNTRY RUNNERS THIS YEAR.

...to Finish

ABOVE: AS WALTER CHU BLAZED TOWARD THE FINISH LINE, HE SUDDENLY REMEMBERED THE INSPIRATIONAL MESSAGE OF HIS SHIRT, AND ONLY THREE WORDS RAN THROUGH HIS HEAD, "JUST DO IT."



ABOVE: BRAD EVENS SAT DOWN IN DESPERATE NEED OF A MENTAL REFRESHMENT FROM THE PHYSICAL EXERTION OF HIS RACE.

LEFT: THIS YEAR'S CROSS COUNTRY TEAM HAD ITS OWN GROUP OF SUPERHEROES. HERE WAS THEIR VERSION OF THE FANTASTIC FOUR: JUSTIN LORENZ, DANIELLE PACEDO, JESUS MADRIGAL, AND RICHARD ADAMS.

BELOW: SOPHOMORE FERNANDO ESPINOZA HATED PUSH-UPS. "PUSH-UPS ARE BORING. WINDMILLS PROVIDE THE SAME WORKOUT, ARE MORE FUN, AND THEY LOOK A WHOLE LOT COOLER," HE THOUGHT.

Staying On Top!

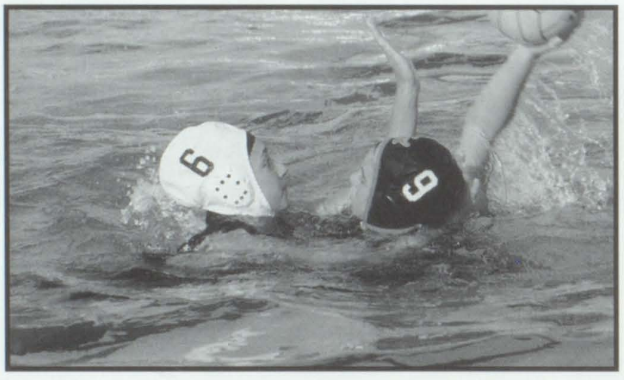
IGNORE THE BURNING SUN ON YOUR BACK, THE WATER UP YOUR NOSE, AND THE SCREAMING CROWD IN YOUR EARS. SWIM AS FAST AS YOU CAN, AND THEN TREAD WATER UNTIL YOUR LEGS BURN. THEN SPIKE! AND INBETWEEN ALL OF THAT, DON'T FORGET TO BREATHE! WEEK AFTER WEEK OF PRACTICE HELPED THE GIRLS' WATERPOLO TEAM DEVELOP THEIR SKILLS TO PREPARE FOR ALL OF THESE THINGS DURING THE GAMES THIS SEASON. WHETHER IT WAS AUGUST AND THEIR BACKS WERE SCORCHED BY THE SUN, OR IT WAS THE WINTER AND THEY WERE CHILLED TO THE BONE BY THE TEMPERATURE OF THE FREEZING POOL, THE GIRLS' WATERPOLO TEAM PRACTICED THEIR HARDEST, DAY IN AND DAY OUT. FORTUNATELY FOR THEM, IT ALL PAID OFF.

WITH SOME OF THEIR STRONGEST PLAYERS BACK FOR ANOTHER YEAR, VARSITY GIRLS' WATERPOLO HAD ANOTHER WINNING SEASON. "THE NON-STARTERS AND THE J.V. TEAM FROM LAST YEAR STEPPED UP THEIR PERFORMANCE TO MAINTAIN THE TEAM STATUS," JUNIOR LAUREN ZIMMERMAN EXCLAIMED. THE TEAM EXPECTED TO MAKE THE NCS FINALS AGAIN, AND HAD PLANNED ON BEING IN THE MAXIMUM AMOUNT OF TOURNAMENTS THAT THEY COULD.

THE JUNIOR VARISTY GIRLS' WATER POLO TEAM ALSO HAD A SUPERIOR YEAR. A FEW NEW FRESHMAN CONTRIBUTED THEIR TALENTS, AND THE REST OF THE GIRLS MADE IMPROVEMENTS FROM THE PREVIOUS YEAR. ALTOGETHER, IT BECAME ONE OF THE BEST JUNIOR VARSITIES IN THE LAST DECADE OF WASHINGTON HIGH SCHOOL'S GIRLS' WATERPOLO HISTORY. THEY STROKED, KICKED, AND FOUGHT THEIR WAY TO THE TOP. HOPEFULLY THIS TEAM WILL LEAD TO EVEN BETTER VARISTY TEAMS IN THE YEARS TO COME. WATCH OUT FELLOW FREMONT HIGH SCHOOL WATERPOLO TEAMS, HERE COME THE HUSKY WATER JOCKS!

BELOW: "KEEP IT UP!" COACH BRIAN YELLED AT HIS TEAM, OBVIOUSLY PROUD OF HOW SUCCESSFUL THEY WERE IN THEIR GAME AGAINST MISSION SAN JOSE HIGH SCHOOL. THE REST OF THE GAMES IN THE SEASON WEREN'T A DISAPPOINTMENT EITHER.

RIGHT: "MAYBE IF I PULL HER CAP OFF, I CAN GET THE BALL!" VARISTY'S TARAH SCHLOSSER SECRETLY SCHEMED IN HER ATTEMPT TO STEAL THE BALL AWAY FROM HER OPPONENT. OBVIOUSLY, ALL OF THE WEEKS OF PRACTICING HER MOVES PAID OFF.



BELOW: ASHLEY CORREIA SLID AHEAD IN HER RACE WITH CORY AUDIAT AND VANESSA HERRERA TO THE ENEMY SIDE OF THE POOL. SHE WANTED TO BE THE FIRST TO WATER TACKLE THE OTHER TEAM.

ABOVE: ALL OF THE FANS SAT ON THE SIDE CHEERING ON THE TEAM. AMONG THEM SAT JUNIOR VARSITY ASSISTANT COACH, SCOTT SCHROADER, WHO FAITHFULLY WATCHED THE GIRLS PLAY.

LEFT: SENIOR JENNI MCCLAIN RETURNED TO THE VARSITY TEAM AGAIN THIS YEAR AND PROVED HERSELF YET AGAIN, IN THEIR GAME AGAINST CAL HIGH SCHOOL. SHE SHOWED THE WHOLE SCHOOL THAT SHE WAS STILL JUMPING AT THE CHANCE FOR ANOTHER WINNING SEASON.

BELOW: JUNIOR CHRISTINA BUCHNER LOOKED AT THE CROWD IN CONFUSION. TWO SECONDS LATER SHE ADDED TO THE LINEUP IN ANOTHER FACEOFF.

BELOW: WHITE WATER RAGED IN THE POOL AS SENIOR STEPHANIE O'NEILL BATTLED DEFIANTLY FOR CONTROL OF THE BALL.

WATER

WATER POLO HAD A GREAT YEAR. ALL THE STARTERS RETURNED FROM LAST YEAR. TONY CIMINO, ONE OF OUR CAPTAINS, BECAME THE NEW STARTING GOALKEEPER THIS YEAR. OTHER CO-CAPTAINS, JUSTIN SWIFT AND GUS PALMA HAD A GREAT SEASON AS WELL. OUR VARSITY TEAM WAS VERY EXPERIENCED. THEY BEAT JAMES LOGAN AND MISSION HIGH SCHOOLS TWICE THIS YEAR, FINISHING THE SEASON WITH A 5-3 RECORD.

Stretch It Out!

Led by Mrs. Freitas for the tenth year in a row, the Husky gymnasts took first place in the league. The Varsity team consisted of two varsity members plus the elite group. The JV team tied for first place at 5-1. Floor exercises, bars, the beam, and the vault were the daily exercises that the girls went through from 2:45 till 4:45. The team held a crab feed in the spring time to raise money for equipment as well. Note: Photos were made available through a video shot by Mrs. Freitas. Yearbook staff apologies for the lack of regular photographs. Thanks, Mrs. Freitas.

ABOVE: SEAN SIMS USED HIS SIZE TO HIS ADVANTAGE TO GET THE BALL OVER HIS OPPONENT'S ARMS AND INTO THE BASKET. BECAUSE HE MADE IT LOOK SO EASY, HIS DEFENDERS COULDN'T HELP BUT FEEL HELPLESS.

ABOVE: JOEY GUERRERO TOOK THE BALL ACROSS THE COURT AND LED HIS TEAM ON A FAST BREAK. WITH HIS GREAT VISION OF THE COURT, HE READ THE DEFENSE AND LOOKED FOR A PASS TO THE OPEN PLAYER.

RIGHT: ROBERTO SALAZAR USED HIS EXCEPTIONAL DRIBBLING SKILLS TO FAKE OUT HIS DEFENDER OUT OF HIS SHOES. DURING THE SPLIT SECOND THAT HIS DEFENDER WAS OUT OF POSITION, HE TRIED TO DECIDE WHETHER TO DRIVE, SHOOT, OR PASS THE BALL.

BOYS' FROSH BASKETBALL

THIS YEAR'S BOYS' FROSH BASKETBALL TEAM WAS FILLED WITH PROMISING YOUNG TALENT. THE TEAM WAS VERY DEEP WITH A LOT OF ROLE PLAYERS. THE HUSKIES PLAYED SMART BASKETBALL BY PASSING A LOT. THEY WOULD OFTEN KEEP THE BALL MOVING AND THEN GET THE BALL TO AN OPEN MAN NEAR THE BASKET TO CREATE HIGH PERCENTAGE SHOTS AND PREVENT TURNOVERS. NONE OF THIS WOULD HAVE WORKED, HOWEVER, IF THE TEAM WASN'T DEDICATED TO THE GAME OF BASKETBALL. WITH A COMBINATION OF TALENT AND EFFORT, THE TEAM WAS DESTINED FOR A SUCCESSFUL SEASON.

CHRIS ROBINSON DIDN'T LET HIS OPPONENT STOP HIM FROM SCORING. HE USED HIS SIZE, STRENGTH, AND TECHNIQUE TO POWER HIS WAY INTO POSITION AND TO THE BASKET.

BOYS' JUNIOR VARSITY BASKETBALL

THIS YEAR'S JUNIOR VARSITY BASKETBALL TEAM ANXIOUSLY ANTICIPATED THE '99-'00 SEASON. COACH MIKE KENNEY WAS GLAD TO SEE THE RETURN OF MANY PLAYERS WHO WERE BOTH TALENTED AND EXPERIENCED UNDER THE FROSH SYSTEM. THE TEAM WAS MADE UP OF BOTH EXCELLENT HIGH FLYING AND POWERFUL PLAYERS. THIS GAVE THEM THE VERSATILITY TO PLAY EITHER A FAST-PACED GAME OR WEAR THE OPPONENT DOWN WITH A PUNISHING INSIDE GAME. WITH THIS FLEXIBILITY, THE HUSKIES WERE ALWAYS A THREAT TO SCORE THIS SEASON.

ABOVE: ROBERT JOHNSON BATTLED FEROCIOUSLY WITH HIS OPPONENT FOR POSITION. IT WAS THE SMALLER, UNNOTICED BATTLES LIKE THIS THAT OFTEN MADE THE DIFFERENCE IN THE END.

LEFT: MICHAEL JOHNSTON SHOWED HIS GREAT BURST OF SPEED AGAINST HIS DEFENDER. HIS QUICK FIRST STEP ENABLED HIM TO EASILY GET A GOOD LOOK AT THE BASKET. WITH HIS PRIMARY DEFENDER OUT OF THE WAY, HE DROVE DOWN THE SIDELINE TO SCORE AN EASY TWO POINTS.

WITH ONLY TWO RETURNING VARSITY PLAYERS, THE HUSKIES WERE UNCERTAIN ABOUT THEIR SEASON. AS A YOUNG TEAM, THE HUSKIES LACKED EXPERIENCE BUT MADE IT UP WITH HARD WORK AND DETERMINATION. COACH BOGGS WAS EXTREMELY EXCITED ABOUT HIS YOUNG SQUAD AND FELT HIS TEAM HAD A LOT OF TALENT. STICKING TO HUSKY TRADITION, BOGGS TAUGHT HIS KIDS THE "RIGHT" WAY BY STRESSING FUNDAMENTALS AND ALLOWING THEM TO HAVE FUN.

ABOVE: SENIORS CALVIN HENDERSON AND HARMAN JHAJJ STRETCHED DURING WARMUPS BECAUSE THEY DIDN'T WANT TO PULL A "HAMMY." "OH YEAH, FEEL THAT BURN," CALVIN SAID.

FAR RIGHT: JUNIOR GARRETT PERRIEN GOT DOWN IN HIS DEFENSIVE STANCE HOPING TO STOP HIS OPPONENT FROM SCORING. "BRING IT ON," HE SAID.

RIGHT: JUNIOR MIKE TSAI SHOWED OFF HIS TEXTBOOK JUMPER DURING WARMUPS. HE IMAGINED HIMSELF HITTING THE GAME WINNING SHOT: "3,2,1, AND THE CROWD GOES WILD."

RIGHT: ASSISTANT COACH JOHN HUNTER GATHERED HIS GUARDS RICKY NEVARES AND GARRETT PERRIEN DURING A BREAK TO TALK OVER STRATEGY. GARRETT LOOKED A LITTLE CONFUSED BY HUNTER'S INSTRUCTIONS.

LEFT: DURING A TIMEOUT, COACH BOGGS TALKED THE GAME PLAN OVER WITH HIS SQUAD. "WE HAVE TO EXECUTE THE PLAYS AND PLAY HARD-NOSED DEFENSE," HE SAID.

Hoop It Up!

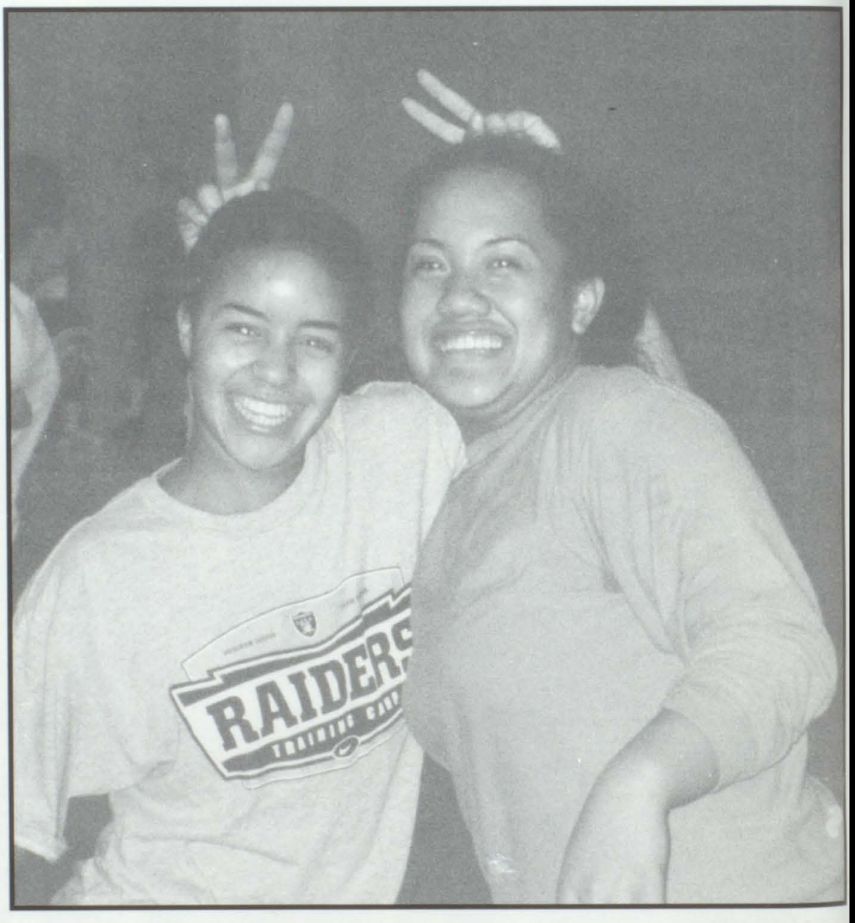
IT ALL STARTED WITH A GREAT PRE-SEASON, GOOD CAPTAINS, AND A GREAT COACH. WHEN ASKED ABOUT THE UP-COMING SEASON, THE GIRLS SEEMED PRETTY CONFIDENT. "ALL WE HAVE TO DO IS BEAT LOGAN AND MISSION, OUR HARDEST COMPETITION, BUT I THINK WE WILL GO UNDEFEATED," EXCLAIMED CAPTAIN CORY AUDIAT. THEREFORE, WHEN THE JUNIOR VARSITY GIRLS' BASKETBALL TEAM STARTED OFF THEIR SEASON BY SLAMMING ONE OF THEIR TOUGHEST ENEMIES, THEY GAVE EVERYONE HOPE. OUR LADY HUSKIES MADE US PROUD WITH THEIR VICTORY AGAINST LOGAN AND IT ALL WENT UPHILL FROM THERE. WITH A FOUR YEAR EXPERT FOR THEIR COACH, THE GIRLS WERE SURE TO MAKE WASHINGTON PROUD THIS YEAR. KEN BOHANAN HAD BOTH A SON AND A DAUGHTER AS SHINING STARS OF WASHINGTON'S VARSITY BASKETBALL TEAM, SO OF COURSE HE KNEW A LITTLE ABOUT THE GAME. HE LED THE GIRLS IN STRENGTH-ENDURING PRACTICES, AND MANAGED TO KEEP UP THE WASHINGTON JUNIOR VARSITY GIRLS' BASKETBALL TEAM'S REPUTATION. HOPEFULLY, THE TRADITION OF GREATNESS WILL CONTINUE IN THE YEARS TO COME.

ABOVE: TALK ABOUT FALSE ADVERTISING! THIS SCORE BOARD CHANGED AS SOON AS OUR LADY HUSKIES REDEEMED CONTROL OF THE BALL. THEY WENT FULL FORCE THAT NIGHT, AND CAME UP WITH A WIN AGAINST JAMES LOGAN HIGH SCHOOL.

LEFT: "YES!" JANELLE INDERKUM THOUGHT, AS SHE SHOWED EVERYONE SHE WAS READY FOR THE COLTS AT THE NEXT THURSDAY GAME AGAINST JAMES LOGAN HIGH SCHOOL.

ABOVE: THE MUSIC STARTED PUMPIN' WHILE CORY AUDIAT, IN THE LEAD, OUT RAN THE JUNIOR VARSITY LADY HUSKIES AT FULL POWER. CLEARLY THESE GIRLS KNEW WHERE THEY WERE HEADED.

ABOVE: CORY AUDIAT SHOWED OFF HER SKILLS WHILE TRYING TO GET POSSESSION OF THE BALL. APPARENTLY, ALL OF THOSE HOURS OF SCRIMMAGING PAID OFF AS SHE WAS FAST ENOUGH TO CATCH UP TO HER OPPONENT.



ABOVE: AFTER ALL OF THAT RUNNING, JUMPING, WEAVING, CATCHING, AND THROWING, RICHARDSON AND KUPAU WEREN'T TIRED. NO WORKOUT BEAT THEM; IT JUST MADE THEM STRONGER, AND THEY WERE STILL HAPPY AND SMILING!

ABOVE: "I'M OPEN. PASS IT TO ME!" LEAH DALTON YELLED TO HER TEAMMATE DURING ONE OF THEIR ENDURING PRACTICES. APPARENTLY, SHE WAS EAGER AND STILL BUSTING WITH ENERGY.

LEFT: "WHO'S OPEN? WHO CAN I THROW IT TO? WILL SHE CATCH IT?" ALL OF THESE QUESTIONS WERE RUNNING THROUGH JENNIFER ZELT'S HEAD AS SHE CONTEMPLATED WHERE TO THROW THE BALL.

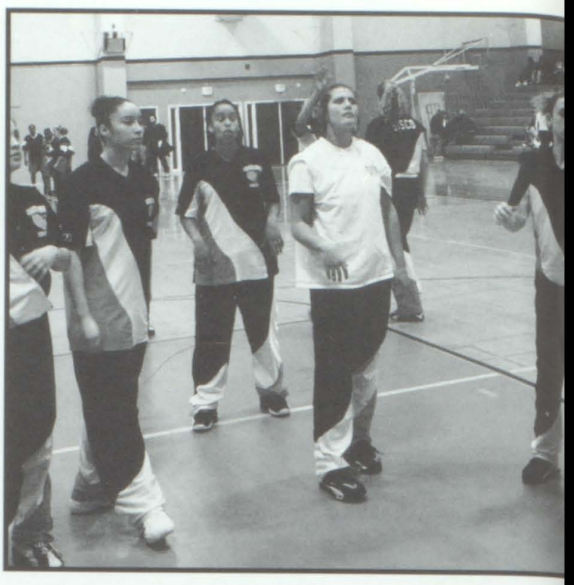
HOW GOOD COULD THIS GIRLS' BASKETBALL TEAM BE? PRETTY GOOD? HOW ABOUT AWESOME! THE VARSITY GIRLS' BASKETBALL PRE-SEASON ENDED 9-4 AND THEY HOPED TO WIN THE MISSION VALLEY ATHLETIC LEAGUE FOR THE THIRD YEAR IN A ROW. RETURNING SENIORS INCLUDED: FOUR-YEAR VARSITY STARTER AND CAPTAIN SARAH BOHANAN, CO-CAPTAIN JENNI MCLAIN, SARAH GREENE, AND CASSANDRA SISCO. JUNIORS MICHELLE CELINO, JACKIE BOOTH AND SOPHOMORE SOPHIA MILLER ALL HAD A STRONG SEASON AS WELL.

THE TIME AND EFFORT PUT IN BY THIS TEAM HELPED THEM TO ACCOMPLISH QUICKNESS, AGILITY, STRENGTH AND POWER TO WIN THEIR MATCHES. THEY HAD A REALLY YOUNG TEAM FULL OF EXCEPTIONAL TALENT THAT WILL HELP THEM IN THE YEARS TO COME. THEY HAD A GREAT PROGRAM THANKS TO THEIR COACH, MIKE IIJIMA. IF THIS CONTINUES, SO WILL THE TEAM'S SUCCESS.



ABOVE: DURING PRACTICE, VENETRA YOUNG, SOPHIA MILLER, JENNI MCLAIN, AND MICHELE CELINO WAITED FOR THE BASKETBALLS TO COME INTO THEIR HANDS. ONCE THEY GOT THE BALLS, THERE WAS NO WAY OF STOPPING THEM FROM MAKING TONS OF BASKETS.

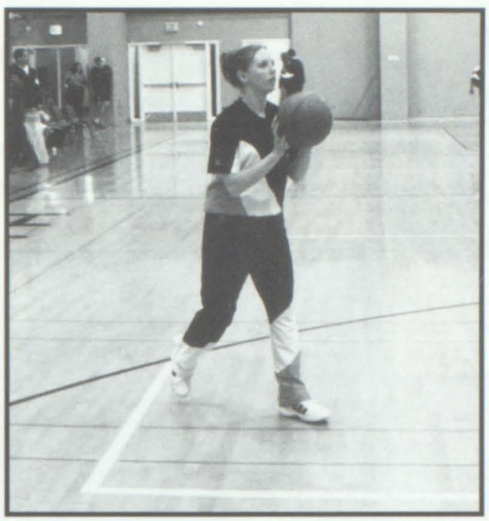
ABOVE: MICHELE CELINO FOCUSED HARD, FOR SHE WAS READY AND WILLING TO RECEIVE THE BALL AT ANY TIME. ONCE SHE GOT THE BALL, THERE WAS NO STOPPING HER.

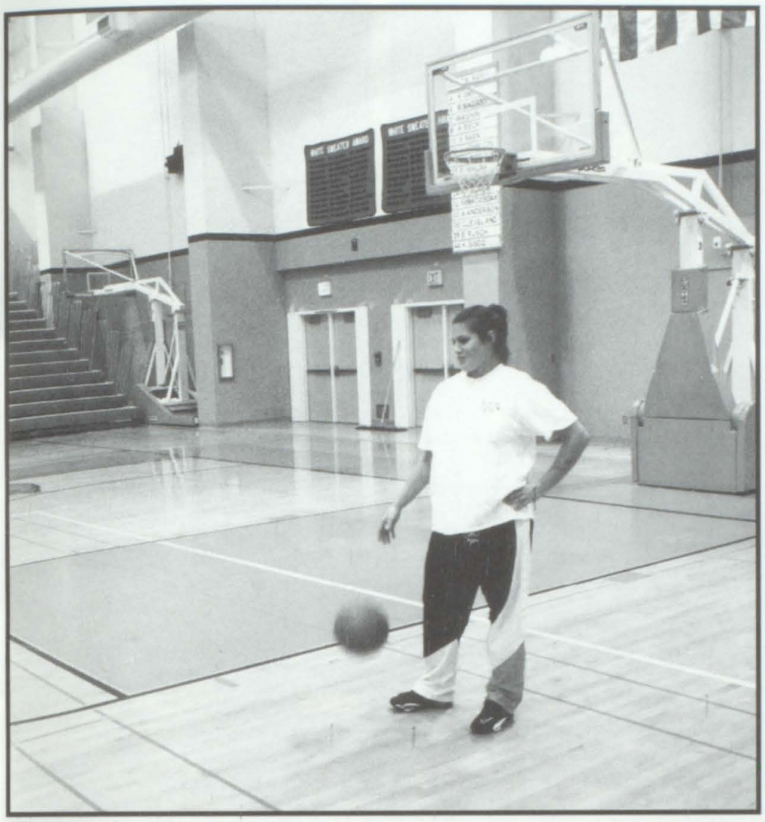
ABOVE: SARAH BOHANAN MADE A LAY UP IN PRACTICE, HOPING TO PUT HER TEAM AHEAD IN THE GAME AGAINST LOGAN. THEY ENDED UP WINNING THE GAME!

ABOVE: CASSANDRA SISCO, SARAH BOHANAN, JACKIE BOOTH, AADIKA SINGH AND SARAH GREENE STRETCHED THEIR ARMS OUT BEFORE SHOOTING SOME HOOPS SO THEY WOULD MAKE EVERY SHOT DURING THE GAME.

LEFT: THE GIRLS' VARSITY TEAM WAS READY TO BEAT LOGAN RIGHT WHEN THEY STARTED WARMING UP. YOU SAW HOW PUMPED THEY WERE IN THEIR COOL UNIFORMS.



LEFT: WITH PURE CONFIDENCE, SARAH GREENE WAS READY TO PASS THE BALL TO ANY ONE OF HER TEAMMATES ONCE THEY GOT OPEN.



ABOVE: JENNI MCLAIN WARMED UP IN PRACTICE BY DRIBBLING THE BASKETBALL. SHE PUMPED HERSELF UP AND WAS READY WHEN THE GAME BEGAN.

ABOVE: VENETRA YOUNG, JENNI MCLAIN AND SOPHIA MILLER QUICKLY GOT INTO THEIR END TO SCORE SOME POINTS. THEY HOPED DURING GAME TIME THAT THEY WOULD PUT THEMSELVES FAR AHEAD OF THEIR OPPONENTS.

KATIE MILLER PUT ON HER GAME FACE. INTIMIDATION.

THE JUNIOR VARSITY GIRLS' SOCCER TEAM HAD A TERRIFIC YEAR. THEY PLAYED WITH ALL THEIR HEART AND SOUL. THOUGH THEY DOMINATED NEARLY EVERY GAME, THEY NEVER LET IT GET TO THEIR HEADS. EACH GAME THESE LADIES CAME IN WITH THE ATTITUDE THAT THEY WERE NOT GOING TO LOSE. THEIR INSPIRATION CAME FROM A WONDERFUL COACHING STAFF. PATIENT AND PREVAILING, COACHES SINNOTT AND NEWRY WERE MORE THAN HAPPY WITH THE WAY THE SEASON WENT.

THIS YEAR WAS VERY PRODUCTIVE FOR THE GIRLS' VARSITY SOOCER TEAM. THEY HAD SOME KEY WINS IN THEIR SEASON THAT MADE THEM ONE OF THE TOUGHEST TEAMS IN THE MISSION VALLEY LEAGUE. THIS YEAR WAS A REBUILDING YEAR FOR OUR VARSITY TEAM. WITH SEVEN FRESHMEN ON THE TEAM, WE WERE BUILDING A TEAM THAT WILL DOMINATE THE LEAGUE IN THE FUTURE YEARS. Soccer is a sport that requires absolute dedication as well as complete determination. It is a very aggressive sport that can sometimes depend on just that. If someone wants to play Soccer it is something they better be sure of because with all the practices and games it can take up a large portion of their life.

Our Husky JV Boys Soccer Team had another terrific season this year. Composed of sophomores and freshmen all the players worked hard each practice and demonstrated their skills and talents at every game. There were tough competitors and they proved that they were one of the best teams in the MVAL. Several JV players went on to play with the Varsity Soccer Team in the NCS. Good job soccer players on another awesome season!

JUNIOR POWDERPUFF

THE JUNIORS HAD A BIG TEAM WITH HIGH HOPES OF A VICTORY. THEY CAME OUT WITH A WIN IN THE SCRIMMAGE, BUT THEIR PLAY IN THE ACTUAL GAME JUST WASN'T ENOUGH. THEY HAD PLAYERS WITH INDIVIDUAL TALENTS THAT THE COACHES COULD WORK WITH EASILY AND THAT HELPED THEM A LOT. THE GIRLS CAME OUT WITH GREAT MOTIVATION AND STRENGTH AND THAT'S WHAT KEPT THEM HOLDING THE SENIORS FROM SCORING MORE POINTS. IT WAS A GREAT GAME FOR THE JUNIORS AND NEXT YEAR WILL BE EVEN BETTER BECAUSE THEY WILL BE MORE KNOWLEDGABLE.

"Chicks Dig The Longball"

Hit the Ball Hard!

This year's JV Baseball team pulled out some unexpected wins. They were led by coaches Scott Sugden and Joe Ferreria.

This team had two of the league's top pitchers: Brandon Hess and Erik Miller. With one of these men on the hill, the defense could play a little more relaxed.

The talented infield included young prospects like Sean McElhaney and Troy Howard. These player promise to bring great gloves to the Huskies for years to come.

As far as hitting went, they had no problem with that either. Phil Eskew, Scott Martinez, Miller, and Hess were all returning players who made the offense what it was.

Overall, the team was young, but they could play.

Left: Just before the pitcher started his wind-up, this player took his initial lead off of first. He read the pitchers back foot and watched for the pick-off.

Left: The pitch came in and crossed the plate, but it was a ball. If the pitch wasn't in the zone, it was a ball.

Below: HEADS UP!!! The first instinct of a batter is to hit the ball. But when the ball is coming at your head, you usually get the heck out of the way.

The Dogg Pound Is Back!

Coming off a spectacular season, the JV tennis team had their hands full in living up to the legacy. The Huskies were not only out there to have fun, but also to prove that last year was no fluke. With only three returning players, there was a bundle of fresh faces anxious to hit the courts. Although the young pups lacked experience, they made up for it through hard work and the desire to win.

Below: Freshmen Doug Cheung stared in awe as he wound up to hit a forehand ground stroke. "Just keep your eye on the ball," he told himself.

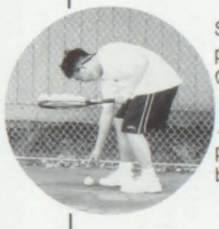
Where'd it go?

Sophomore Seymon Faynboym showed a little magic to his game. Just as he was about to hit the ball, he made his racquet disappear. "Watch out, David Copperfield," he said.

Dirty work



Sophomore phenom Danny Chang showed the bad side of tennis. "I hate picking up tennis balls," he said.

Love Means Nothing

Boys' Varsity Tennis

THE BOYS' VARISTY TENNIS TEAM WILL NOT BE THE SAME AGAIN. TWELVE PLAYERS MADE UP THIS TEAM AND TEN OF THEM WERE SENIORS. MOST OF THESE SENIORS HAVE PLAYED TOGETHER ON THE TEAM IN PREVIOUS YEARS AND THIS WAS THEIR LAST CHANCE TO LAUGH, PLAY, AND WIN TOGETHER. THIS TEAM WAS VERY SPECIAL TO MANY OF THE PLAYERS. THERE WAS A STRONG BOND BETWEEN EVERYBODY AND IT WAS COACH MACLEOD THAT KEPT THIS GROUP TIGHT-KNIT. MR. MACLEOD'S COACHING HELPED TO MAINTAIN A WINNING SEASON AND A GREAT TEAM ENVIRONMENT. THESE HUSKIES WORKED HARD AND THEIR EFFORTS DID NOT GO TO WASTE. THANKS TO THE COACH AND THE SEA OF PLAYERS THAT KEPT COMING OUT TO PLAY TENNIS, A STRONG FOUNDATION WAS SET AND THE TEAM WILL CONTINUE TO HAVE SUCCESS IN YEARS TO COME.

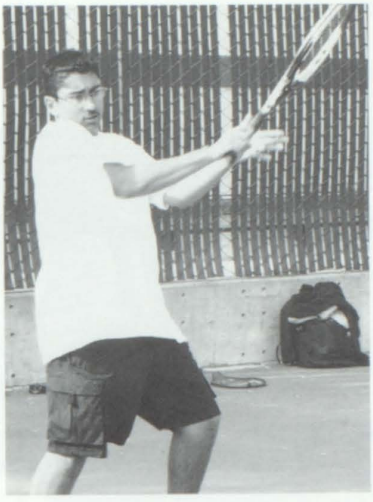
ABOVE: KEN DENG BENT HIS KNEES AND REACHED LOW TO GET TO THIS TOUGH BACKHAND. HITTING INCREDIBLE SHOT AFTER SHOT LIKE THAT ONE WAS WHAT GOT KEN ONTO VARSITY.

LEFT: DEREK YNZUNZA SET HIMSELF UP FOR THE BACKHAND AND SENT THE BALL FLYING BACK OVER THE NET OUT OF THE OPPONENT'S REACH.

BELOW: CHRIS GONZALES GOT DOWN LOW FOR THIS FOREHAND VOLLEY. WITH HIS PRECISE HAND-EYE COORDINATION, HE ANGLED THE SHOT PERFECTLY.

RIGHT: ALEX HUANG SPRINTED TO THE MIDDLE OF THE COURT AND HIT A GRACEFUL ONE-HANDED SLICE BACKHAND. THE BALL STAYED LOW AS IT WENT OVER THE NET MAKING IT DIFFICULT FOR HIS OPPONENT TO GET TO THE BALL.



LEFT: SAMIR PATHAK, RETURNING VARSITY SENIOR, SMASHED A BLAZING FOREHAND. HE HIT THE BALL SO HARD THAT YOU COULDN'T EVEN SEE IT ONCE IT LEFT HIS RACQUET.

Shared Their Thoughts

The Varsity team did extremely well this year. Newcomers like Kyle Payne will help carry the team in future years. Cody Ortmann and I have had a wonderful four years on the team, and wish everyone the best in the years to come.

~Tony Cimino

Swimming has been a blast. We went from an 8 man Varsity team, to 4, to being #1. There have been many individual powerhouses, but in a year or two our team will be a powerhouse as a whole. Besides, there won't be anybody left in practice to distract people . . . now that Tony and I are gone.

~Cody Ortmann

Right(L to R): JV swimmers Vince Guevara and Nathan Cox listened to the directions on what stroke was next in the strenuous list.

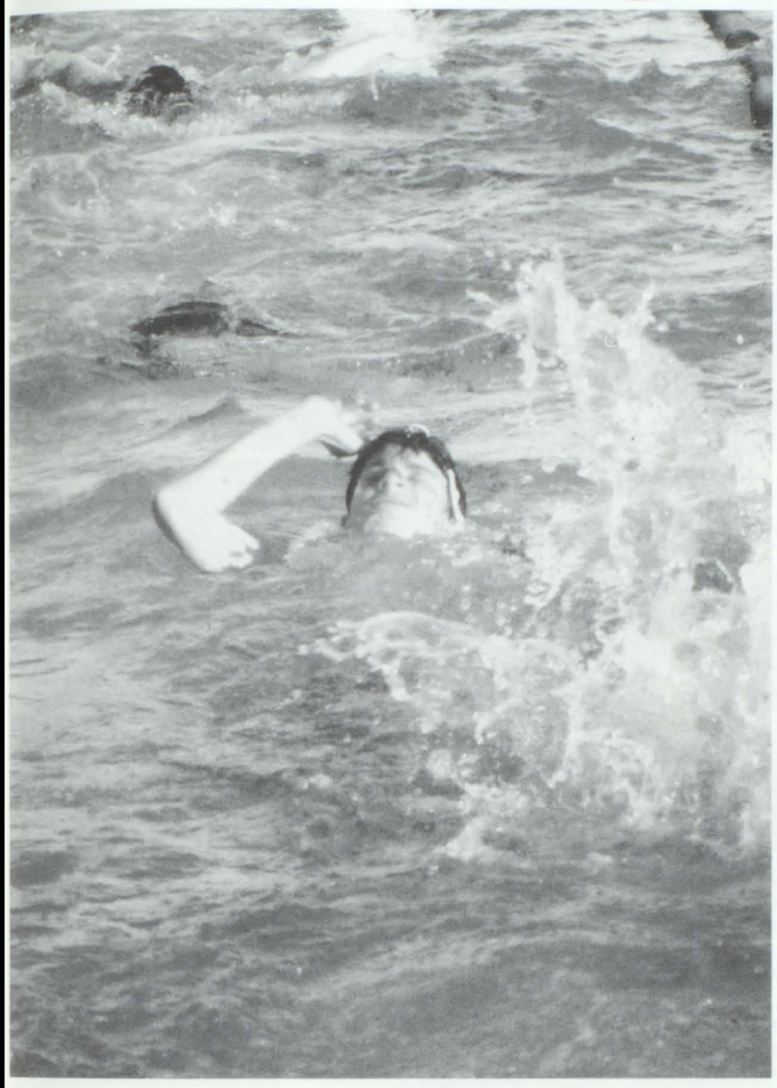
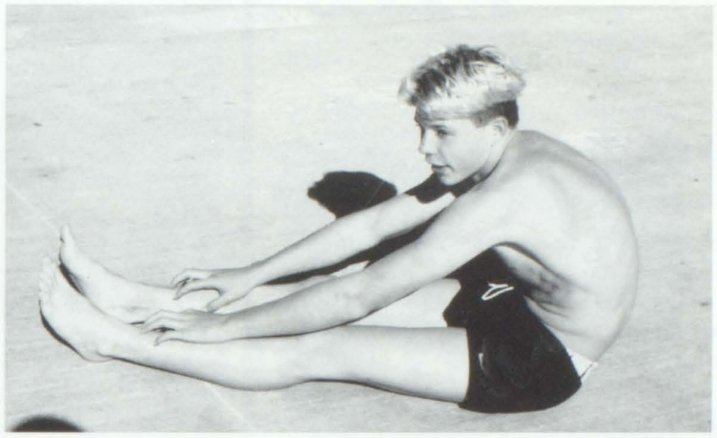
Bottom: JV swimmer, Ryan Willer, decided to take up the whole lane instead of sharing with his teammates while he finished up swimming his eight laps.



DIVING IN



Above: Varsity swimmer, James Yauch, stretched out all his limbs before getting into the water. This wasn't just a way to waste time now, was it?

Above: "Wait! I know the answer," proclaimed Brad Fuellenbach, a Varsity swimmer, as he followed his team in doing the back stroke. He was looking forward to the spaghetti feed that night!

Top: "Gosh, I must have swallowed a lot of water during this two hour practice," David Scott pondered as he swam. What else was the boy supposed to do?

SWIMMING

BELOW: (LEFT TO RIGHT) JUNIOR LINDSEY SAMPSON AND SENIOR LIESEL LANFERMAN WERE ALWAYS READY AND WILLING TO HALT THEIR RIGOROUS PRACTICE SCHEDULE TO SHOW US THEIR MATCHING BATHING SUITS. FAR RIGHT: MICHELE CELINO SWIFTLY SWAM HER BACKSTROKE TO GET IT OVER WITH AS FAST AS POSSIBLE. AS A JUNIOR, SHE SWAM EXTREMELY WELL AND WILL BE READY TO SWEEP ALL OF THE COMPETITION FOR NEXT SEASON.

WHEN SWIMMING AT VARSITY LEVEL, THE SWIMMERS NEEDED TO BE DEDICATED AND HAVE THE ATTITUDE OF WINNERS. THROUGHOUT THE SEASON, FRESHMAN VARSITY SWIMMER MARCI CLARK SHOWED THE SPIRIT OF A TRUE SPORTSMAN (OR WOMAN).

ABOVE: LEAGUE LEADER IN BREAST STROKE, ERIN HARVEY, EXERTED HERSELF AT ALL TIMES, WHETHER SHE WAS AT PRACTICE OR AT A MEET.

ABOVE: LIESEL LANFERMAN TOOK A QUICK BREATHER TO POSE FOR THE CAMERA. RIGHT: WHOEVER SAID THAT SWIMMERS' TANS ARE A BAD THING? BIANCA PARDINI, RHEANNA KEIPER, LINDSEY SAMPSON, AND BRITTA THYM SHOWED US THAT SWIMMING WELL WASNOT THEIR ONLY GOAL.

LEFT: COACH BERRY KEIPER OVERLOOKED THE HUSKY VARSITY SWIM TEAM IN HIS LAVISH CHAIR. AT SUCH A HIGH ALTITUDE, IT WAS AMAZING HE WAS ABLE TO SEE ALL THE SWIMMERS WITHOUT STRAINING HIMSELF.

BELOW: ERIN ROBERTSON(TOP), ERIN HARVEY, ASHLEY CORREIA, AND LAUREN ZIMMERMAN SEDUCTIVELY GLARED AT THEIR FANS WITH THOSE SWEET GOGGLES.

LEFT:THOUGH EASY TO VIEW, BREASTSTROKE IS A VERY TOUGH STROKE TO DO CORRECTLY. MELISSA MATUSZAK MADE THE STROKE LOOK A LITTLE TOO EASY, EVEN FOR THOSE WHO SWAM THE EVENT.

RIGHT: KRISTEN MATHRE WAS AS SWEET AS EVER THIS PAST SEASON. HER ECCENTRIC PERSONALITY ADDED AN EXTRA FLAVOR TO THE DULL PRACTICES.

ABOVE: VARSITY SWIMMER, LAUREN ZIMMERMAN, MADE BACKSTROKE LOOK EASY FOR THE NEWCOMERS. STREAMLINED AND SLEEK WERE THE THINGS THAT THE TEAM HAD TO COMPETE WITH THE ENTIRE YEAR. (NOBODY ELSE CAME CLOSE.)

ABOVE: NICOLE VARGAS LIKED A GOOD LAUGH, ESPECIALLY WHEN HER FRIEND, MELISSA MATUSZAK, SEEMED TO BE A LITTLE CAMERA SHY DURING PRACTICE. THE SWIMMERS WERE MORE CONCERNED WITH PRACTICE THAN WITH THE DISPLAY OF THEIR IMAGE.

LEFT: MICHELE CELINO STEPPED UP TO THE BLOCK AND WITH AN INTENSE ATTITUDE DOMINATED HER EVENTS. HER INTENSE LOOK INSTILLED FEAR INTO THE HEARTS OF ALL HER SWIM MATES.

THE GIRLS' SWIM TEAM SOARED THROUGH ITS COMPETITION THIS PAST SEASON. WITH ONLY ONE SENIOR PARTICIPATING, THE GIRLS' TEAMS WILL BE ABLE TO KEEP THEIR EDGE IN THE POOL FOR THE NEXT COUPLE OF YEARS. COACH BERRY KEIPER HAS BEEN ENTHUSED WITH ALL THE HARD WORK AND DEDICATION TO WHICH THE TEAM HAS DEVOTED THEMSELVES. THE ENERGY OF THE TEAM WAS ALWAYS FED, THOUGH, BY A PASTA FEED THE NIGHT BEFORE. THE PASTA AND GOSSIP WAS WHAT KEPT THEM FOCUSED ON SWIMMING.

Serving in a New Style

This year's badminton team was composed of strong and talented players. Not only did we have new members and new talents, we also had two new coaches. Last year's coach was unavailable this year, so two of our science teachers stepped into the position. Mr. Collo and Dr. Samples did their best to prepare the team for the season. Even though the team started practicing late, they were more than ready when the season started. Badminton might seem pretty easy to many people, but in reality it is not. Players need to be fast and strong and have agile foot work. Mr. Collo made the team run, do sit-ups and push-ups every day to build their strength. The team practiced 2-3 hours every day. To help individual players improve, the team held challenges among themselves every week. By doing this, a player could move up in postion on the team, and the same person wouldn't be in one postion for long unless he/she could hold onto it. The better the player was, the higher postion he/she could get on the team. It was all hard work but also fun. According to the team members, playing badminton kept them in shape as well gave them enjoyment.

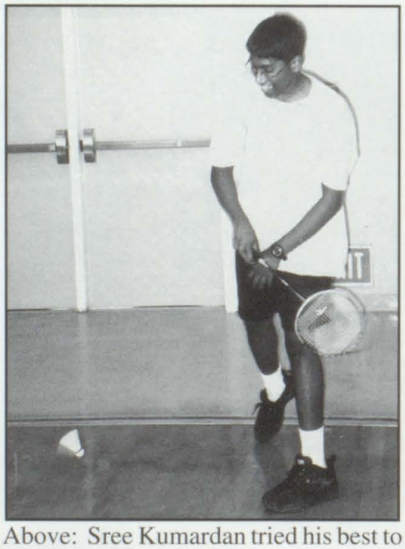
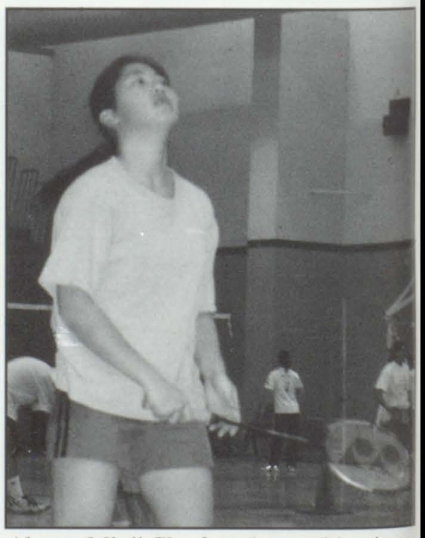
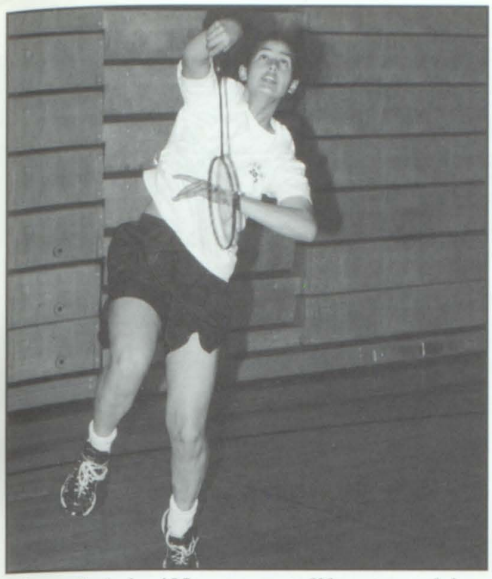
Above: "I got it," shouted Nancy Chu as she ran forward to hit the birdie.



Above: Sree Kumardan tried his best to catch the birdie before it hit the ground. His enjoyment for the game was clearly seen in his face.



Above: Minji Cho found something interesting in the gym's roof. Was it a UFO or a birdie she just hit??



Above: Lakshmi Narayan put all her strength into the game and sent a vicious swing. With that kind of play, she would be surely winning.

Above: Deepa Rayadurg tried to hit the birdie as her partner Sapna Nangrani watched. They worked well as a team for they knew the true value of team work.

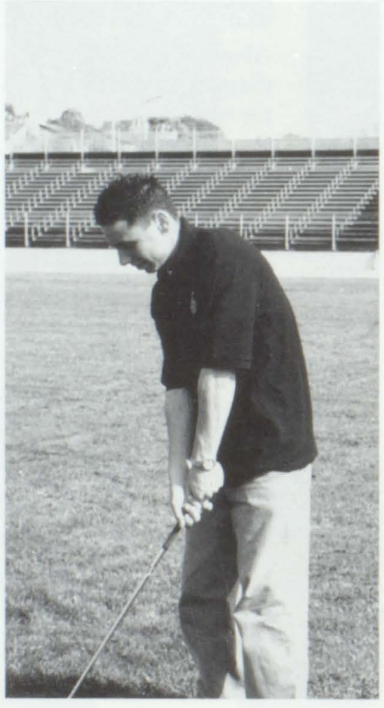
Boys Golf Team

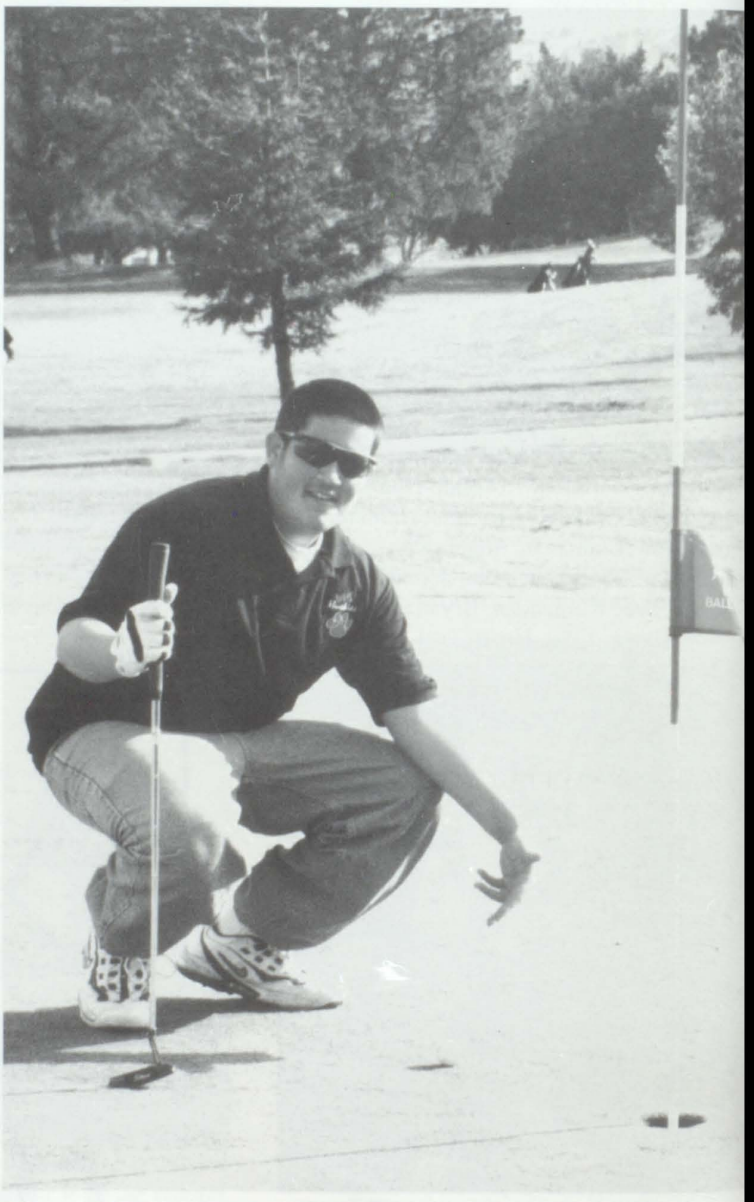
Washington offers students an opportunity to succeed in a variety of sports. Golf is a sport that has recently become more popular on campus. The team this year has developed into a determined 10 members. Led by Seniors Jacob Strong and Chris Corcoran, the golf team proved to be a strong force on the green. The golf team developed into a unified group looking for success. Even though golf is more of an individual sport, the team members hoped for a victory over all the other players. This year they looked forward to MVAL's and NCS with the promise of being named number one among all golf teams.

Above: Super Sophomore Jake Saito harnessed his "chi" as he gathered himself FORE his crucial putt. "I think I can, I think I can," he mumbled to himself.

Above Middle: Senior Jacob Strong showed off his textbook form, ready to smash the ball. "Tiger who?" he said.



Above: Junior Kyle Smith gathered his composure as he pictured the perfect swing in his mind. "Just relax, and breathe," he told himself. "Inhale the good and exhale the bad."



Above: With the flag flying at half-staff, sophomore sensation, Jake " I'm the man " Saito, paid tribute to his pal, Mr. Golf Ball who was ready to return to his cozy little home.

Left: Senior Jacob Strong followed through on his putt while waiting anxiously for the ball to drop into the cup. Players found the "ker-plunk" of the ball in the cup to be the sweetest and most rewarding sound of the game.

Below: Taking a swing on the fairway, Sophomore Jake Saito carefully followed his ball as it descended upon the green.

Far Left: Senior veterans, Jacob Strong and Chris "Corkey" Corcoran, showed their team spirit by sporting their sleek golf polos. " I'm too sexy for my shirt," they pretended.

The game of golf required strategy, concentration, and skill. When the time came FORE a match, mental and physical preparation had to be at its highest to achieve potential pars, birdies, and eagles. All the hard work and effort put into the game was well worth those proud moments that are remembered for a life time.

Boys JV & Varsity

Volleyball

The Boys JV and Varsity Volleyball team practiced everyday after school hoping to be the best they could ever be. During practices they warmed up, practiced drills, and worked on their skills. The team was lead by Captain Jeremiah Price, and three returning seniors: Harman Jhajj, Nathaniel Vincench, and Ali Mojaddidi. Senior Lucas Adra was a new player to the team this year, but proved that he was just as good as anyone else in no time.

The team was also made up of a lot of new talent. Washington looked like a good team to compete with in the years to come. This year's team focused their time and skills on being able to compete for league title. With a great captain and so many strong players, the team was very likely to leave Washington with a winning season. No doubt this team will continue to be great in the years to come as the fresh new faces are proving their talents and abilities.

"Without a good bump," said Vincench, "Your team is nothing." 3. Jeremiah Pricer watched the journey of the ball after he hit it while playing during practice. 4. Junior Varsity player, Steven Kontich showed other team players the defensive moves that he used. Be careful, now, don't fall back!

Varsity player, Lucas Adra, got up in the air to smack the ball into his opponent's face during a Washington vs. Kennedy volleyball game. The spike that Lucas was about to show was the strongest attack in volleyball.

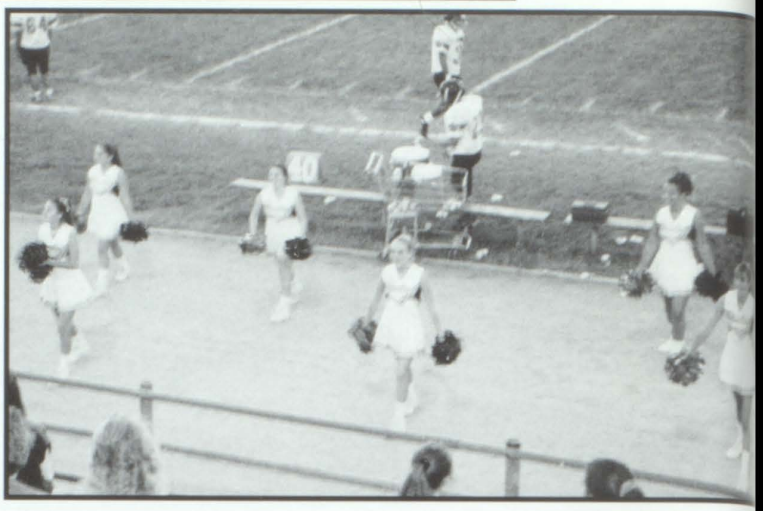
"One, we are the Huskies! Two, a little bit louder! Three, I still can't hear you! We are number one!"

J.V. CHEERLEADERS PLAYED AN IMPORTANT ROLE . NOT ONLY DID THEY ADD DEPTH TO THE "ART OF THE CHEER," THEY LEARNED TO DEVELOP THROUGH THEIR TERM IN J.V. BEFORE MOVING ON TO THE VARSITY SQUAD. THESE GIRLS GAVE CHEERLEADING AN ADDED BOOST AS THEY WORKED OR AND PRESENTED THEIR CHEERS AND STUNTS. WE WERE REALLY PROUD OF THEM AS THEY LOUDLY, YET SO GRACEFULLY, SHOUTED OUT THE CHEERS WITH HUSKY PRIDE. EVEN THOUGH WE MAY HAVE THOUGHT "OH, CHEERLEADING WASN'T AS DRASTIC AS THEY (CHEERLEADERS) MADE IT, " WE SHOULD LEARN TO APPRECIATE THEM. IF THERE WEREN'T ANY CHEERLEADERS, WHO WOULD CHEER THE FOOTBALL AND BASKETBALL PLAYERS ON AT THEIR GAMES? THE J.V. CHEERLEADERS LOOKED GREAT THIS YEAR AS THEY HAVE EVERY YEAR SINCE WE'VE STARTED CHEERLEADING. BEING A CHEERLEADER WAS HARD WORK AND UNLESS YOU'RE A CHEERLEADER YOU WOULDN'T KNOW. DUE TO THEIR DEDICATION AND TIME THEY HAD A WONDERFUL YEAR. WHEN WE INTERVIEWED MRS. SELCHO, SHE REVEALED HER TRUE FEELINGS ABOUT CHEERLEADING. SHE ENJOYED GETTING TO KNOW THE CHEERLEADERS ON A MORE PERSONAL LEVEL,OUTSIDE OF THE CLASSROOM. MRS. SELCHO HAS DONE A GREAT JOB THIS YEAR!!



THIS CHEER REQUIRED A LOT OF CONCENTRATION DUE TO THE FACT THAT THE POM-POMS HAVE TO BE DOWN AND COORDINATED AT THE SAME TIME. " YOU GO GIRLS!!!!!"

THE HUSKY CHEERLEADERS TOOK A STANCE,AND WERE READY AT THE DROP OF A DIME, TO CHEER THEIR LITTLE HEARTS OUT. NORMALLY THIS STAND CAME BEFORE A CHEER.

ABOVE: THESE GIRLS WERE "GETTIN JIGGY WIT' IT" AS THEY SHOWED US THEIR STUFF TWIRLING AROUND AND HAVING A GREAT TIME, DOING THEIR "THING."

TO THE RIGHT: KELLY YANAMURA WAS ENGAGING IN A TECHNIQUE CALLED A STUNT WHICH WAS VERY POPULAR IN THE CHEERLEADING WORLD. THE STUNT IS ALWAYS THE MOST EYE-CATCHING MOMENT OF A CHEER.

THE "GIRLS" WERE FIRED UP TO WIN, SO THEREFORE, THEY TRIED TO BOOST UP THE CROWD WITH A "WE GOT SPIRIT, HOW 'BOUT YOU?" CHEER. DIDN'T THEY LOOK GREAT?

THE ART OF THE CHEER

THE "GIRLS" SHOWED RESPECT TO THE HALFTIME SHOW BY GRASPING ARMS AND WATCHING SOMEWHAT ATTENTIVELY WITH GREAT ANTICIPATION OF THE NEXT DANCE MOVE. THEY ALSO SHOWED THE CROWD THAT AS A SQUAD THEY WERE UNITED AND ENJOYED EACH OTHER'S PRESENCE.

BELOW: TALK ABOUT TEAMWORK!!! WHS CHEERLEADERS EXEMPLIFIED THE FACT THAT THERE WAS NO "I" IN "TEAMWORK." WITHOUT THE HELP OF EACH OF THEM THIS STUNT WOULD HAVE BEEN IMPOSSIBLE TO SUCCESSFULLY PERFORM.

OUR SCHOOL'S CHEERLEADERS HAVE BEEN THE HUB OF ENTHUSIASM AND SUPPORT FOR VARIOUS SPORTS HERE AT OUR SCHOOL. TO MANY OF US IT MAY HAVE BEEN A SHOCK THAT THEIR PERFORMANCES DIDN'T NECESSARILY COME NATURALLY. OUR CHEERLEADERS ATTENDED A THREE DAY CAMP DURING THE SUMMER WHERE THEY LEARNED SUCH THINGS AS SIDE-LINE CHEERS, MAJOR DANCES, COMPLICATED STUNTS, JUMPS AND KICKS, AND HOW TO WORK TOGETHER AS A SQUAD. FROM THE MOMENT THEY STARTED THEIR DAY, THEY DID NOTHING BUT WORK AND EAT. MANY GIRLS TALKED ABOUT THE GRUBBIN' FOOD THEY WERE SERVED THERE BECAUSE IT WAS IMPORTANT TO THEM SO THEY COULD STAY HEALTHY AND KEEP THEIR ENERGY LEVELS VERY HIGH. SOME CHEERLEADERS EVEN LOST THEIR VOICES FROM CHEERING TOO MUCH! CAMP WAS AN EXPERIENCE FOR CHEERLEADERS TO COME TOGETHER AS A SQUAD, LEARN NEW IDEAS FROM OTHER SQUADS OR INSTRUCTERS, AND TO KICK THE YEARLY SPORT OFF WITH A POSITIVE OUTLOOK.

SINCE CHEERLEADING IS A YEAR- ROUND SPORT, IT TOOK AN ENORMOUS AMOUNT OF DEDICATION TO BE ON THE SQUAD. IT HAS BEEN THEIR JOB TO INVOLVE FANS IN POSITIVE SUPPORT FOR OUR SCHOOL'S ATHLETIC DEPARTMENT, REPRESENT OUR SCHOOL, AND KEEP AN UPBEAT ATTITUDE THROUGHOUT IT ALL. WITHOUT CHEERLEADERS THERE WOULD BE NO ONE TO SET AN EXAMPLE OF THE PRIDE EVERYONE SHOULD HAVE FOR OUR SCHOOL. KUDOS CHEERLEADERS, YOU'VE DONE A K-I-C-K-I-N' JOB!

ABOVE: SHANNON MATTINGLY AND ASHLEY SANCHEZ DISPLAYED WHAT FRIENDSHIP WAS REALLY ALL ABOUT. THESE SQUAD MEMBERS WERE GENUINELY EXCITED AFTER ANOTHER VICTORIOUS WIN BY THE ALMIGHTY HUSKIES.

Miranda Daniel led the pack as president of Interact this year. She held the bi-weekly meetings and played a major role in planning the club activities. Her leadership ablities guided the club through all of their service.

Ambika Sopory earned the role as vice president. Her enthusiasm fueled the club's energy. She was in charge of the club's wetland project for the past three years. When asked about her opinion of the club, she responded "It's really fun. It's a great experience because we meet so many people."

Fayiza Abbas was a busy club secretary. At every meeting she shared her bright ideas and recorded the club's minutes. She was in Interact since her freshman year and stated that "With 'Service Above Self' as our motto, we Interactors are constantly looking for ways to enhance our community."

Lacy Chittle was a responsible treasurer this year for Interact. Her duties included handling fundraising and keeping track of funds. With the approval of Mrs. Morse, Lacy made decisions on how to spend the club's treasury. Her incessant gift of giving urged others to open their hearts.

Interact was a community service club that was sponsered by Rotary International. The club was chartered on December 3, 1982, but the club's active adviser, Mrs. Morse, didn't join the team until 1991. Under her influence the club was able to have sponsored six orphaned children in Brazil. Some other accomplishments included coastal cleanups, saving fourteen acres of wetlands in Brazil, and visiting Atherton Court. There were around seventy Interact clubs in the Bay Area which made the club's impact much stronger. Each time they reached out they touched people's hearts.

5 THINGS TO DO AT A CLUB MEETING

UPCOMING ACTIVITIES

The main focus of a club meeting was to discuss the upcoming events to alert club members.

SNACK TIME

Since most club meetings were held at lunch time, members brought in their food to munch on as the officers spoke.

BRAINSTORM

Active officers and members brainstormed how to spend the money that they collected through their activities and the items they received through their drives.

SURVEY

Officers received feedback from members and friends in forms of criticism and praise.

LEISURETIME

After topics were discussed and ideas were shared, members sat back and relaxed.

Actions speak Louder than words

Washington's C.A.P. (Community Assistance Program) has been around since the beginning of last year. Chrissy Lemmon has been president for both years. C.A.P.'s purpose was to give students a chance to fulfill their five hours of community service. Each month they tried to have at least one event. Some of the projects that they completed were making candy bags for Tri-City volunteers, serving dinners at Tri-City Coalition and at Centerville Free Dining, and running a collection drive for pajamas that they donated to charity. In the years past the club has also participated in Habitat for Humanity. Each member opened up their hearts to experiences that most students never got the chance to do.

Taking Time To Care

Do you enjoy hearing engaging stories from beyond your time? Do you like lending a hand to others? If so, the Crossing the Bridge club is for you. Crossing the Bridge focused mainly on visiting Atherton Court in Fremont where the members brought bright smiles and warm hugs. Members spent time sharing stories with and caring for the elderly. Members learned how to communicate better with every hour. The club met a couple of times each month to discuss their monthly plans and progress. Each member opened up their hearts to an experience that most students never undergo.

Above: Shannon Mattingly and Stephanie Dillon absolutely loved the Close-Up trip. One of their favorite experiences was when they got to see the White House. They couldn't hold their emotions inside and just had to embrace and blow kisses to display their sense of joy.

Up Close and Personal

Close-Up once again made its annual journey to our nation's Capitol, Washington D.C.. For an entire week, Students were able to see many historical and famous landmarks throughout the city. Teachers from the social science department rotate the position as adviser every few years. This year, advisers Mr. Jones and Mr. Witter and the club visited and observed many historical sites. First, they spent two days in Williamsburg, Virginia. From there, they traveled to Washington, D.C. Some of the most memorable parts of the trip were seeing the Smithsonian, Capitol Hill, and meeting Congressman Pete Stark. The trip was an invaluable life experience for all 27 members, because they got the opportunity to see the workings of the government up close, not just pictures of it. Many students who went this year planned on going next year also, and encouraged others to do the same.

Right: Jennifer Lee, Lauren Ogata, and Shannon Mattingly didn't let a little cold weather dampen their spirits. They were all smiles as they prepared to take a tour of the Capitol Building.

Above: Only hundreds of feet of hidden security separated Elizabeth Chivers, Laura Martino and Jill McCubbins from the White House. They were content to just admire it from behind an intimidating steel fence, until a tour guide directed them into the building.

Below: In their two-day stop at Williamsburg, Virginia, the members of Close-Up met some very interesting people. Lauren Ogata(on left) and Jennifer Lee(on right witha friend) posed with Mr. Wyth, an actor playing the part of the mentor of Thomas Jefferson.

Right: Before the trip, Close-Up held a banquet for the attending members. Becky Ellingson, Sarah Greene, Shannon Mattingly, and Mr. Jones were in good spirits after the delicious food and drink as they anticipated the trip.

Women on a Mission

Left: Chrissy Lemmon was one of the most dedicated members of W.O.W. this year. She showed leadership by actively participating in the meetings. Here she was drawing up plans for a community service by the club.

Below: Christina Covalt, Miranda Daniel, and Valerie Miller were enthusiastic about the new club. Apparently, Miranda wanted to display the empowerment of women by flexing her biceps.

...that all people are created equal...

This year, the Women of Washington Club was formed. Mrs. McIntosh, pictured on the left, served as the adviser. The idea for the club came from some of the members. The purpose of the club was to get the message across to women that they don't have to be so self-conscious and that they are equal to men. The club also serves as a place for anyone to go to for counseling. Members also learned about self defense and women's rights. The club also performed community service with many organizations which helped women and their children. Anyone nterested in women's issues should consider joining W.O.W.

Good Grades Pay Off in the Long Run

The California Scholarship Federation, better known as CSF, was one of the largest clubs in school this year. English teacher Mr. Wallach was once again the adviser. CSF specializes in helping members earn scholarships for their education after high school. Every year, the club selects at least one college campus to visit so that members have an idea of what their college experience may be like. This year, the club selected UC Santa Cruz as their destination. Members were required to have strong GPAs and be interested in exploring their possible destinations for college. If seniors graduated with a specific amount of CSF membership, they were eligible for scholarship money for college. If this description fits you, then check out CSF!

Right: Senior Alex Holmes was forced to split his attention between Mr. Wallach's voice and his boiling hot Cup-O'-Noodles. Only a person of Alex's intelligence could think to himself "The membership fee is due when?" and "Is this really beef?" at the same time.

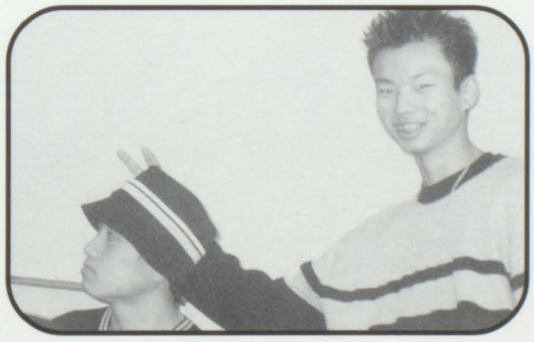
Back Row: Joann Hu, Kimmi Grewal, Shalini Jayakumar, Cheng Hao Schu, Brian Hashimoto, Tony Cimino, Alex Huang, Samir Pathak, Raman Naraya, Amrinder Singh, Sree Kumandan, Chris Desai, Ernest Lin, Philip Ponsaran, Brandon Sabado. Next Row: Chris Kim, Deepa Rayadurg, Shweta Pracaoh, Lacey Chittle, Miranda Daniel, Mary Wu, Karman Li, May Wu, Nelson Amaral, Chery George, Marilou Alejo, Ajay Kurani, Eugene Shapiro, Nisha Shah, Next Row: Aadika Singh, Maria Clariza, Tammy Choi, Annie Lin, Jagdeep Sroa, Carol Freire, Nancy Wu, Minji Cho, Morgan Kanninen, Henry Tsai, Kimmi Lowe, Desmond Cheung, Alice Lin, Pamela Yamamoto, Nive Lin Chu, Yin Yin Aung, Linh Hua. Front Row: Officers Jeff Fisher, Jessica Moore, Ambika Sopory, Eunji Cho.



Although CSF is made up of many successful and intelligent students, it also had its share of pranksters. Junior Ernest Lin maturely made a friendly gesture behind his unknowing victim, senior Desmond Cheung.

Volleyball tournaments, food fairs, and candy sales were things Afghan Club did for fundraising. They participated in Multicultural Week every year with dances and a Fashion Show. Not only this, they also performed in a Cultural Show on Dec 4 at the Fremont Main Library. A holiday called 'EID' was celebrated with other Afghan Clubs from Fremont by having a celebration at Round Table. At the end of the year, they had a barbecue where everyone was invited.

They held many fundraisers to raise money for the Indian charities and went to the Indian temple to do community service. Every year they participated in the cultural show hosted by Fremont and Union City.

All United as One (ACA)

Would you like to be in a club that has a lot of fun and includes a lot of cultures? Then ACA(Asian Culture Association) was the club for you. This club studied many Asian clutures, but they did it in such a stimulating way that you would never be bored at the meetings. Best of all you didn't have to be an Asian to join ACA. They planned field trips to college campuses, San Francisco, and even planned to go to Chinatown to have some Chinese food. ACA also had a penny drive to help the victims from Taiwan's earthquake.

FCAA (Filipino Culture Awareness Association) was a young club that started in 1997, but they had managed to grow into a big club with 45 active members. They planned a field trip every year and had a dance with other FCAA clubs from the other schools. These activities helped the members to meet more people and make new friends. But all these activities were not just planned by officers. They also took into consideration what the members wanted. They had a suggestion box where the members could put in new ideas for activities and could inquire about the Philippines. At the end of the year the club did a cultural slide show with ASB.

Left: Drama Club Adviser and drama teacher, Ms. Porter, worked tenaciously to produce and direct the various dramatic and comedic productions. This past year's Variety Show proved her incredible ability. Not to be forgotten, Ms. Crothers, our other drama teacher, stunned us with her incredible directorial debut with the production of "Oedipus."

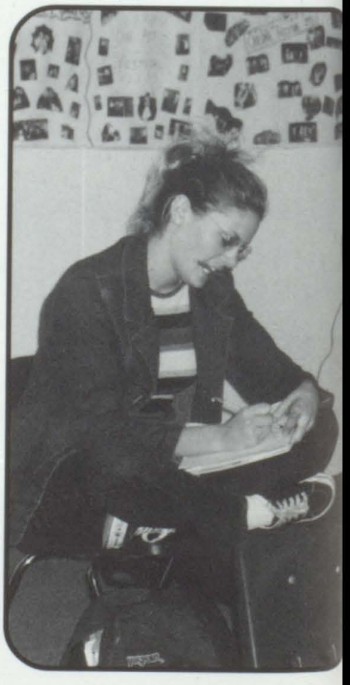
Above: Sabeen Ali shared an instructional moment with Nick Noard as they debated over whose invisible baby alien was more precious. Improvisational skits like these sharpened their skills and honed their dramatic craft.

Right: Gorgeous and talented Tonya Glanz studiously took notes as she listened to Ms. Porter's directorial comments as students prepared for the Variety Show. Tonya, one of the M.C.'s, gave a smashing performance.



Swing

Christina Sweeney (on the left) offered her services to review what they learned from the last meeting as Hilda Maurera looked on.

Left:
Hilda Maurera enjoyed her moment to shine as she practiced to perfect her swingin' ability.

Below:
Valerie Jonutz was the president of the Swing Club. Her knowledge and talent made the club the success it was. Valerie was very important to the development of the club because her interest in the history and style of swing made her an expert on the subject.

Swing? What is swing? Is it a dance or is it a club? It was both! Swing is a certain type of dancing that was very popular in the 1920's. It was also a great club that allowed you to learn the dance and meet great people. As we progressed through the decades of this century, swing stayed with us. If you joined the club, you would have learned how to "get down" swingin' style. This year Valerie Jonutz was the president and she taught her fellow members all the wonderful fundamentals of swing. Valerie's talents shone through like a ray of sunshine. In addition, the adviser, Mr. Kellersberger gave up many lunches to watch the club members learn the dance and have a great time doing it. He also brought knowledge of music to the club which was an important asset. We hope to see the Swing Club around for many years to come. Not only was it fun, it's a part of history.

Arnold Stovall attentively studied Valerie Jonutz's swing as he tried to get the steps down pat.

"It don't mean a thing if you don't got that swing"

The adviser of the Writers' Club was Mr. Perlman who was perfect for the position. Not only was he the adviser, but he was an English teacher. He proofread the magazine while enjoying it at the same time.

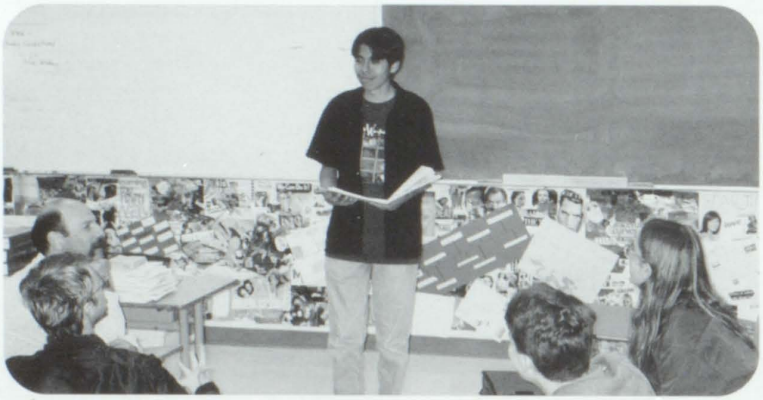
The Writers' Club taught its members the basic fundamentals of a successful piece of work. They put together a wonderful literary magazine at the end of the year, with the help of the yearbook class. The literary magazine consisted of brilliant poems, short stories, and epics that the club members contributed. The club wouldn't have been a success without the intelligence of Mr. Perlman. He was an awesome advisor and teacher. He directed his members toward their writing goals and they conquered.

the write stuff

Mr. Perlman helped a club member, Jonathan Libby, with the editing of his entry to the literary magazine.

Melina Avery raised her hand to be acknowledged so that she could share her thoughts on the literary magazine.

"The pen is mightier than the sword"



David Aguilar read one of his submissions as fellow members listened with amazement at his ability to write so well.

The masterminds behind the Writers' Club were very talented. Often the club has gone unrecognized, but without these people it wouldn't have been what it was.

Sheila Harris and Jasmine Brody engaged in a little horseplay as they ate their lunch and enjoyed an afternoon in the wonderful world of writing.

Kelly Cavanaugh and Misty Stafford discussed what they felt about the background of the Writers' Club. They pondered the fact that they had a deadline to meet and how they were going to achieve it.

Express Yourself!

"Quality not Quantity" was one of Deca's mottos this year. The motivation they had to create this motto was due to the class being relatively small. It started out big, but in the end there was only a rough estimate of nineteen determined students who were excited to learn about Deca.The objective of the class/club was to teach students how to succeed in the business world and conquer life successfully. They went to competitions and competed in various sections of merchandising and marketing. They prepared all the way up until the beginning of December for the competitions. The took a test called the Deca Knowledge Test which helped them to prepare for the test at the competitions. The point of the competitions were to test the knowledge they learned in class and to test their ability to enter the real world. Jeannie DelRio was the teacher/adviser of Deca and did a fabulous job of educating her students in the true meaning of Deca. Due to the fact that this was Mrs. DelRio's second year teaching she showed ability to reach out to her students as though she had been teaching for many years. We hope that we see her talent for years to come.

Above: Mrs. Delrio, Adviser, was an important asset to the Deca class/club. She contributed her knowledge and wisdom which made them successful in life, in and out of school.

Below: Monica Chavez diligently worked on a marketing and merchandising activity which enhanced her knowledge of Deca.

Below: Trevor DeBenning was the class/club president of Deca. Above accomplishing the position of president in his first year as a member, he placed in many events and areas. When asked what he thought of Deca, his reply was, " Deca is the future period!"

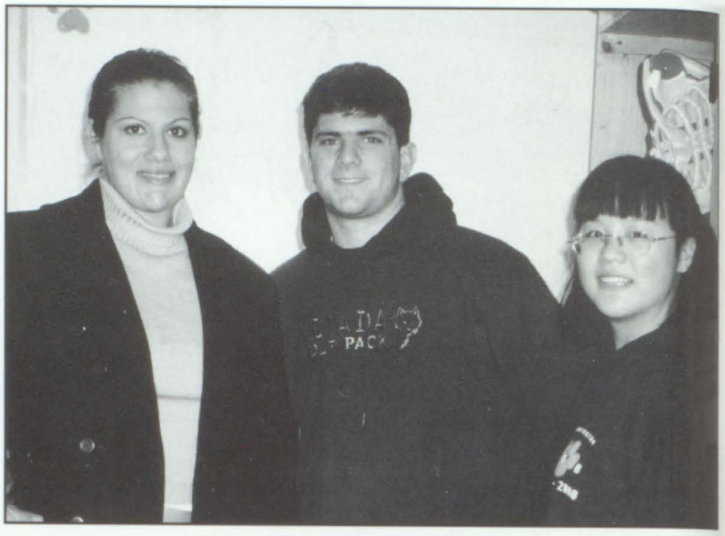
Building A Strong School

Associated Student Body

Right: Natalia Headley served the school as our ASB treasurer this year. She was in charge of all the school funds.



Above: (L-R) Jenni McLain (President), Tony Cimino (Vice President) and Nancy Wu (Secretary), were three of the four officers who led our student body with their leadership skills into the new Millenium. They brought us from an old century to a new century with safety and high hopes.

Above: The student council met frequently. This was where many important decisions that would affect our whole school were made. (L-R) Marilou Alejo, Christina Sweeney, Sharlene Capas, Joann Hu, Nancy Wu and Jenni McLain.

Over the past 100 years, Washington High School has evolved as not only the first school in Fremont, but also as the top. Our students stood strong, as did our new facilities, and we hope it will for many years to come. Perhaps that was the reason why many of us chose to represent our students and school as this year's ASB officers. Our goal was to keep students' spirit high, create new traditions, and unite our students. We had finally attained that.

Washington will undergo many more changes, as it has already. The facilities at our school were the best in the district, including the gym, cafeteria, new building, our pool, Tak Stadium, a large, open campus, and beautiful landscape. We also had a new amphitheater. Although it took a lot of time, effort, and money, it was finally here!! The changes we were able to see and live through at Washington had been great. We had much to be thankful for at our school. At the heart of the school was the Student Center, where many hours were put in everyday from the Student Council members. From making posters to rallies, organizing clubs to maintaining relations with Mrs. Duran, we all worked for the spirit of Washington. As ASB officers, we were very proud of our council members, as we knew each person contributed in every way possible to make this an even better school. No individual can do this on their own, and no ASB can do it without such a strong adviser as we had in Mr. Mangini. His effort and faith helped us immensely.

To all the council members, students and staff, thanks for letting us represent you. It has been a great year.

Viva La France!

Left: Member Andy Arnold talked excitedly about the plans for the club's trip to Europe." I can't wait to see the Hall of Mirrors in Versailles!"

Disneyland de Paris? Le Louvre? Le Tour Eiffel? Where to go? What to see? These were the questions running through every French Club member's mind this year. They spent some of their meetings uniting with the German club in order to plan their big trip to Europe. With so many exciting places to visit, and so little time to see them all, it was amazing that they actually managed to plan it. Of course, that wasn't the only event of the year. They also tasted many French foods, and went to some French restaurants. They spent their time studying and admiring the French culture in every way possible. And what a fun way to go about it. In order to explore this culture, you didn't have to speak French, you just had to have an interest in the French people, culture, and lifestyle.

Top Row: Madam Kamei, Dania Ibrahim, Mary Wu, Emma Sandoe, Katie Newray Second Row: Heather Mori, Eric Ooi, May Wu, Minji Cho, Maria McCauley, Christy Patten

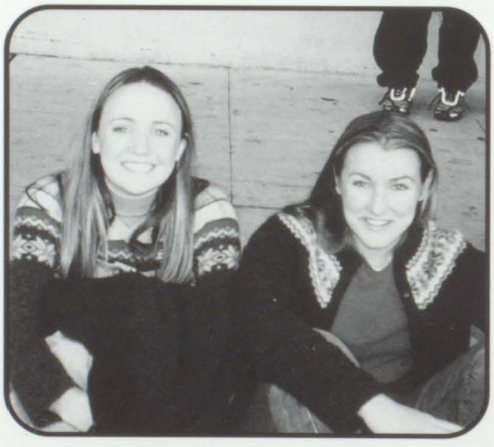
The German club was a fun, interactive way to learn more about the good side of Germany. The members went to German restaurants, watched German films, went to various German events, did some fundraising, and even performed a splash of community service this year. On top of that, they all worked together on reaching their goal of going to Europe. That way they could see first hand everything that they were studying.



Right: Megan Terry and Chrissy Freeman showed their pearly whites as they sat on the curb waiting for a bus to take them on their adventure to Alcatraz in San Fransisco. The only real challenge of course was speaking German during the entire trip.

Left: Member Eric Heinze may not have looked amused, but he was actually very excited about the intense conversation about their trip to Europe.

Right: Mary Ingenthron laughed at fellow club member Kyle Frazier as he snoozed away during their trip to Alcatraz.

Many Minds, One Heart

Like most clubs at Washington High School, no one who went to any of the Gay Straight Alliance meetings this year was sent away. No matter what your sexual orientation, you were welcome at this club. All students were urged to come and share their opinion, or listen to their many important discussions in confidentiality. Best of all, this club spent time helping out confused students. The Gay Straight Alliance was formed only a year ago, and it is still going strong. Hopefully, it will get even bigger and better in the years to come.

Above: Mr. Mince was the club adviser again this year. He took pride in the club, and plans to be the adviser again next year.

WE make the DIFFERENCE

Right: Sarah Foster happily wrote a list of all the meeting's attendees before they began. There appeared to be a pretty big turn out this year.

They made Red Ribbon week flyers to touch our hearts, formed a Big Brother/Big Sister group, helped our community, and welcomed our new students. Peer Counseling accomplished it all this year. They decided what they needed to do, and they did it. And it was pretty easy with all of the new members. Of course, the more the merrier, and they hope to have more members next year.

Helping Us Succeed

Boosters- Helping our Washingtonian athletes be the best participants they can be through caring and hard work.

PTSA- Seeing that all sides of the story are given the attention they deserve.

Each month during the school year, parents, teachers, students, and members of our wonderful community gathered together to assist with Washington High School's greatest assets: the students. The interests of the members of the PTSA and Boosters Club went further than just promoting their personal goals at this school. They ensured that every student at Washington had a memorable time here without total chaos. Without these few, but wonderful people, we would not have been able to fully enjoy all the fruits that our school had to offer. Thank you very much for all the hard work and time you have invested into these clubs.

BOOSTERS CLUB

The Boosters Club was dedicated to assisting with the ever-changing needs of our school's athletes. It helped all sports with financal aid when needed. Without the support from the Boosters our sports would still be using old equipment. Thank you, Boosters!

PTSA

The Parent Teacher Student Association was the voice between the parents, the teachers, and the students here. They made sure that all the participants were in coordination with one another so the meetings ran smoothly.

Athletic Representatives, Lauren Ogata and Tara Tabrizi, worked in conjunction with the Boosters Club throughout the entire year. They were an accurate voice of the needs of students who participated in our elite sports programs. Since they themselves were students here at Washington, they knew what was working and what was not working, and then brought their ideas to the meetings.

PTSA Representatives April Rogers and Shannon Messerly worked avidly throughout the duration of the school year. They attended meetings regularly to inform the parent and teachers of the needs that the student body had. They acted as the voice of the students, and did quite well. Without their help, the vital connection with the students would never have been made.

Paving the Way of the Future

Without the hard work and dedication of Mr. Mangini (left) and President Tony Cimino (Right), the Rep Assembly this year would not have been as productive. They made sure that both the school administrators and the Associated Student Body knew exactly what the needs of the students at this school were. Mr. Mangini and Tony carried out their positions with responsiblity and dedication throughout the entire year. As with everything, they could not have done their jobs without the everlasting dedication put forth by the students that made up the Rep. Assembly. Thank you.

3rd Period Rep. Assembly

The 3rd Period Rep Assembly was composed of students who wanted to be heard in the school. They met every month to discuss topics that directly affected them. We thank all the reps that helped do this hard task.

The Academic Society's annual Brain Bowl Tournament provided intellectual stimulation for nineteen teams who challenged each other in a double elimination tournament to find out which team would be crowned as Brain Bowl champions. Participants formed their own teams of four and came up with their own creative team names. Names included "Straight Outta tha Boondocks," "The Sexual Intellectuals," and "Zlatnik's Zany Zoologists." Each match lasted for two ten-minute halves, and teams were eliminated from the tournament after losing their second game. In the finals, the Nightlife Brigadeers defeated the Sexual Intellextuals to be crowned the winners of Brain Bowl 2000. After the tournament, the Academic Society sent the players who answered the most questions to the Bay Area Academic Championship to represent the school. This year, Mr. Miller and Sr. King served as co-advisers to the club. Philip Ponsaran was the president, Sreekanth Kumandan was the vice president, Amrinder Singh was the treasurer and Lakshmi Narayan was the secretery.

Is That Your Final Answer?

Below: Nelson Amaral, Alex Huang, and Heath Holguin, formed part of the Sexual Intellectuals. Apparently, Nelson was too mesmerized by the speed of Heath's reflexes to answer the question, while Alex stared blankly into space for an answer.

Right: Desmond Cheung, Samir Pathak, Chery George, and Peter McClure formed The Goobers. Samir and Peter raised their arms in exclamation as they answered another question correctly on their way to victory.

Left: Philip Ponsaran and Eugene Shapiro, half of Straight Outta Tha Boondocks, thought silently to themselves, but you could almost hear the sound of "Duuuuuuuuhhhhhhhh..," coming out of their ears.

Above: Minji Cho, Eunji Cho, Nancy Wu, and Marc Chiesa formed The Omnipotent Buh-Phoons. Minji, Eunji, and Marc struggled desperately with the question while Nancy appeared to be more interested in applying her lip gloss than answering.

Below: Eugene Shapiro, Morgan Kanninen, Carol Freire, and Ed O'Hara formed an intimidating team that represented Washington well at academic competitions this year.

Above: Christine Coenen didn't let the pressures of competition get to her. As long as she had her trusty pencil and calculator at hand, she was smiling and confident.

Above: Eddie Culin had the correct answer on the tip of his tongue. So, using traditional trivia game strategy, he began to chew on the eraser of his pencil and raised one of his eyebrows.

Above: Henry Tsai didn't seem nervous at all before his upcoming game. He was confident in knowing that his intellectual knowledge exceeded that of anyone else who had ever lived.

Intellectual Athletes

Above: The Academic Decathalon Club included adviser Mr. Collo, Eugene Shapiro, Henry Tsai, Eddie Culin, Ed O'Hara, Christine Coenen, Carol Freire, Morgan Kanninen, and Meredith Avery.

The Academic Decathalon Club was made up of a group of students who were interested in competing in trivia competitions. Under the guidance of Mr. Collo, members spent hours after school each day studying a variety of subjects. The club was composed of a variety of students with many different grade point averages. Besides studying for competition, members were required to write, memorize, and recite speeches. The many weeks of studying prepared the club for organized competitions in which they competed against Academic Decathalon clubs from many other schools. At the competions, the questions were all multiple choice, except the Super Quiz, in which members had to form and recite answers in front of everyone. Eugene Shapiro and Morgan Kanninen received medals for their efforts at the end of the year. The members of the club were later rewarded for all of their hard work by going on a trip to Los Angeles.

Right: Club officers Chanel Salinas, Marisela Baca, and Paras Patel filled up on good food at a lunch time meeting. The love of food went hand in hand with the love of the language.

Below: Smokin'! Justin Patel and Calley Gabbert showed off their stylish salsa moves at the concert. Judging by the way Justin stared away, though, they probably didn't see eye to eye.

Below: The Spanish Club met for a charming group pose. Clockwise: Anthony Schollar, Marisela Baca, Albert Herre, Chanel Salinas, Paras Patel, Bindi Patel, May Soe, Christina Sweeney, Ms. Bottoms, Nancy Chu, Marilou Alejo

Below: Ms. Bottoms, the Spanish Club adviser had style and class as she danced away with Ms. Gimeno. Her fun-loving attitude and fluency in Spanish made her the perfect adviser for the club.

The Spanish Club was a new addition to the list of groups Washington students could join this year. With the help of Mrs. Bottoms and some espanol loving students, the Spanish Club was started from scratch in November. Among lunchtime meetings and activities, the club hosted an on-campus salsa workshop. The concert, which was held in the gym, involved a Latin Jazz performance by the group "Passion and Grace" and gave salsa dancing lessons to the Spanish students that attended. As the club continued to grow, they had more fun activities. So if you had a passion for Latin culture, this was the place for you.

Youth Alive!

Below: "Do you deliver?" Mr. French was busy arguing with a Yellow Pages' administrator. Being the Youth Alive adviser inspired him and made it fun for all the members. If it wasn't in there, maybe it didn't exist.

Youth Alive was one of the largest clubs this year with roughly 80 members. Each month students participated in four different activities. "A week" was for accountability with prayer and share. "C week" was for challenge with speakers from the community. "T week" was for testimony where students shared their life experiences. "S week" was for seek with outreach activities and games. The club itself, though, was for fun and friends, that linked everyone with a common Christian tie. Anyone could join and participate in activities like "See You at the Pole" or boy vs. girl games. Youth Alive continued to grow throughout the year.

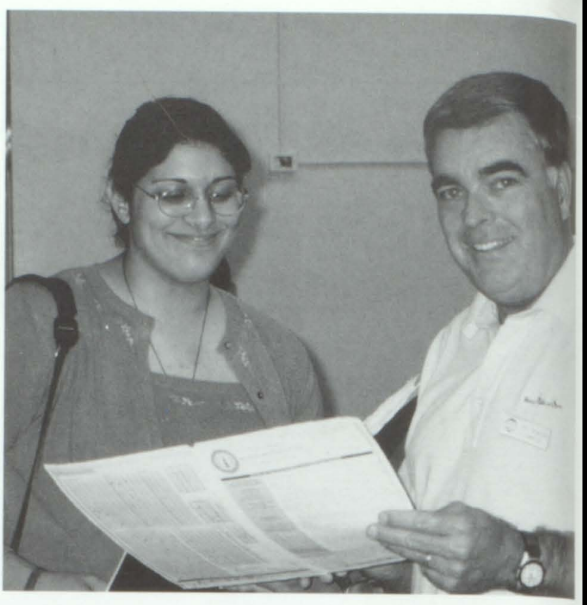
the things they do...

The Washington High School administration staff is the backbone of the school. With their many skills, they made the school year the best it could possibly be. They did all sorts of things, from schedule changes to keeping track of attendances and the list goes on. Without them, the school would not have been able to function.



Right: Cary Tremewan was always eager to help students in any way he could. Here he was with Senior Ambika Sopory giving her advice on college.

Below: The attendance clerks were pros at recognizing alterations of the truth. Every morning, they heard excuse after excuse from students who were late to school. Lt-Rt, Tp-Btm: Betty Iijima, Gail Minamoto, Karen Fokken, Susan Peterson, Nancee Reck, Robin Barulich, Phyllis Bohanan, and Principal Duran.

Below: To Counselor James Allen, students always came first. Mr. Allen cared and worried about each one of his students. He showed his caring side here with Senior Kristin Vigil.

Above: Counselor Carol Brahmst looked cheerful after a busy day assisting students. During the early part of the year, counselors were busy with hundreds of schedule changes.

Above: If you ever needed someone to talk to, Madeline Jay was all ears to your problems. Mrs. Jay, the school psychologist, gave advice to students and helped them overcome all sorts of problems.

Above: Phyllis Bohanan was always busy dealing with new and current students. As the school registrar, it was her job to check students in and out of the school. She welcomed them when they came and bid them farewell when they left.

This was Judy Duran's first year as principal. She took ideas from wherever she could find them. In her "spare time," she read Principals for Dummies to gain more information about her job.

Assistant Principal Skip Cain put a lot of effort into his job. He worked diligently to finish all of the requests for schedule changes before the deadline. At other times Mr. Cain could be seen monitoring student activity around campus.

"An apple a day keeps the stress away..." Linda Fernandez, the new assistant principal, took a break from her hectic schedule to have a snack. Her high spirits and hard work made WHS a nice environment to be in.

Caught wandering around the parking lot, Patt Low supervised the rush of students arriving at school. As vice principal, one of her duties was to walk around campus and make sure everything was going smoothly.

Unsung Heroes: The People Behind It All

WE make the DIFFERENCE

Above: Welcome back! After a two year break, Ms. Merrill came back to WHS, only this time, she filled the role of counselor to students. Prior to this, she was a history teacher. Here she visited a sophomore English class to talk about credits and transcripts.

Left: Betty Iijima was always on top of things. Whenever papers were given to her to be copied, she got to it ASAP. The WHS staff valued her hard work tremendously.

Below: Karen Fokken, the principal's secretary, was constantly running errands for Mrs. Duran. She chuckled as she read her next assignment: Find Mrs. Duran's keys!

"Playing Together.."

As school wasn't enough time for teachers to socialize, current and former teachers and staff "hung out" together after school as well. Meeting midmorning one Saturday afternoon they enjoyed a great day of bowling and reminiscing about their lives before being teachers.

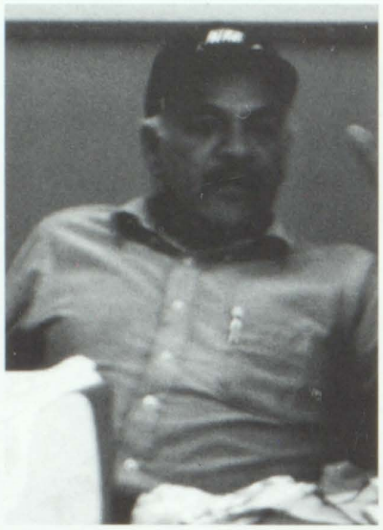
Right: With 50 more rooms to clean, Felix Echevarria took a quick little break to prepare himself for the harsh task he faced.



instructions not included

The unsung heroes of the school were the people that did the little things that kept the students and the school running like a well-oiled machine. The custodial staff made the school sanitary for the 1800 plus students that had to practically live in this school for 9 months. The lunch ladies served the student body edible food that gave them the energy to keep from dozing off in those ever so important classes.

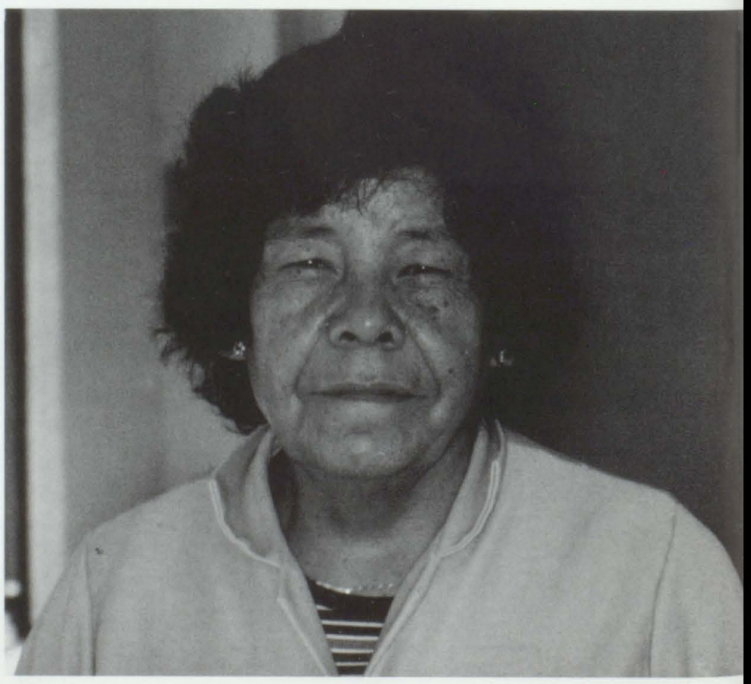
Above: Dave Mantini did the little jobs around the school that made things run smoothly. He brought books to the classrooms, changed the lightbulbs on the overhead projectors, and did many other things to help Washington be the best school that it can be.

Right: Officer Jones was the security blanket of the school. He kept danger away from the students and the faculty and he did this every day. Thanks, Officer Jones.

Right: Aurora Leyva has been keeping our school clean for many years now. She merged into the WHS family and now the school wouldn't be able to continue without her work.



Left: Kimo Rodrigues stood on guard in front of the cafeteria doors ready to pounce on anyone that had the slightest inclination to cause trouble.

Left: Do you need info on colleges or on an applicaton to take the dreaded SATs? You could have dropped on by the Career Center and Mrs. Wittmer would have been glad to assist you. Her motto has been, "Service with a smile."

Below: While Mr. Mangini took a break from handing out pictures to students, he quickly thumbed through the packages to try and find the most important set of pictures, the one of himself.

Below: Mrs. Jung had the arduous task of being the school's accounting clerk. Working in the Student Center with Mr. Mangini, she assisted students with all their financial matters.

Below: While the library was still being renovated, Mrs. Cory had to rearrange every bookshelf and replace all the tables and seats. She probably would have rather checked out books instead.

The Backbone of The School

A sandwich, two Cokes, some Cheetos or some Doritos. It didn't matter what you ordered or how many people ordered at once. Mrs. Benavidez got your order right the first time or would've asked you to repeat it.

The cafeteria lunch lines were hectic right when the clock struck 11:20, but Mrs. Labrado and Mrs. Vaccaro stood their ground as the students stampeded.

Did you have trouble rushing to the cafeteria during lunch to get your food? Well thanks to people like Mrs. Maypark who worked at one of the A La Carte stands, you could get food from almost any part of the school.

Mrs. Rodriguez worked very hard at lunch to get the students what they wanted to eat. This job sounded tiring because you were constantly on your feet for forty minutes running back and forth, but she felt that it was worth the trouble.

SAY CHEESE!

Students getting hands on experience in the "Bat Cave" and Computer Lab.

Digital Imaging and Photography seemed as though it was a fun class this year. The students learned many new things from Mr. Ficken and Ms. Sutter. The students learned how to develop their negatives and photos in black and white. The students learned to use Adobe Photoshop, The Morph program, and Aldus Superpaint. Many students enjoyed using the Morph program because they got to mix two faces into one, which other students probably saw on display on the second floor of the Fremont building. Many students said they enjoyed this class and would recommend it to everyone.

Right: Junior, Luke Albertalli, worked intently on his morph of two teachers on the Mac. He would later receive congratulations for doing a great job on the morph. Who was the picture of on the left of the computer screen? Who was the teacher on the right? What do you think the morph of the two teachers looked like?

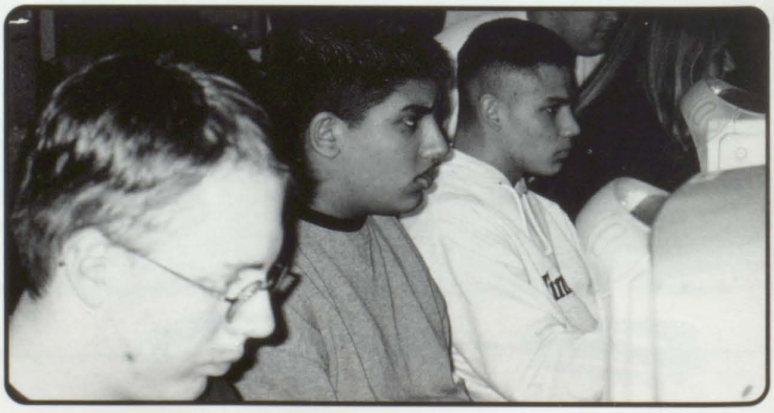
Left: Junior, Steve Sotelo, protruded from the "Bat Cave" to obtain light. He gazed deeply into his negative, and decided to return to the dark room. But, are his eyes open? Did he ever actually look at his negatives?

Right: Senior, Jeff Beck, rotated his negatives with his three fingers. After he was done developing his negatives, he learned that someone had taken a picture of his grandma in a bathing suit.

Below: Seniors, (left to right) David Saenz, Gautam Singh, and Derek Ynzunza stared deeply into the monitors of the I-MACs as they worked intently on their morphs of students and teachers. Gautam looked frustrated because he could not connect the dots. Derek seemed satisfied, though, with his work on the I-MAC.

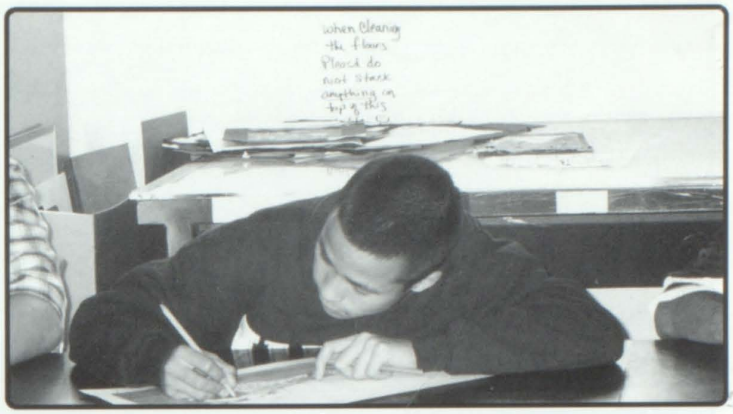
Above: Junior, John Lough, returned to the dark room from the "Bat Cave." He was tense as he put the photo in the wash with his tongs after it was in the developer. He then returned to the "Cave," after which he proceeded to the classroom.

Below: Senior, Nelson Amaral, looked at the developing chart as he poured D-76 (developing liquid) into his black tank. He looked ahead to see that he had to agitate the clothespin for thirty seconds for every minute for the next seven minutes.

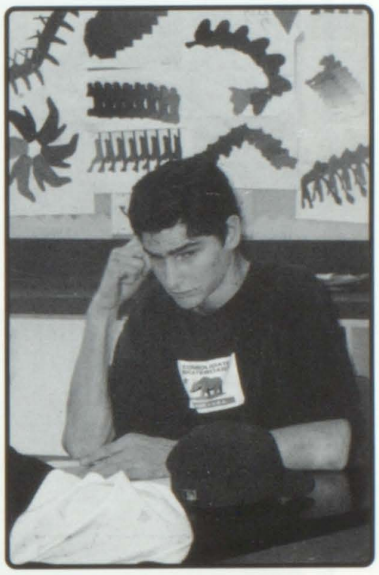


DaVinci's of Our Time

Watch Students Draw Their Way To A's.

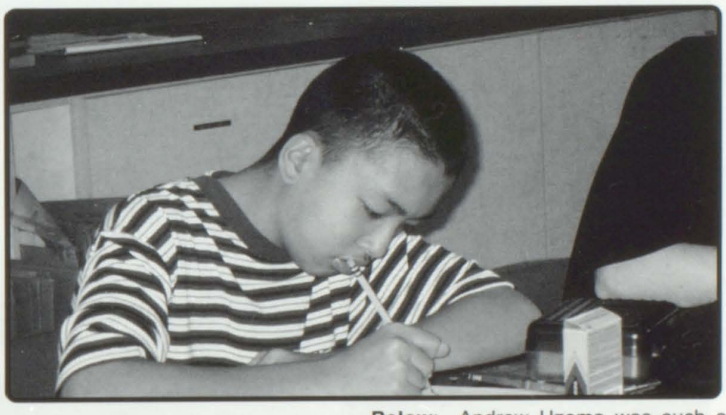


Above: Philip Lee sketched an orange drawing of a shoe. Afterwards when they began cleaning up, he disregarded the note written on the white board by putting his drawing on the table where it was clearly stated not to be put.



Left: Trevor Thompson had begun to draw his image of the shoe. Trevor thought he was doing a great job and intently got involved with the drawing.

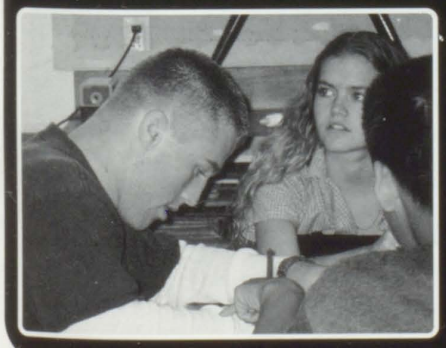
Right: Senior, Chris Schwan, was like the great painter, Vincent Van Gogh. He took out his artistic frustration on his ear. Unlike Van Gogh, Chris did not cut his ear off.



Above: It looked as though Marc Prestosa was drawing a big purple dinosaur. He was so into his drawing that he even began to eat his eraser as the purple dinosaur began to eat his prey.

Below: Andrew Uzoma was such a great virtuoso, that he could draw anything any way he could. He was so good that he could draw some of his greatest images with the other side of his marker. You are looking at the future Michaelangelo of the 21st century.

From bowls of fruit to the Grand Canyon to your own image, you were able to draw these things after taking art. Art paved the way for students who wanted to become the next Leonardo DaVinci, Vincent Van Gogh, Michaelangelo, or any of the other great artists of our time. Art also allowed them to express their inner soul onto canvas for the whole world to see. Art allowed the students to express their feelings that were being held inside as well. Numerous students said they would recommend this class to their siblings and friends because they enjoyed having Ms. Sutter as their teacher and they learned many valuable lessons in art.



Left: Senior, Todd Beck, was not only a great football player but was a great artist. He drew the most magnificent shoe ever seen. Praise came from Junior, Ashley Searcy, who was fascinated with his admirable image.

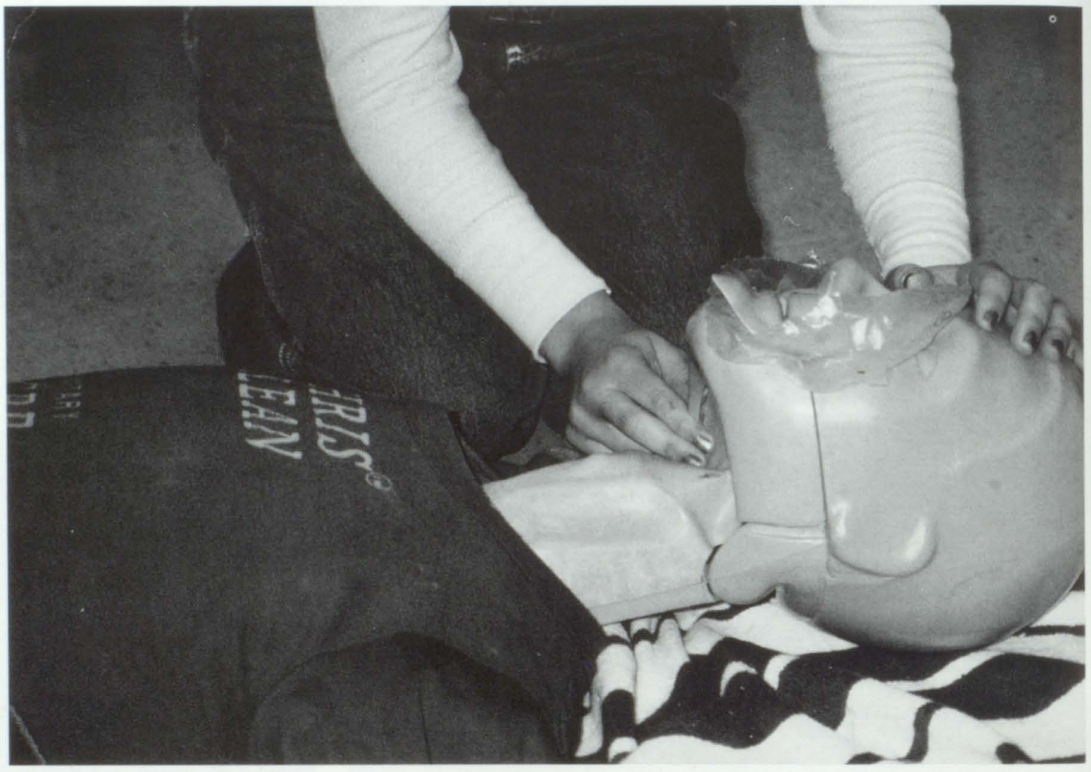
When you need to save someone's life, who are you going to count on? Find out in:

Survival of the Healthiest

Oh my gosh! Someone is choking! Quick! Grab a Freshman? The Freshman health students knew what to do after taking this class. Health class covered many life-saving techniques and also healthy ways to live your life. It could be heard anywhere on campus. What is the only 100% way to have safe sex....Abstinence.

RIGHT: Every person has a heartbeat, but not everyone knows how to find it. Here a freshman showed us where the pulse was found.

BELOW: Health teacher Mrs. Krebs laughed at her students' reactions to seeing a video on women giving birth.



ABOVE: Freshman Kristin Lancione wondered if she was choking on this pen, would her friends be able to help her.

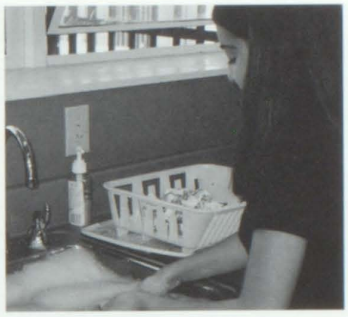
LEFT: Josh Thomas showed us "pure joy and happiness" as he listened to Mrs. Krebs' lecture.

ABOVE: Jamie Celino gave a breath of life to a dying victim who needed the help.

LEFT: We all know that in foods class they cooked food. We didn't know that they could devour this turkey right before Thanksgiving.

LEFT: Abe Park took a quick peek into the fridge before deciding what to cook. "Hmmm... I think it'll be ... waterchestnuts."

BELOW: Emily Yamamoto showed us that her hands could enjoy a bubble bath as she washed her group's dishes.



LEFT: Martha Silva, James Warren and Jesse Galindo prepared to make a festive pumpkin pie.

ABOVE: An inspirational poster set the tone in this foods class. Trouble was they never got to smell what the Rock was cookin'.

What class do you take when you have trouble making cereal in the early summer mornings? Try this class:

No More Burnt Popcorn

As we walked into this classroom in the year 2000, we were surprised to see an awesome cooking class. A brand new room and great equipment with all the trimmings were some items students could mind getting used to. Newly-married foods teacher Mrs. Selcho taught this class how to make, bake, and create. In this class they didn't just make the food, they ate it, too.

And the Beat Goes on...

Below: "You can't be serious," thought Vanessa Zammit, Shelley Newton, and Christine Avelar. Mr. Mitchell had assigned them to play Rachmaninov's Piano Concierto #3. This piece was twenty pages in length and lasted fifteen minutes.

Below: Senior David Perdue showed us that drum sticks could be used for other things as well. He used them to pick little pieces of chicken stuck between his teeth.

Above Minji Cho joked, "some of us actually bring our sax when we play..." to Mike Carbin who sat there dozing off.

Above (Tp-Btm, Lt-Rt): Jeffrey Walsh, Christopher Graham, Justin Danforth, Sean Nicholaysen, Jon de Jong, Danielle Severson, Rushabh Patel, Rachel Severson, Nikhil Kohli, Minji Cho, Adriana Adriano, Rebecca Garabedian, and Sheila Harris all participated in jazz band this year.

Above: The Asian Caucasian Persuasion juiced the crowd with their sweet beats. They played songs from groups like Weezer and Blink 182.

Above: Good For Nothen rocked the house at the second annual Bandapalooza. Their band consisted of trombonists, saxophonists, a drummer, and guitarists.

The '99-'00 was an excellent year for both the band and choir classes at Washington High School. The band participated in their annual events such as the Newark Day's Parade, Winter Concert and All-City High School Band Performance. They also held Bandapalooza to raise funds for new uniforms and the like. It was a big success. Five bands participated and brought in a lot of money. Choir's fun-filled year of singing harmonious melodies was just as brilliant. There were two different choir classes, beginner and advanced. The beginning class was meant for newcomers or amateurs. The advanced class was for those who have had some singing experience and enjoy it a lot. Their major events of the year were the Winter Concert and the All-City High School Choir Performance.

Below: Jason Cotton had an annoyed look on his face. His friend, Matt Close, was trying to be Luciano Pavarotti with his magnificent voice. Nice try Matt, but maybe you should stick to your acting career.

Below: Here's Washington's version of the Backstreet Boys. These three boys, Eddie Culin, Matt Close, and Jason Cotton were touching up on their vocal skills. They were preparing for an upcoming performance.

Below (Tp-Btm, Lt-Rt): Beginning Choir- Eddie Culin, Matt Close, Jessica Frank, Michael Relayo, Jacob Black, Fatima Iqbal, Meagan Kresin, Felicia Constantine, Krista Johnson, Alissa Cropper, Renee Little, Meaghan Coenen, Christine Coenen, Renee Larose, Julia Karpinsky, Faiyza Abbas, Nanyamka Scott, Emily Jonutz, Torrie Florio, Viviana Valiente, Natasha Asifoa, Melissa Horn, Sharlene Capas, Sarah French, David Dominguez, Mary Ingenthron, Marilou Alejo, Felicel Mercado, Adriana Argo, Brian Chen, Melissa Hankins, Leslie McCorkle, Jillian McCubbins, Minjee Kang, Theresa Zaragoza, Maryann Namocatcat, and Alicia Reynoso.

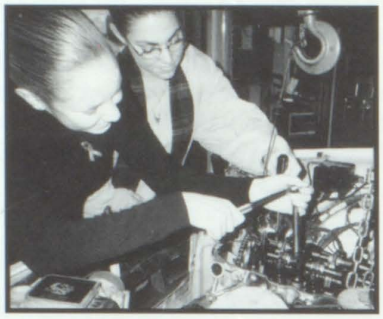
Left: "Why do they always have to look on my paper?" asked Krista Johnson. Leslie McCorkle and Minjee Kang looked on Krista's lyric sheet. The trio was rehearsing for their upcoming performance.

Tuning It Up!!!

And Letting It Rev In Auto Shop

David Blood, Rachel Nowicki, and Sarah Foster worked on a little Toyota pickup and gave it a tune up.



Right: Erin Jones and Kristi Sinnott worked on fixing this Toyota pickup. Finally, girls get into cars! Some of them were even getting better grades in auto than some of the guys. Way to go girls!

Peter Bosko worked underneath the car while it was on a lift. He could see so much more when he looked underneath.

Jacob Strong and Jon Krulc worked on the diagnostic machine for the first time even though they didn't know how to use it. Hopefully, they pressed the right buttons so that the machine didn't break.

Purrs Like A Kitten

Washington High School's Auto class can fix it! No problem was too big or difficult for them to handle! Getting down and dirty and lovin' it was part of the requirements when taking auto!

These students had a blast rebuilding engines, transmissions and detailing cars. They especially liked hearing that engine purr when they first started it up. It was a class away from hard work-out problems and stressful tests.

Mr. Slatkin taught auto and made sure you ended the year knowing how to fix your car from start to finish! It was a really fun class if you were into cars!

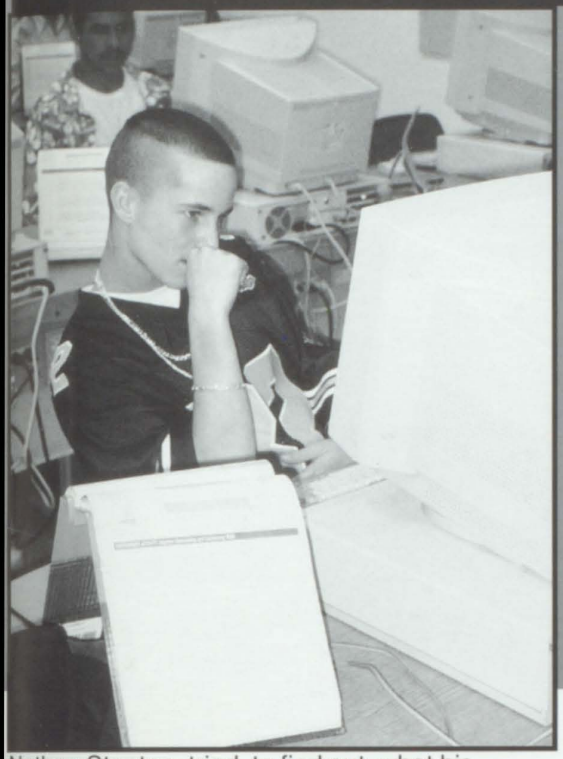
Colin Troia and Jacob Strong took out the battery in Colin's Mercury Sable. It took only a couple of seconds for these experts to get it out.

Rob Culbertson held the alternator while David Blood and Rachel Nowicki looked at the carborator.

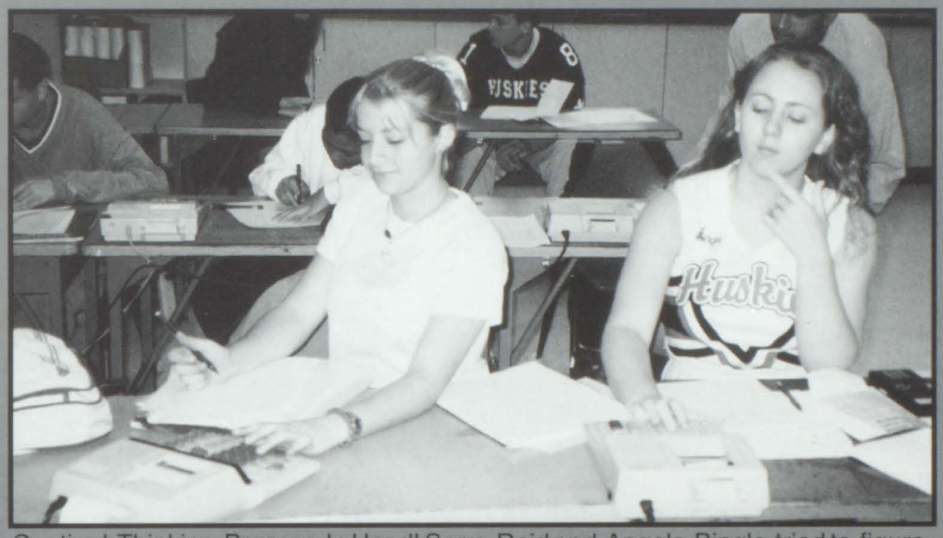
Our Up And Coming Future!!!

Business and Beyond

In today's world of high technology, the workplace is diverse and competitive and will be even more so in the future. To take a business class here at Washington would be an investment in your future because you can acquire the knowledge and skills for the 21st century. So if you decide to take a class in business, it will certainly pay off. It could be the difference between success and failure if you enter the world of business.

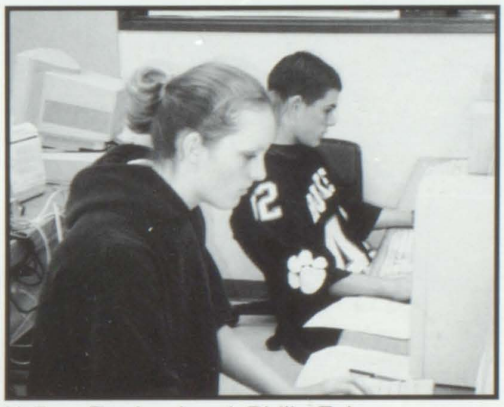


Nathan Stanton tried to find out what his project was going to be on while he focused on the current class assignment.

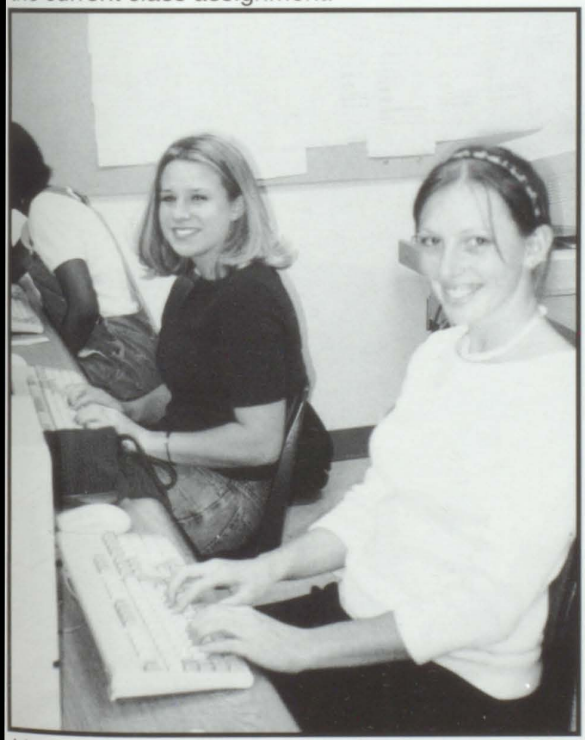


Caution! Thinking Process In Hand! Sarra Reid and Angela Bingle tried to figure out an accounting problem; although it seemed like Angela was more curious as to what Sarra had on her paper.

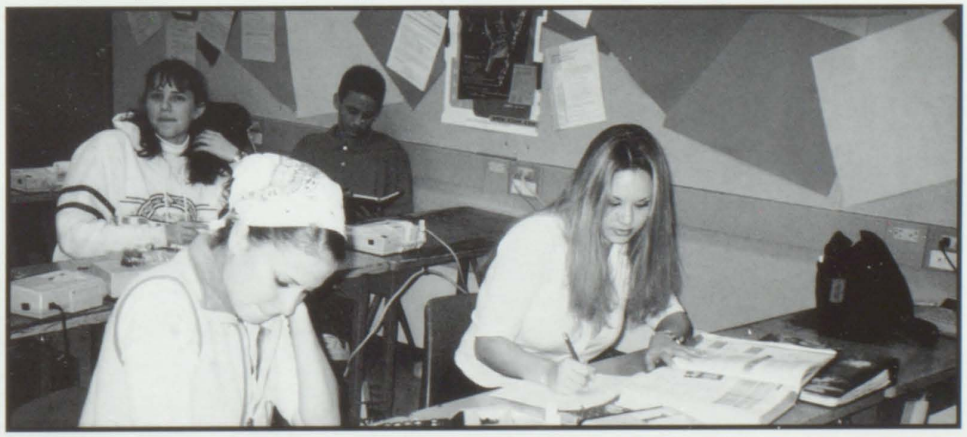
Tom Marshall, Joewel Pascual, and Ahmed Suliman tried to finish their work quickly before the bell rang.



Kellyn Reuland and Philip Eskew concentrated all period long on their work so that they never fell behind.



Lindsey Fisher and Sarah Greene worked on the computer in the personal business class. Their goal was to be proficient so that they would be experts when they went to college.



Liz Civiletti (on the right) worked out of the book while Kristen Tuers (on the left) tried to figure out how to use the ten-key calculator in accounting. They were working diligently to complete their accounting transactions.

Ironmen: Workin' Their Metal

This year was business as usual for the metal class. "Clang!" "Smack!" "Clurk!" These were the sounds that came from the metals class. These students pounded into the metal any which way they liked. They got to express their inner soul through their beautiful masterpieces. With Mr. Soma leading the way, the students received the best background on metal working that they could.

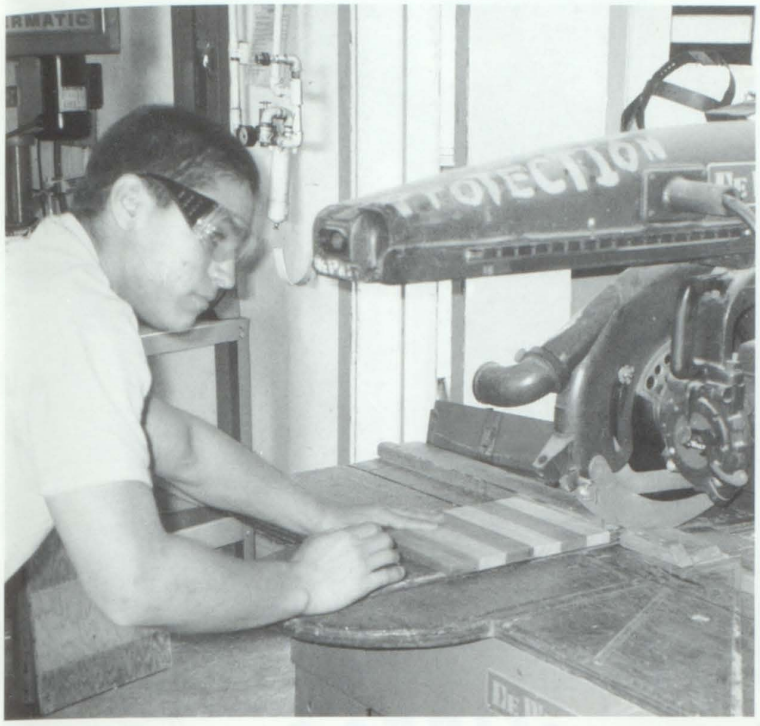
Left: Brad Schexnider was carefully shaving his metal iron lug. Brian Newton and Garrison Finkes found it so interesting, that they decided to look on.

Below: Matt Ghiringhelli was mischieviously thinking about his next project. He was debating between a sling shot and a coat hanger for his father.

Above: David Bronaugh was a man of safety. Before using any machine, he always checked out the machine to make sure everything was working okay and that nothing was stuck.

Right: Juan Espinoza was applying putty to his wheel. This was one of the many steps he had to go through in building his wooden cart.

Right: Andrew Baker was focused on one thing, making his iron smooth. He was in the process of making a hammer for his dad as a gift for Father's Day.

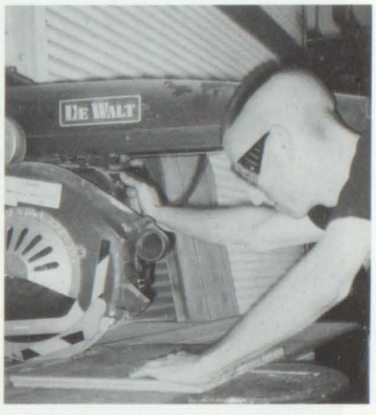


Left: What should I do? Eric Curtzwiler was having second thoughts on what he was going to use his wood for. He was either going to make a keyholder or tool box.

Left: What a close call. Ricky Novotny was clamping his rack together so the glue would dry. Just as he was about to tighten the clamp, he realized that his buddy's hand was right underneath the clamp.

Above: Alex Kenny was sanding his block of wood. The wood needed to be extra smooth so all of the pieces would fit perfectly together. Alex was in the process of making a bookshelf.

Above: Travis Newman etched his last name into his wood. He was making a name plate for his house as a gift to his parents.

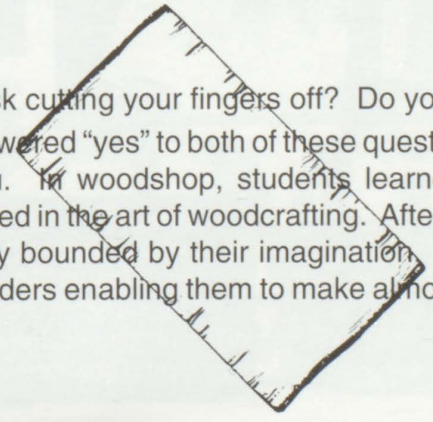


Above: Need a wooden paddle? Well, Jay Kane is your man. He will slice and dice to your liking.

Into The Woods

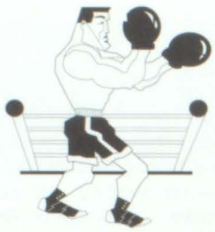
Today's Kids Tomorrow's

Bob Villa

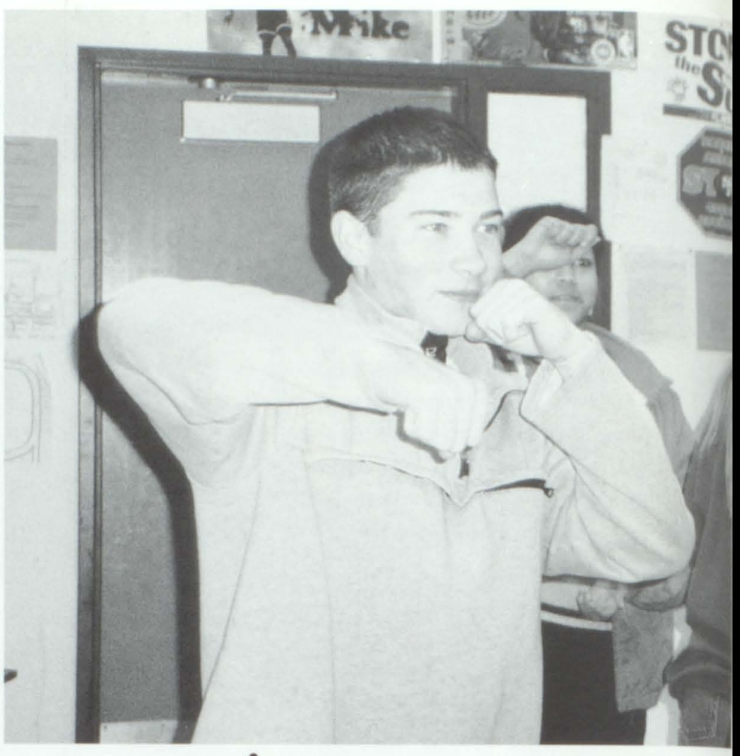


Do you like to risk cutting your fingers off? Do you like to play around with wood? If you answered "yes" to both of these questions, then woodshop was the class for you. In woodshop, students learned about the safety and techniques involved in the art of woodcrafting. After students pass the safety test, they are only bounded by their imagination. They have tools ranging from saws to sanders enabling them to make almost anything that comes to mind.

Below: Mr. Jones gladly gave his speech on the sociological behaviors of human beings while two of his students, Nova Lair and Jennifer Gibson, listened attentively to his every word.



Right: Chris Corcoran, Heavy Weight Champion of the World, boxed his way around the classroom trying to find his significant other, the referee.



Actions speak Louder than words

Above: Madina Mojadedi had a crowd gathered around her. She was testing out her suspicion if whether or not a mob formed when you have a stack of papers and yell out, "Here's a study guide for the test for this Friday." Her suspicions were confirmed.

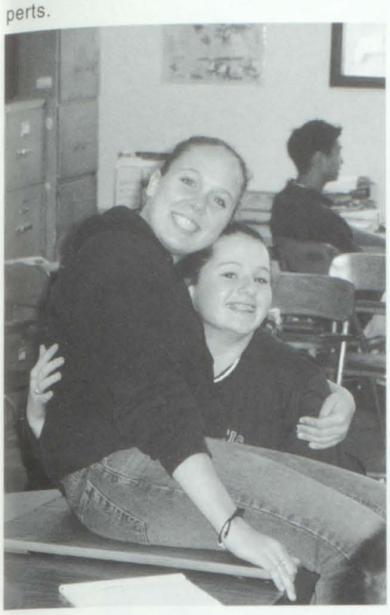
Above: Megan Rasul turned around and asked Sarra Reid what the more popular form of influence was: peer pressure or stereotypes. Ryan Miller gave some thought to the question as he looked on.

Right: What was Kelly Kontich trying to say? In sociology, you learned different ways of communicating and by the way that Kelly was looking and holding those scissors, her message seemed to be very clear. Back off!

Sociology

Sociology was a class that focused on human behavior in society. The class taught students about why they were the way they were and what it was that made them do the things they do. They also learned about different types of communication and how to use those types of communication in an effective way in society. In a world of many different cultures, the class learned some of the norms, values, and beliefs of each culture and how those aspects pertained to the people.

Below: Shannon Mattingly and Erica Flora held each other in excitement when they received A's on their psychology test. Between the two of them, they knew enough about psychology to be classified as experts.



Above: Tommy Ramos used his superhuman powers to try and get a better psychological understanding of his friend Jessie Winsted. He got a feel of her brain and and made his psychological evaluation. "I see that your mind is clear like the sky yet cluttered like a New York City street."

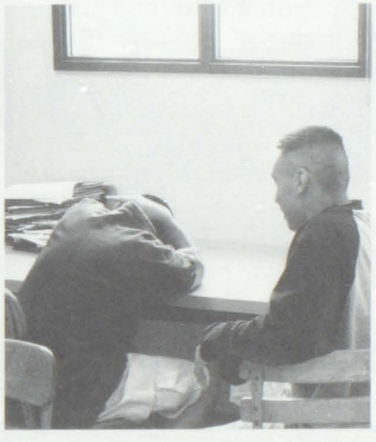
Below: Tammy Choi corrected her psychological self-evaluation and was greatly relieved to find out that she was sane. All those long nights of studying really paid off. She was now officially a normal member of society.

Are You Crazy?

Psychology

Are you crazy? If you're not sure, then this class will definitely help you make that judgment. Throughout the year, the students in psychology learned many aspects of human behavior such as how and why they act due to the activity in the brain. They also studied the parts of the brain and how it affects the individual. The class did many activities that focused on certain aspects in the field of psychology such as making a model of the human brain out of food and teaching the class about some psychological disorders. Students also got to act out a scene where they pretended to have a disorder. There were also debates on the latest issues in the field and dreams were analyzed. This course helped prepare students to become the future psychologists of the world.

Above: Eric Heinze had a devious smile on his face when he found out that he got to play a person with a psychological disorder. Now he could show the world his wonderful acting ability and finish a project all at the same time.



Above: John Lough and Phil No practiced for their presentation of the two most common psychological disorders. Phil seemed anxious to get started on their presentation. What a good student!

Mind over matter

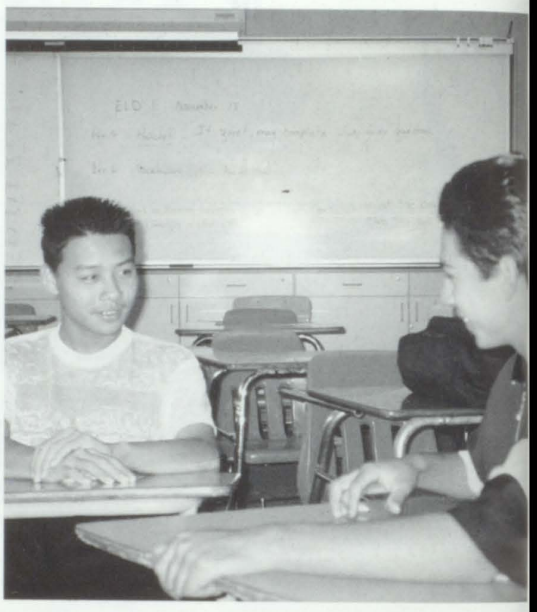
Right: In an attempt to cover her mistake of not completing her previous night's reading assignment, Stephanie Yang glanced over the back cover of her book for helpful hints.

Right: Tao Wang was always ready, pen in hand, to jot down any helpful notes that Mrs. Arnold gave. Kamaljit Kaur concentrated on the teacher.

Below: Perfecting a second language could sometimes be frustrating, as demonstrated by Alfredo Betancourt in this picture.

Right: Jorge Sitan closed his eyes in an attempt to concentrate amidst the unavoidable chatter.

Far Right: Shangdar Sit discussed his weekend plans with Ricardo Betancourt during a brief pause between lectures.



TALKING THE TALK

Every day, these few devoted students met in room 22 to tackle learning the English language. Most of the students in this class had only been in the United States between one and six months. They were placed in English Language Development to strengthen their comprehension, speech, and composition of the language. The work in this class was just as difficult as work that you would receive in any other class, if not more. The students did a lot of work in pairs and groups, talking back and forth about weekend plans, their families, or any other topic. The goal of this exercise was to increase the fluency of their English. Writing time was also given to help. Mistakes were carefully looked over and corrected. It was a tedious but necessary exercise. In order to keep from repeating the same mistakes, you had to go over and over the same material. Students in ELD also learned about customs that we have here in the United States. They were eager to learn and strived to accomplish as much as they could in the short time that they had to be in this class. Students met for three hours a day. As Mrs. Arnold said, they became a family, everyone relying on one another to sink or swim. She encouraged her students to help one another. Lilian Su was the teacher's aide in the classroom. She translated Mrs. Arnold's English into Chinese for the Chinese students who could not yet understand her. Mrs. Arnold enjoyed working with this eager group of students because they always gave it their all, and tried very hard. There were no discipline problems in the classroom because everyone was respectful of their fellow classmates. Mrs. Arnold also said that the students were very appreciative of her teaching and it that it was fun to see them grow and learn new things.

> "We became a family, everyone relying on one another to sink or swim."

Below: Patrick Cox was demonstrating to Erin Harvey that he knew how to sign "air guitar."

Right: Stephanie Jiang, Nicole Guerrero and Shannon Hunter were all smiles as they proudly signed "A.S.L."

Below: Say What?!?
Katie Miller looked questioningly at her teacher. . ."what does this mean again?"

Handiwork

American Sign Language was back for its second year here at Washington. We now had two teachers, Mr. Zinza, who was hearing, and Mrs. Amundsen, who was non- hearing. This allowed for a unique learning experience for all the students. The members of this class were always laughing, and having a good time learning this fun new language. However, it was tough to learn. The students in this class learned enough to communicate with the members of the deaf community.

Above: Cindy Beck and Deauna Doremus laughed as they tried to remember the rules to the game of rock, paper, scissors.

Above: Karmen Li asked, "How can I distract Angela?" who was concentrating hard on the lesson.

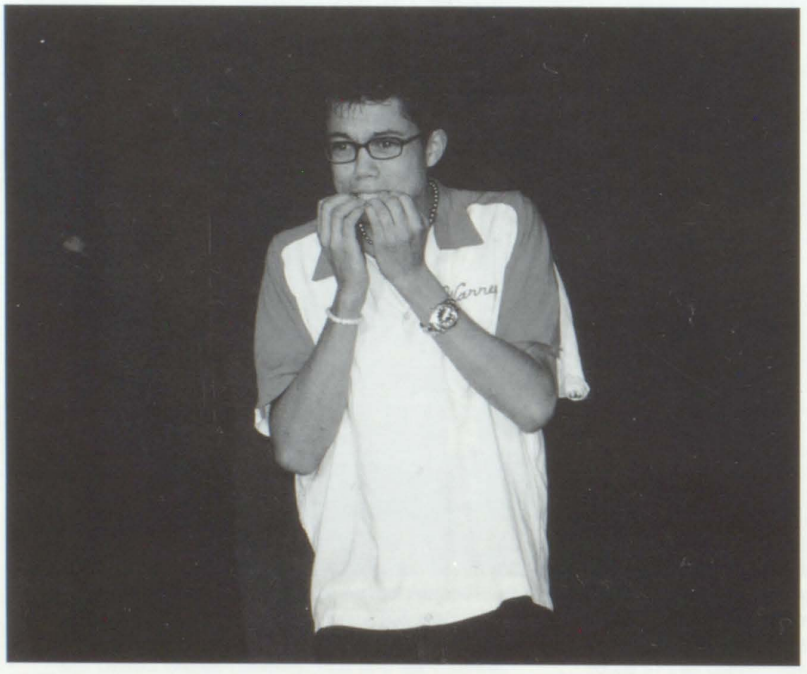
Above: "Take your best shot," said Jared Snelson to "hunter" Parshan Rayatkah as he stood poised with his hand gun.

On good speaking terms

Below:
Tanya Glanz: "Young man, if I ever catch you near my stuff again, I'll raise hell. Since this was your first time, I'll let you slide. Just remember, never again!"

Matt Close: "Y-y-yess ma'am! It was a mistake, I swear it was. I promise I'll never touch your stuff again."

Below: "I just want my mommy," pleaded Myles Madlock. Myles was enacting the role of a little boy lost in a supermarket. He had been looking for his mom but she was nowhere in sight. The poor little boy just wanted to find his mother and go home.

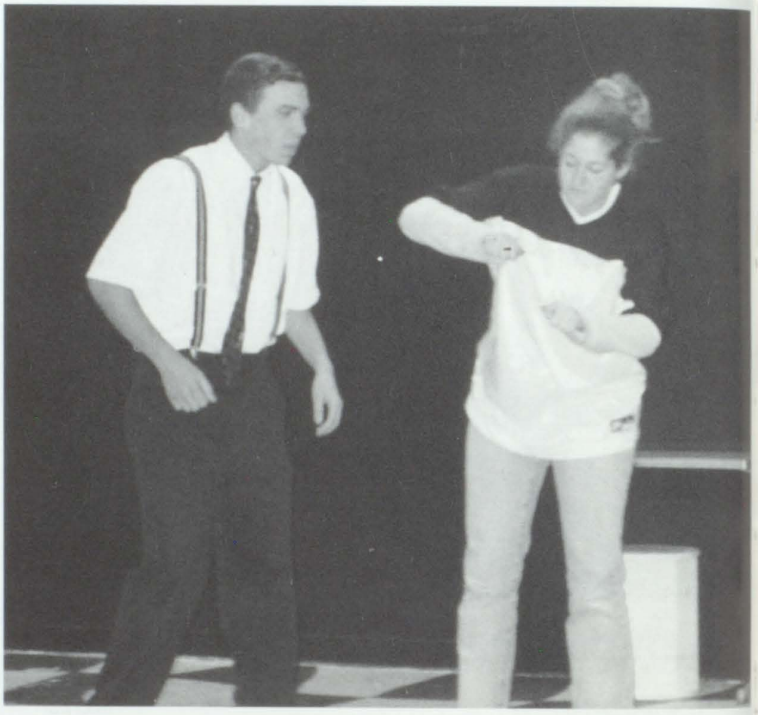


Left: Seniors Sabeen Ali, Ryan Hammond, and Tanya Glanz were caught in the middle of a comedy sports activity. Ryan wanted to fight Sabeen because she stole his socks. Sabeen wanted a piece of Ryan as well. Tanya was pleading with Ryan not to do it because Sabeen would clobber him!

Discover Me!!

Ever wonder who'd be the next Speilberg, Kevin Spacey, or Gwyneth Paltrow? Well, the answer to that question is in the drama class. The drama department offered courses for beginners to "professionals." Drama I and II were for the beginners. They helped students cure stage fright and learn more about acting itself. Drama III and IV were for the experts. With these classes, you got more into improvisation and professional acting. It was for those who were serious about pursuing a career in acting. For those who were serious about acting as a career, this class gave a sample of acting in the real world.

Below: Nick Noard was watching intensely as Kelly King was trying to show him something. The two were taking part in comedy sports. For this game, a student had to guess what the other students were doing. The only catch was that students could only talk in jibberish and could not act out that specific activity.



Top: You go, girl! Senior Laura Lineback wasn't afraid to express her choreographic skills. She was getting down to the beat of Simon and Garfunkel!!

Top:
Fred Ibonie: "Hey, do you think my armpits smell?"

Jacki Lee: "Gasp... Um, I'm not sure Fred. I really don't think so." In reality, Jacki thought Fred had the smelliest

Below: The furious Oedipus confronted Teiresias the Prophet, played by Sabeen Ali, with questions that he wanted answered now! Old, wise Teiresias was telling Oedipus of his ill fate.

Below: Oedipus confronted his brother -in-law Creon about the throne. Oedipus was under the impression that Creon was trying to steal his power.

Below: Lexi Rohrman gave us a smile before the show. She was a part of the chorus. The cast did a punk version of the play, hence the leather jackets and dark makeup.

Above: Creon, played by Amber East, gathered with the people of Thebes. They raised their arms and prayed to Apollo for guidance.

Above: The messenger, played by Louise Dickinson, told Oedipus, played by Ryan Hammond, the true story concerning him and his parents.

Above: The chorus played an enormous part in the play. It was made up of the citizens of Thebes. They sought to figure out who killed King Laios and in doing so, they narrated the story to the audience.

Greek Mythology: Punk Style

The drama productions turned out to be a sweet success this year. By taking part in these plays, young actors and actresses not only enjoyed the satisfaction of taking part in them, but they also gained experience on what goes on in the real acting profession.

Oedipus Rex: The Punk Rock Version was this year's fall production. With an enthusiastic and energetic cast along with the fantastic directing of Drama teacher Susan Crothers, the play was a huge success.

The story is about Oedipus Rex, the son of King Laios, who was the king of Thebes. King Laios was viciously murdered and Oedipus inherited the throne. Oedipus's brother-in-law, Creon, wanted to find out who killed the king. In doing so, Oedipus was under the impression that Creon was trying to take his power. A blind prophet named Teiresias told Oedipus his ill fate. This Greek tragedy by Sophocles revealed that Oedipus murdered his father and then married his mother.

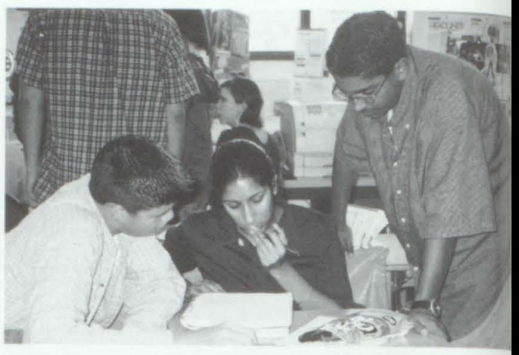
Deadline after deadline, this group of dedicated staff members put in many hours of effort and frustration to put together an amazing yearbook for the millennium.

Where it all began...

With only fifty minutes a day to complete deadlines, staff members put in countless after hours to this class. None of this would have been possible without the effort and reliance of our adviser, Mrs. Howerton. But we were not just about all work and no play. Every month we celebrated staff members' birthdays and once in a while we had a moment to take a breath. Here's the story of our class...

Below: It was a wonder that yearbook member, Eunji Cho, didn't fly away with all those balloons. Eunji received more than her share of balloons on her 18th birthday in September.

Relaxing after she completed her JV volleyball page, Samantha Lawrence sat back to enjoy the Hatchet during the orange and black spirit week. She displayed school spirit with her brightly colored orange and black striped socks.



Radha Sharma had that "get out of my way, I'm concentrating" look as Alex Huang and Samir Pathak looked on. Radha, a yearbook team leader, dedicated a lot of her time instructing staff members on their layouts.

Tony Cimino and Henry Tsai were deep in conversation about the downsides of yearbook. Computers crashed all the time while students worked on pages. Always save to the hard drive!

Second year staff member, and Student Life team leader, Michael Martin tried explaning his layout to adviser, Mrs. Howerton. "But Mrs. Howerton, that picture has to go in!"

Above: "Yeah Seniors are #1!" exclaimed an enthusiastic Monica Chavez on Army Day. Monica was team leader of the sports section and was a two year vet of yearbook.

Above: On Army Day, yearbook editors Jeff Beck and Nirmal Bassi teamed up as they got ready to work on a busy deadline.

PUTTING THE PIECES TOGETHER

Left: Tim Sandoe put on some music to groove to while the rest of the class diligently worked on the paper.

Editor, Jennifer McLain stressed out over the Hatchet's bi-weekly deadline while wondering what kind of coffee she was drinking.

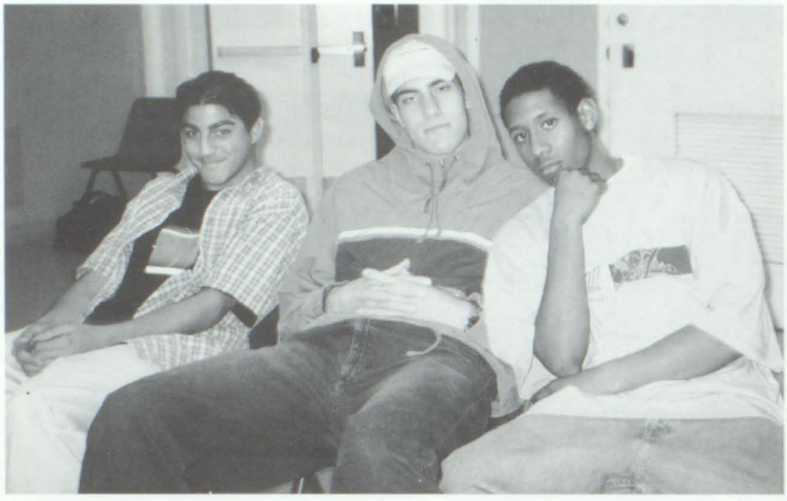
(Top Row): Heath Holguin, Ryan Lam, Marc Chiesa, Joann Hu, Jennifer McLain, Annie Lin, Tim Sandoe, Felicia Lilienthal, Kenneth Lotich, Susan Finnegan, Briana Edwards, Christina Santos. (Bottom Row): Yuliya Petrov, Mary Wu, Michelle Neal, Jennifer Lee, Jasmeet Kaur.

Extra! Extra!

As Huskies pawed through the Hatchet this year, little did they realize the many hours of meticulous work it took to put it together. Journalism was not only a class but a peephole into a view of how a professional newspaper was run. The Hatchet printed a bi-weekly edition in which the editors stayed behind on that Wednesday night to put everything together. Mrs. Wilson, the adviser, made sure that journalism was a top priority for her students. These students were highly motivated and dedicated to giving their 110%.

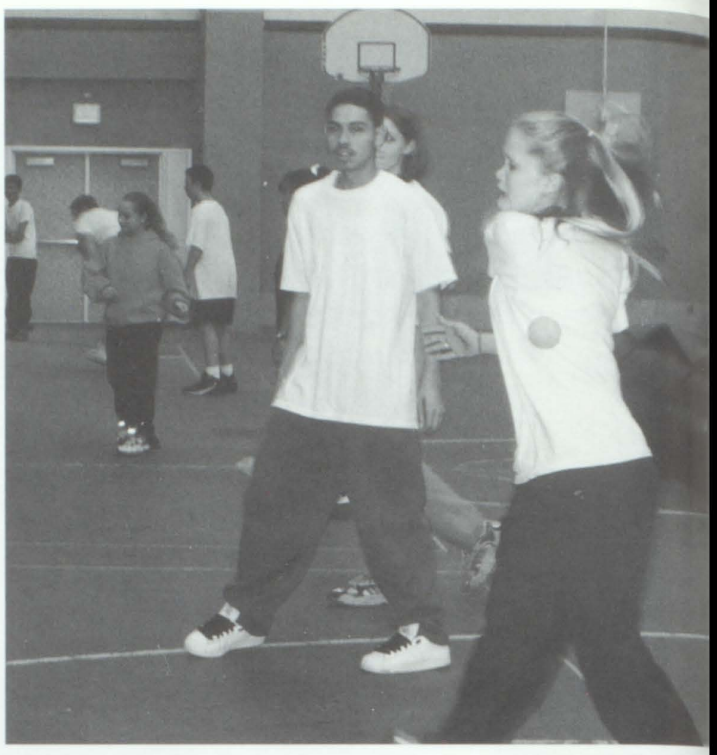
Bench Warmers

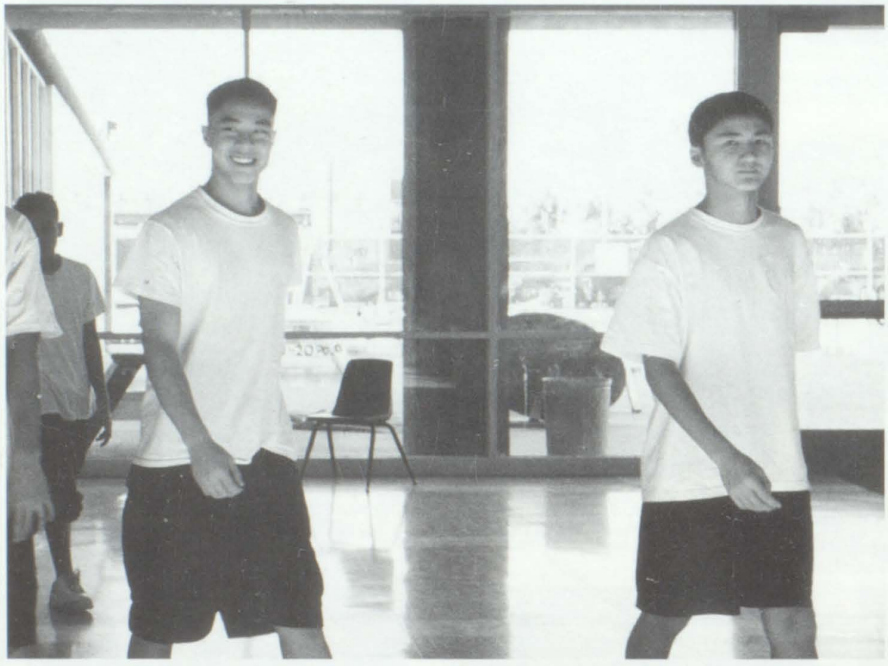
Below: Ray Epps, Lucas Adra, and Mohammed Omar are all proof that even when you choose not to dress for P.E., you still had to sit idley and watch enviously while your classmates had fun competing against each other.



Washington Workout

Right: In an intense game of handball, Heidi Tegner freaked under the pressure and forgot where she had put her left arm. Subsuquently the ball just barely slipped by. It was a good effort, though.



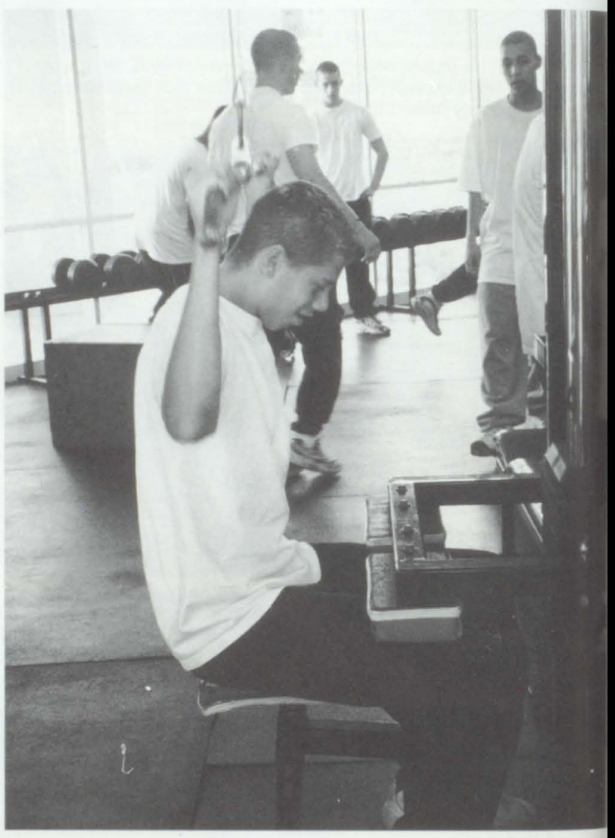


Class Action

Above: Shaun Kim and Alexander Leung headed back to the locker room after an invigorating workout in the weight room. Both were trying to beef up their bodies to better impress their ladies.

Get Into the Game

Above: Jesse Galindo deciphered a strategy while Steven McGrady charged him with an intent to deny his attempts at victory. Both enjoyed tackling even though it was only a two-touch game.



Feeling the Burn

Above: Sean Butterfield reached for the sky as he shaped and to his masculine shoulders. Working strength training into your d routine strengthens your body and your endurance.

Kicking into Gear

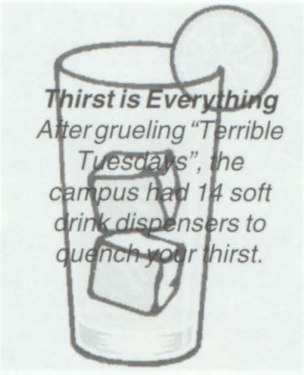
From classes surveyed, Nike shoes were sported the most while doing the daily workout closely followed by Adidas. Trailing on the track was a mix of brands, including Reebok, Fila, and Puma.

Making a Fit-Stop

Below: Coach Boggs took time out of his busy daily teachings to flash his charming smile and superman stance that epitomized his personality oh-so well.

Weather or Not

Most P.E. classes continued with their scheduled activities without concern to the weather. Students bundled up because they had to play in the sizzling sun or storming rain.



Thirst is Everything

After grueling "Terrible Tuesdays", the campus had 14 soft drink dispensers to quench your thirst.

No Sweat

Didn't like getting all sweaty before your next class? No problem! The P.E. department offered a number of sports to participate in. Some were less intense and would keep you dry even if you had forgotten your Sure.

Shape Up

Fitness Flash

Sure, physical fitness was only required for two years of your high school career, but at Washington P.E. was not only looked at as a break from tiresome class work, but was a fun way to let out frustration left over from a chem test, too. The P.E. program never had problems getting enough contestants to help its activities run smoothly and to do the jobs that it was supposed to accomplish, such as team building, motivating the kids to get into the game, and plain old exercise. This goal was accomplished with a compilation of indredients. Coaches and teachers had a genuine interest in their students' health and success, along with a satisfying variety of class choices -- from handball and badminton to weightlifting and tae-bo. So shape up and get into the Washington Workout!

Athletic Support

Above: Coach Due showed Catrina Igne the proper way to hold a baseball bat. This along with a compilation of other techniques helped each person to get into the ultimate P.E. experience.

Let the Games Begin!

Above: Leticia Winslett not only prepared her stance, but also stared down the pitcher using the intimidation skills that she had learned outside of class to ensure a successful play.

Turn it up!

Left: Jovan Pettus showed us his fighting stance as he warmed up for the daily Tae-Bo session. Tae-Bo was an efficient way to get your cardio vascular system going as well as a means of self-defense.

Fitness Fact Flash

Picking your gym teacher?! To most high school students this freedom was unheard of. Most physical education teachers were assigned just as English, History, and Math teachers are. Washington's students definitely overlooked the privilege they held.

Accept the CHALLENGE

Keeping It Real, Except For i

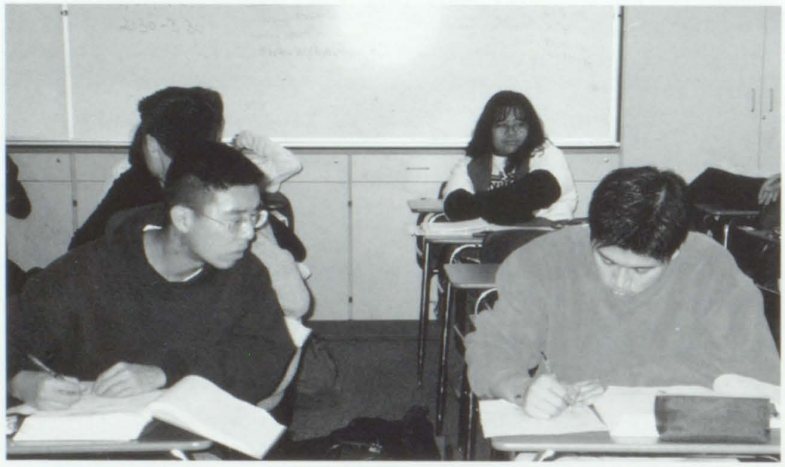
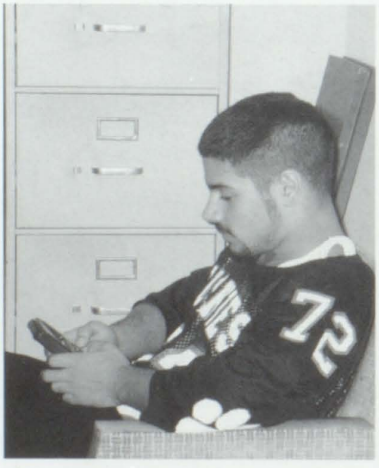
Above: Tyson Rollins thought he was the best in math. To prove it, he went in front of the class to solve a problem. Little did he know that his teacher fooled him with a Calculus problem.

This year started off a bit hectic for the math department. Due to an unexpected departure of one of the teachers, there were conflicts in schedules. There were too many students with too few teachers to teach them. In the end, the department overcame their struggles. Once things were settled down, it was business as usual. Teachers and students alike began the year to prepare for the CAML, GSE and A.P. tests. The objective of the department was to create tomorrow's engineers and mathematicians.



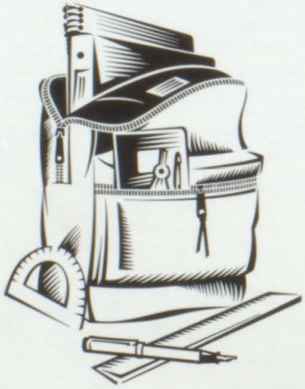
Above: Henry Tsai was caught in the act. Desmond Cheung was working on his assignment as Henry was "borrowing" answers from him.

Right: Nelson Amaral, master of disguise, relaxed in math class with his calculator. Was he doing math homework or was he really playing Tetris? Only Nelson knows.



Right: Tp-Btm, Lt-Rt: Sara Villabolos, Christina Buchner, Gregory Caminada, Taylor Bodily, Karlee Bachleder, Sara Loyd.

Christina's thoughts: "y= 2x+3...teacher call on me!"
Taylor's thoughts: "What am I having for lunch? Yummy, ham sandwich, chips, and soda!!"
Sara's thoughts: "Hmm, I need new clothes. I think I'll go shopping after school."



Below: Mary Wu and Karmen Li were in awe as they admired their poster. They ma sure that Mr. Neiman handled it with care because they spent so much time on Left: Tp-Btm, Lt-Rt: Alia Williams, Julian Herpick, Soemoe Aung, Ajay Robinson. Ajay had a proud smirk on his face after figuring out the answer. He and the others were diligently working on their CPM 3 quiz.

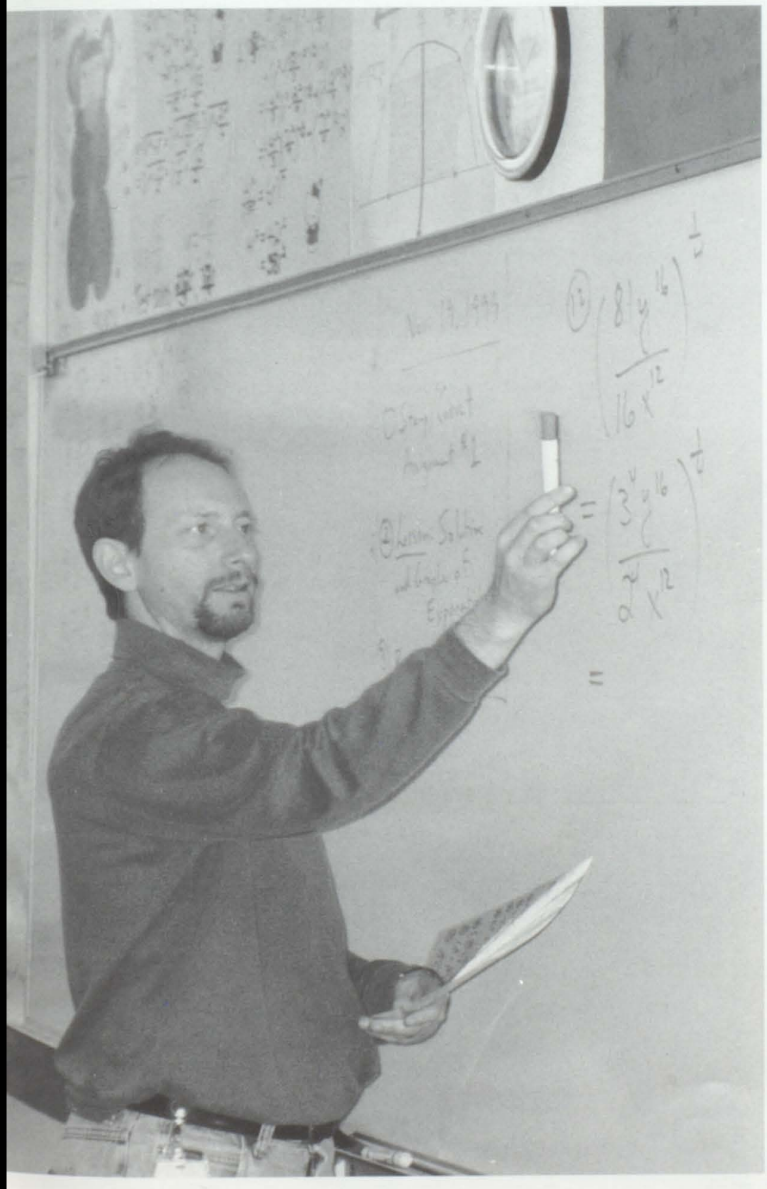
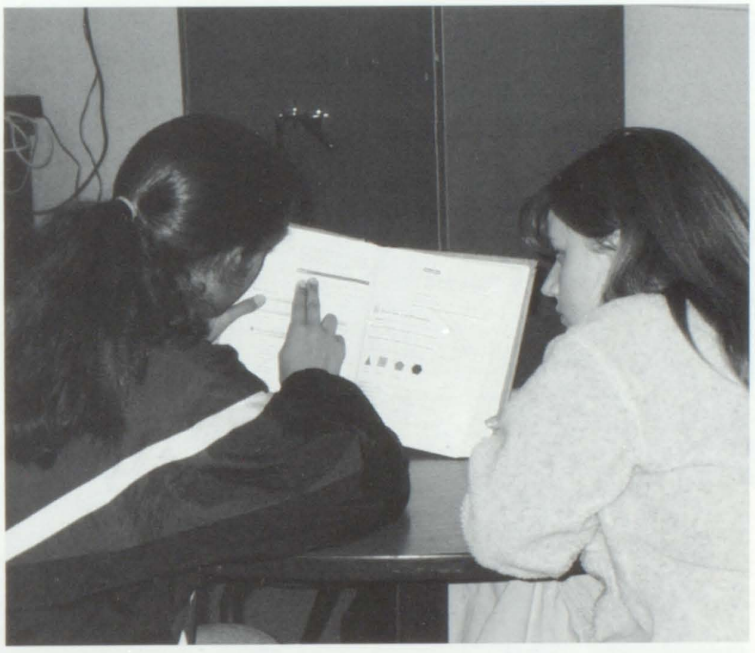
Below: Math was just too much for Marissa Manangdo, Karmen Li, and Marina Meyerson. After learning about derivatives, they were drained out. It was time for a nap!

Mathematics

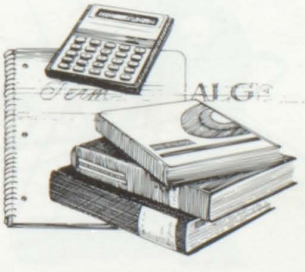




Above: Lakshmi Narayan was such a great friend. When Rachel Nowicki needed help, Lakshmi gladly gave her assistance.

Left: Integrated Math 3 students, Pamela Yamamoto and Ron Marinelli, were intensely listening to Ms. Joseph's lecture. They were so intrigued by it, that they decided to take notes.

Left: Mr. Neiman enthusiastically showed his Calculus class how to solve the problem. This year was his first year ever teaching Calculus. However, he has been teaching CPM 3 at Washington for two years.

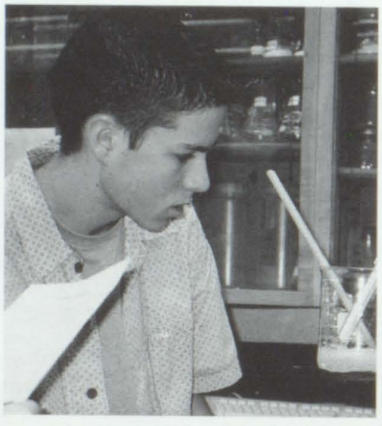


A Time To Discover

The science department this year was granted many blessings. Through the new digital grant, the science wing was able to be furnished with brand new, top of the line computers. Department head, Mr. Ron Ulrich, was pleased with the progress that the science wing has gone through. The broad educational spectrum that is offered here, has proved over the years to be quite excellent. Not much can be improved upon now, so it's up to the the new, bright students that enter the classroom to bring life to the science system. The normal high school courses, Biology, Chemistry, and Physics are always filled with knowledge- thirsty people. Little known classes such as Chemistry Problems go unnoticed, but not un- noted.

Above: Focus!!

Dr. Samples tried hard to keep her class focused on the lesson, but couldn't resist the chance to crack a joke or two.

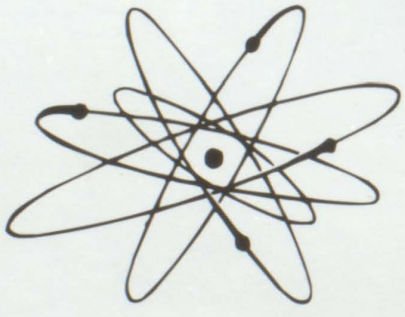


Above: Hot Stuff!

"How hot is this supposed to get?" asked Robert Duncan.

Right:

Lauren Inglish tried unsuccessfully to make Robert Santos laugh for the picture, but he was carefully focused on keeping his mixture from exploding.

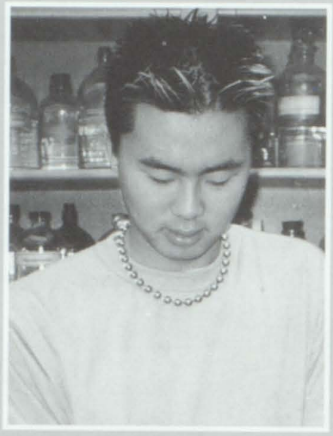


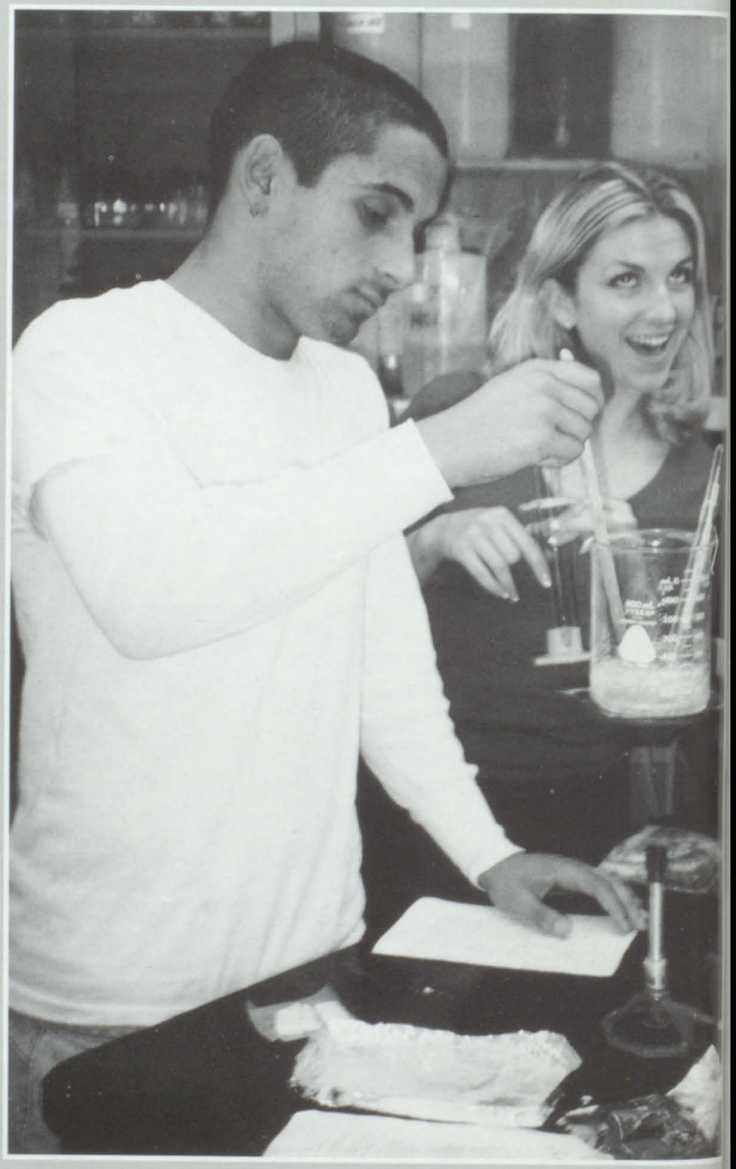
Below:

Minji Cho was always ready to offer her help to anyone who needed it.

Below: Zzzzzzzz

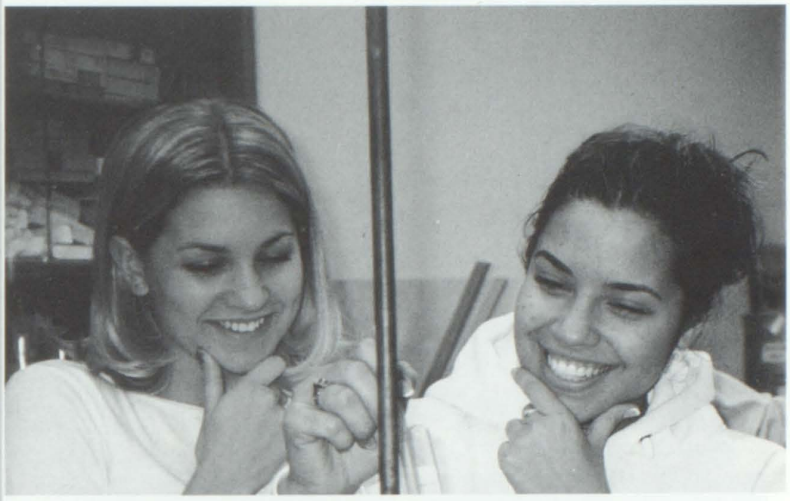
Zachary Luben dozed off onto his science book while trying to stay focused on his teacher's lecture.





Left:
Theresa Gonzalaz glanced warily at someone who was getting a little too close to her taffy project.

Below: Hmmm. . .
Allison Rawlings and Ashley Salaz found something interesting about their mixture. They examined their thermometer carefully looking for answers.



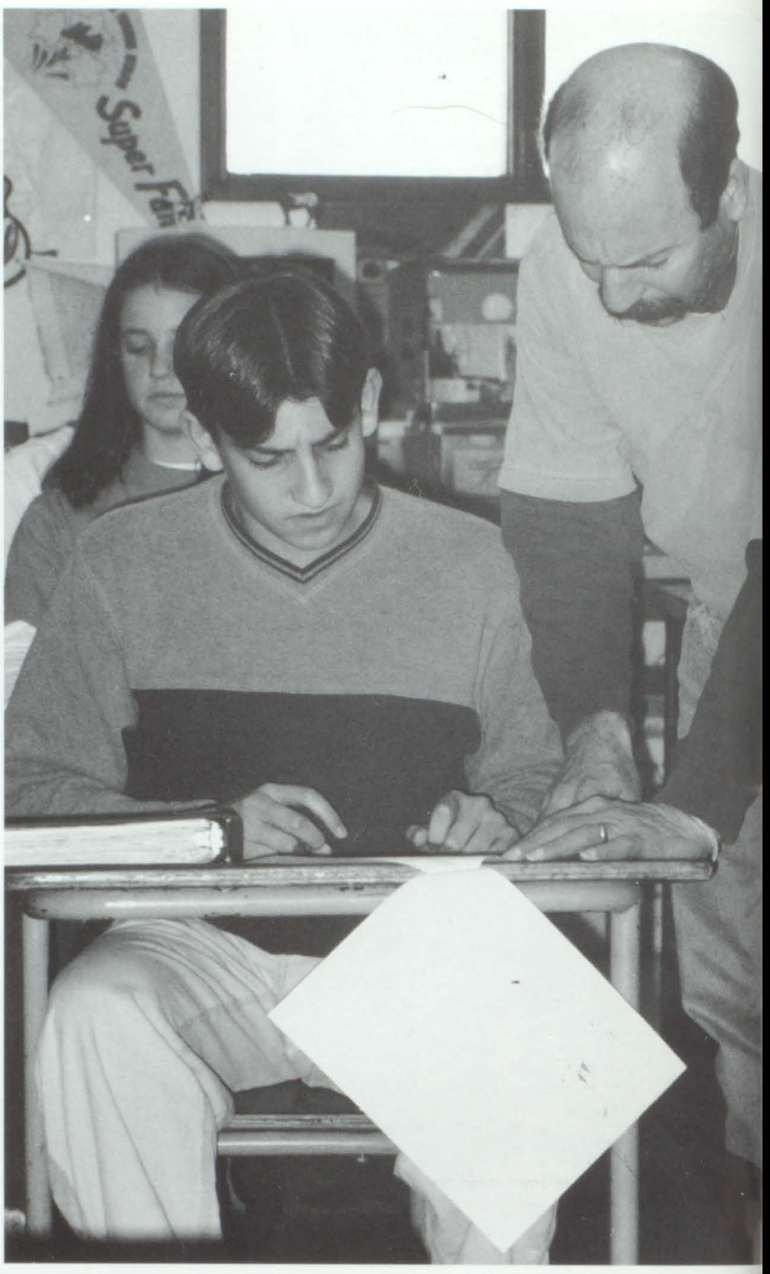
Above:
Marjan Aghashiri looked disgustedly at her sticky hands. "I think I made a mistake somewhere," she said.

Left:
Trisha Beamenderfer pondered her concoction. "Hmm. . .maybe I shouldn't have added that last drop of mystery solution."

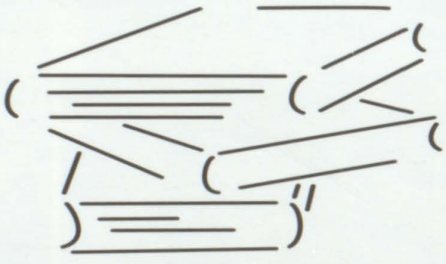
Left: Watch Out!
Katie Newray was ready with her tongs to pinch anyone who came too close to her and Nina Le's experiment.

Below: Asking a lot of questions is a great way to procrastinate. Marci Clark was actually interested in getting some answers, however. Mrs. Motta was happy to take the time to help her.

Right: Deep in thought, Mr. Perlman and Justin Patel puzzled over an assignment. Sometimes Honors English work was too tough for even the teachers to handle. Luckily, Mr. Perlman was smart enough to figure it out.

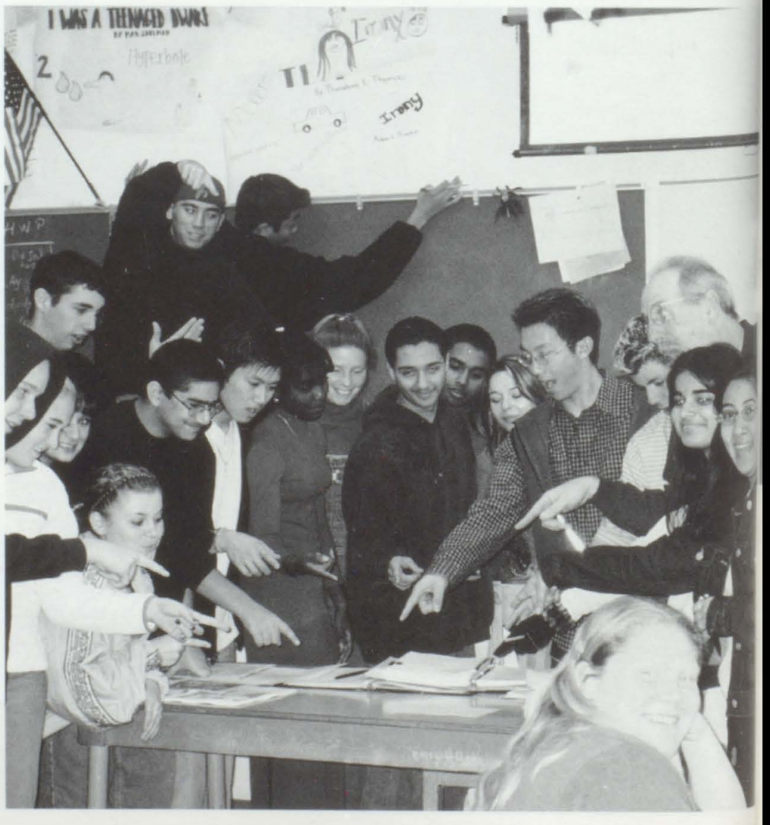


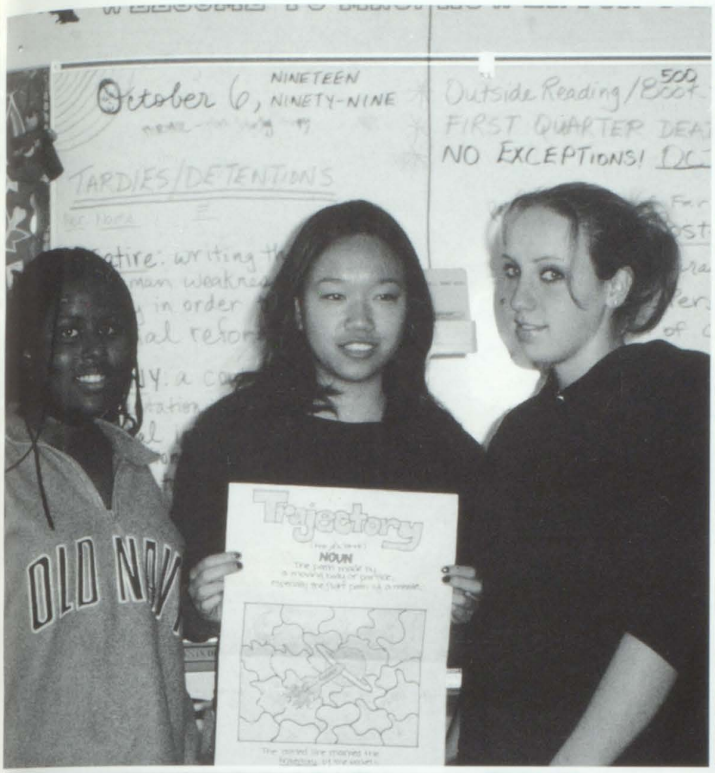
Above: "Oh, now I understand," Rishi Singh thought as he listened to a lecture on an upcoming activity. His clarity came no thanks to the fact that Janelle Leake was trying to talk to him at the same time.



Below: Six minutes left, Kevin Greene counted on his fingers while pretending to read his Elements of Literature book. The Freshman class took awhile to warm up to the finer points of literature.

Right: What happened to our grades?!? Mr. Wallach's sixth period seniors had a moment of panic when they found the grade book during one of Mr. Wallach's important lessons. Apparently, another bad pop quiz grade was more interesting than stories about Eskimos.

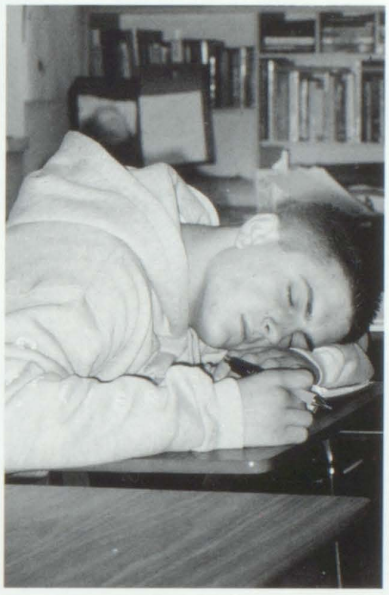


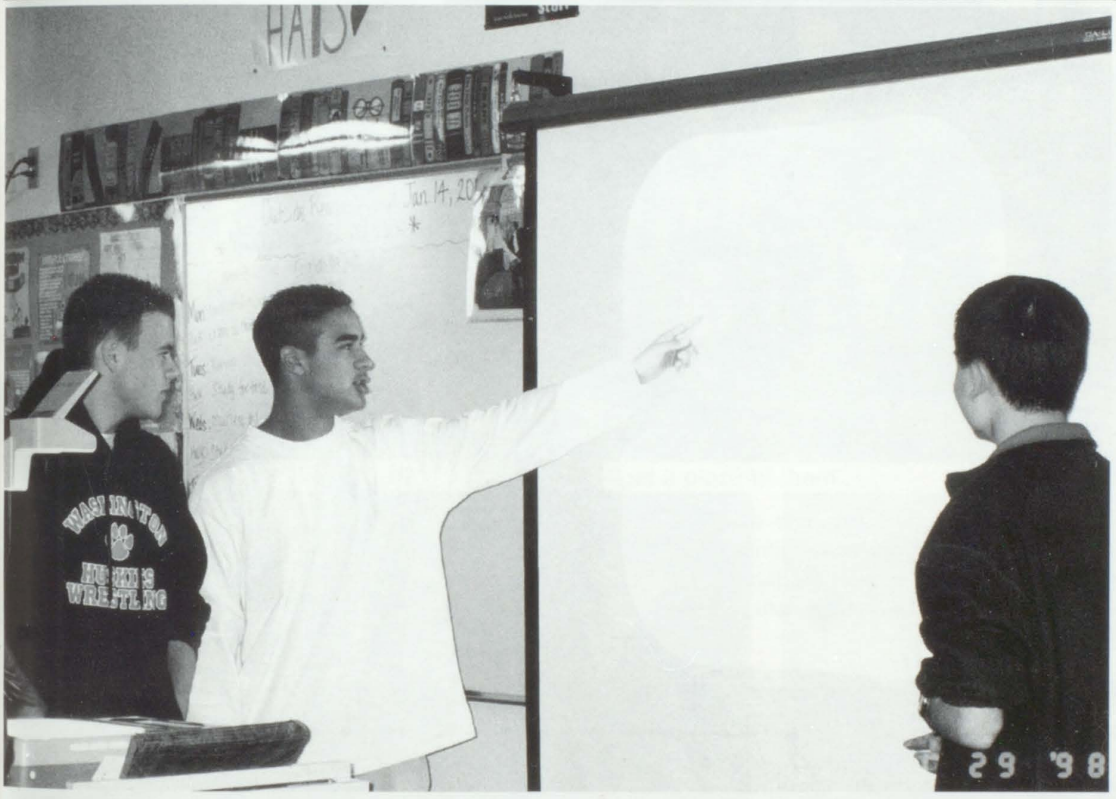


Left: Sharice Willis, Jamie Wong, and Lisa Visconti liked the more artsy side of English class. They put a lot of effort into their visual vocab to present to Mrs. Howerton's class. It paid off by having their work displayed on the wall.

Left: "I know the answer!" Matt McCormick called out during a student presentation. While he was a part of the winning group of students, the presenters failed to notice his attention-getting tactics. Was it better to give up or have a tired hand?

Below: "All of this thinking is hurting my brain!" Kenny Hamilton took a break from writing a paper to catch a nap. Mrs. Marie was thankful for the peace and quiet since it got Kenny to stop telling her how much he loved her.





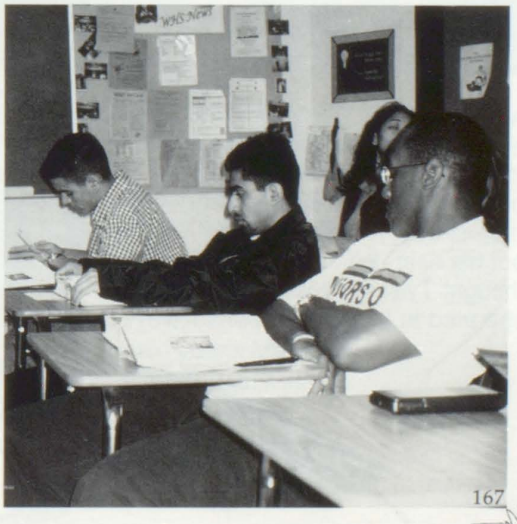
Left: Today's lesson was brought to you by the letter C, sixth period, and the overhead projection crew. Scott Martinez, Sam Mentes and Allan Cai presented an English game to their class to teach important concepts. It was too bad that they forgot their notes.

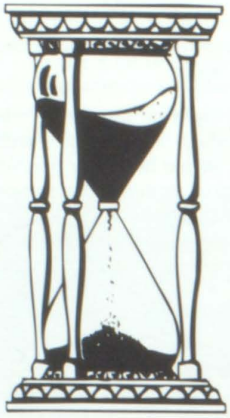
Below: Senioritis hadn't hit yet. Chad Balanza, Deven Grover, and Calvin Henderson read studiously throughout the period. While they all looked deep in thought, Chad was secretly thinking of the girls he was going to mack on at lunch.

LEARNING THE LINGO

ENGLISH CLASS GOES BEYOND SPELLING TESTS

From punctuation to prose to poetry, Washington's students spent a period every day in English, learning how to express themselves better. What made this required class more interesting than your average lecture class? Was it the visual vocab? Was it acting stories out in class? Whatever it was, teachers worked hard to add projects to the curriculum to make the work more exciting. In between reading literature and writing essays, students got to use multi-media and creativity to learn.





THE LAND BEFORE TIME...

Five score and nine years ago, our Principals brought forth on this campus a new subject, conceived in historical mistakes and dedicated to the proposition that everyone errs. Now we are engaged in the process of learning from the mistakes.

In learning about History, one can find out the major errors that people have made throughout time. The studen of Washington have also made their share of mistakes and learned from them, earning themselves a place in History.

Below: Eric Curtzweiler let everyone know that to get into the twenties theme of the Marathon dance, even his boxers were plaid!

Above: "Wait! Don't take my picture yet. How's my hair look?" Mr. Vargas asked before the picture was taken. "I can't believe he's checking out his hair! What hair!" thought Tyishea Collins while she tried to finish her report.

Right: Bay of Pigs? What kind of name is that?!?! Juniors Tammy Choi and Maria Clariza both enjoyed learning about the weird names of government operations in their U.S. History class.

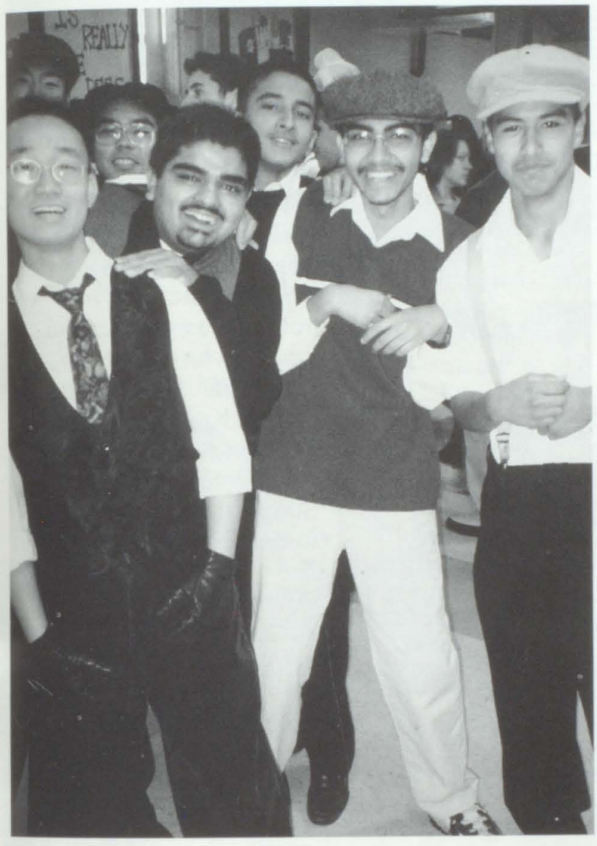
Below: Matt Close and Eddie Culin had on their serious face after their performance of Band Stand Boogie, trying to fight off the crowd that wanted their autographs. Everyone better get in line if you want to hear these two hotties again!



Left: Billy Ho, Ajay Kurani, Chris Desai, Sanket Gohil, and Edgar Arambula had a blast at the Marathon dance. These handsome guys had to fight off all the ladies that were trying to get a piece of them.

Right: These students listened intently while they learned everything they could about the government of the U.S.

Hola, Bonjour, Hallo

Huskies

French students loved the casual setting of Mrs. Kamei's classroom. They were from left to right: Christy Patten, Maria McCauley, Mary Wu, Wajma Hamsafar, Wendy Wong, Anne Shultz, and Michael Walch.

"I think Tamara Zuffi needs a hug," said Chery George as he wrapped himself around his good friend.

Mrs. Gimeno was multi-talented. She managed to speak on the phone while giving yearbook a smile, as we took her picture.

Sosan Rashid and Arzoo Haider have been friends since second grade. They always studied together and their advice for learning new Spanish vocab were: Flashcards!

Kimmi Grewal and Sarah Baig worked together for a skit. It seemed like Kimmi was a little sensitive about sharing.

Washington

Hola, Bonjour, Hallo, Nee hao--No matter which way you say it, it still means the same thing, Hello.

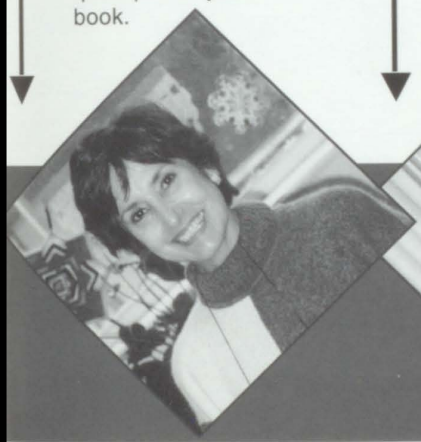
Washington High School offered students a variety of different languages. They were Spanish, French, German, and still being debated on is Mandarin.

All foreign language classes started from the first level, which most students started as Freshmen, and continued until the fifth level. Classes were more densely packed in the first three years than the more advanced fourth and fifth levels.

Students practiced their accents and speech by getting into groups and performing skits in front of the class. The skits were usually about what was being studied at that time.

Our newest foreign language was German. What's so cool about it was that after you learned the basics of the German language in about 2-3 years, you could then, as a class, vote what you wanted to study about in German. It seemed like an interesting idea and the students seemed to love it.

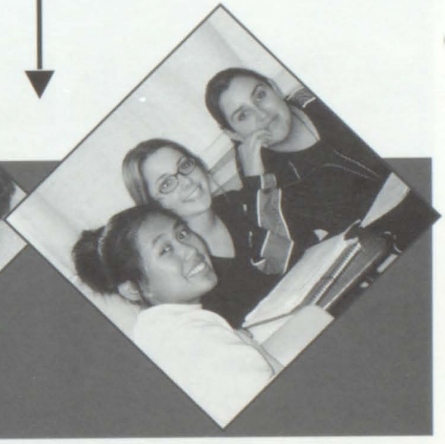
Mrs. Bottoms was pleased to take a quick pic for yearbook.



Shalini Jeyakumar couldn't help but laugh to herself as she read a funny joke during French class.

Español es un lengua muy excelente! said Mrs. Maniscalco when asked what she thought of Spanish.

Maria Clariza, Natalie Bastiao, and Mayra Montejano took a two minute break to smile for the camera.

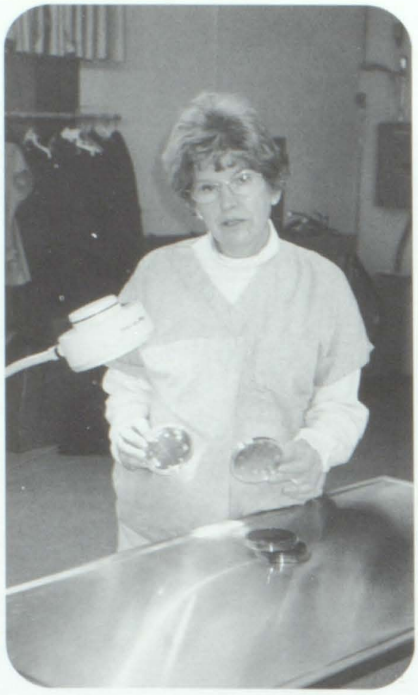


Sabeen Ali smiled proudly as she showed us her quiz result. "It's F for fantastic!" she exclaimed with delight.

Chris Kim took a moment of class time to himself, pondering the difference between irregular verbs and regular verbs.

Bhavika Vinayak had a big smile on her face as she was getting ready to go home. When asked why, she said, "To start my Spanish homework of course!"

Jake Saito was so into his text book for German class that he didn't even blink an eye when yearbook came around to take a pic of this dedicated student.



Right:
Dr. Pattengal displayed bacteria trays and explained the concept behind it. These trays were very crucial to the veterinarian.

Keisha Brister was demonstrating the duties of a medical assistant. She learned that when you weighed a baby you were supposed to fully undress the baby to get an accurate weight.

Above:
Nikki Herrera was concentrating deeply on her computer assignment. This year Nikki took Computer Technology and she learned a great deal about how computers worked.

Above:
This was a sample from the veterinarian class that showed the students that a certain antibiotic could cure the animals' diseases and illnesses. Doctors also used this method on humans.

Above:
This adorable guinea pig was an example of what types of animals the students would examine. From this they learned how to come up with good antibiotics to keep cute little pets like this alive a lot longer.

Mission Valley Regional Occupational Program (R.O.P.) was known for preparing students in the line of work they wanted to pursue. If you ever had any doubts about any profession, R.O.P was the program for you. It covered professions such as: Veterinarian, if animals were your preference; Medical Assistant, if you wanted to help save people; and Travel and Tourism, if you wanted to be a travel agent. These opportunities helped many students develop their future and go after their dreams. Without R.O.P. and the teachers dedicated to teach the classes, students would have been at a loss for direction. R.O.P. wasn't only for high school students, it was for adults who wanted to get a better grip on life. R.O.P. was a well-respected program and was well needed.

> "The piece that puts it all together. Don't leave school without it!"

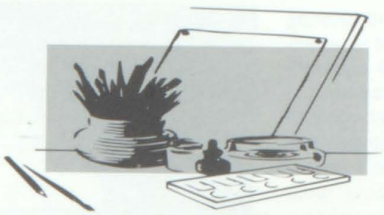
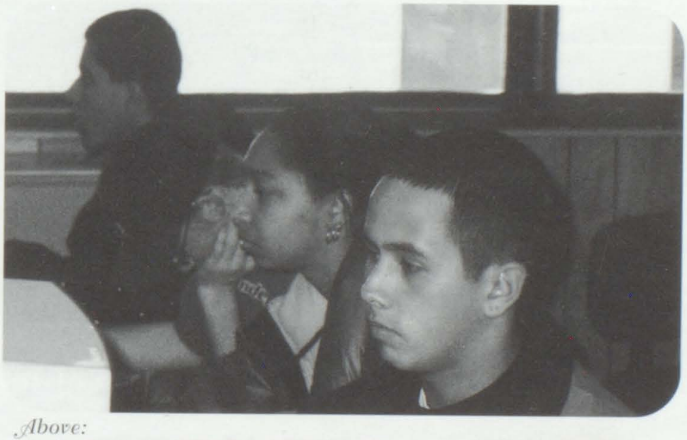
Stephanie Lamb was very interested as Mrs. DeStefano explained their next project.

Left:
Amy Litton, Brianna Telles, and Cindy Le were having a "laid-back" day in their R.O.P. veterinarian class. They even had a special visitor that day. . . Lucky.



Above:
Mrs. DeStefano enlightened her students about the best hotels that were in the Bay Area. She also taught them how to go about picking a hotel that suited their needs.

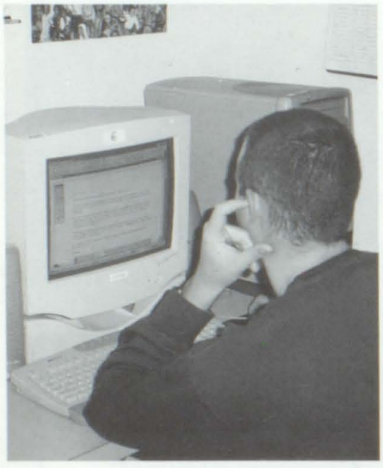
Above:
Mrs. Taufer loved her job as a mentor to her medical-bound students. She demonstrated this by showing her "dummy" how much she appreciated his help in giving demonstrations.

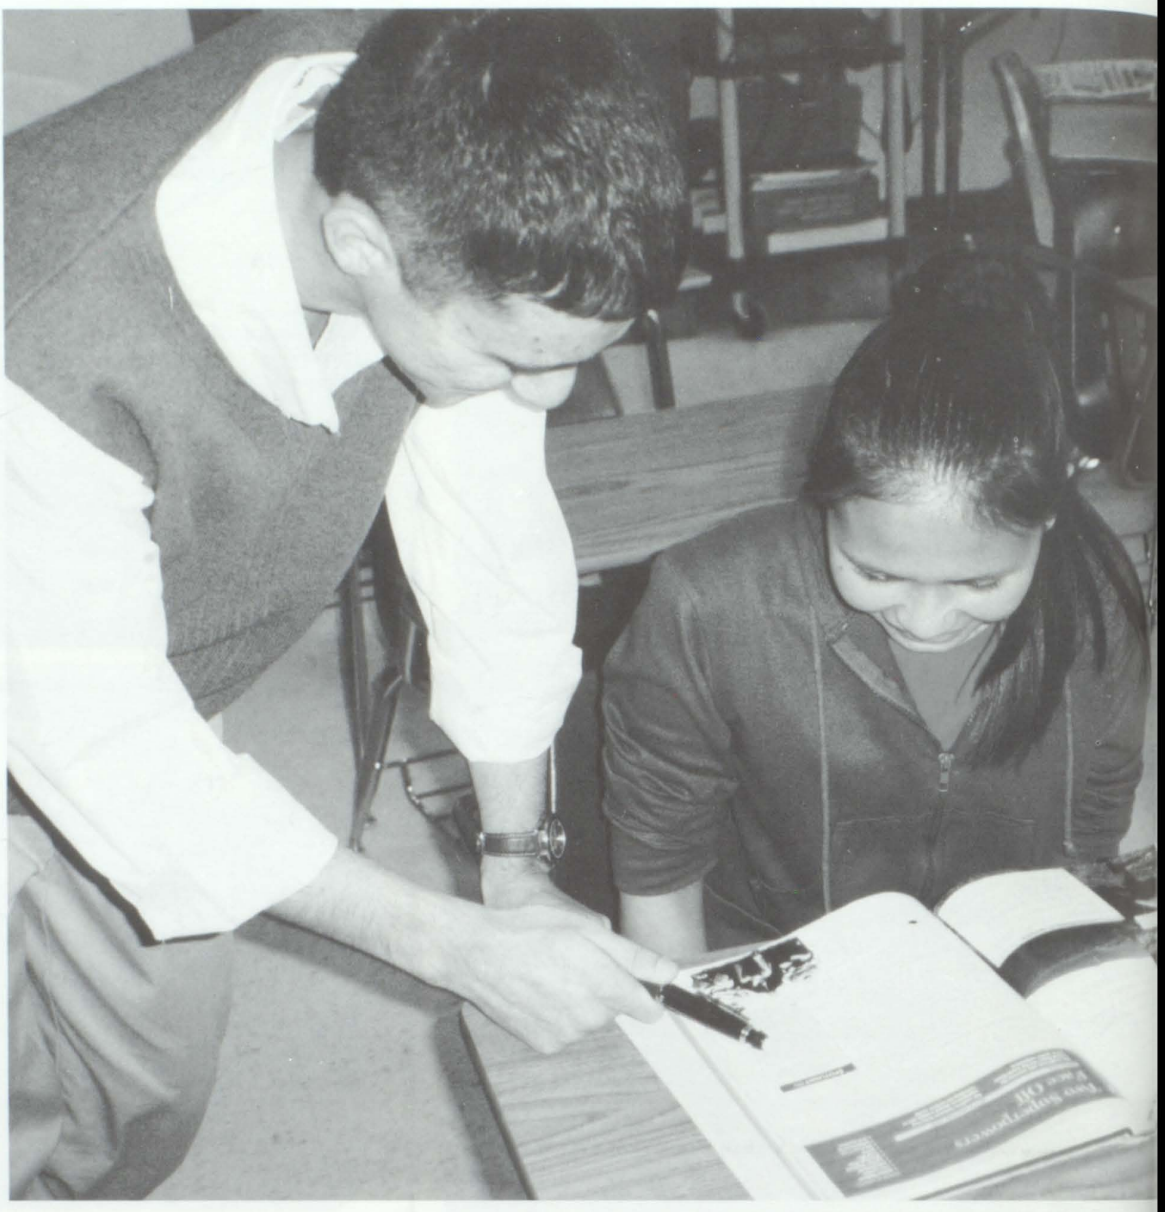


Above:
Chris Gonzales (right) attentively focused on his project that he had to complete in computer technology.

Right: Lowella Paulines ran to tutoring looking for help to understand what exactly a Superpower was and what nations they included. Marc Chiesa came to the rescue and brought out a book with charts and diagrams to help Lowella understand.

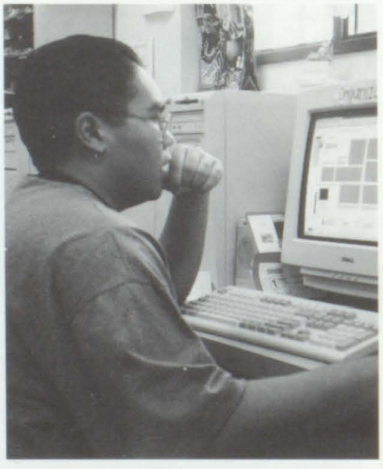
Below: Amy Mihara (front) meandered to the library at lunch to work on some homework so she woudn't be buried with a lot that night. Laura Stevenson (back) caught up on some reading and did it in the quiet confines of the library.



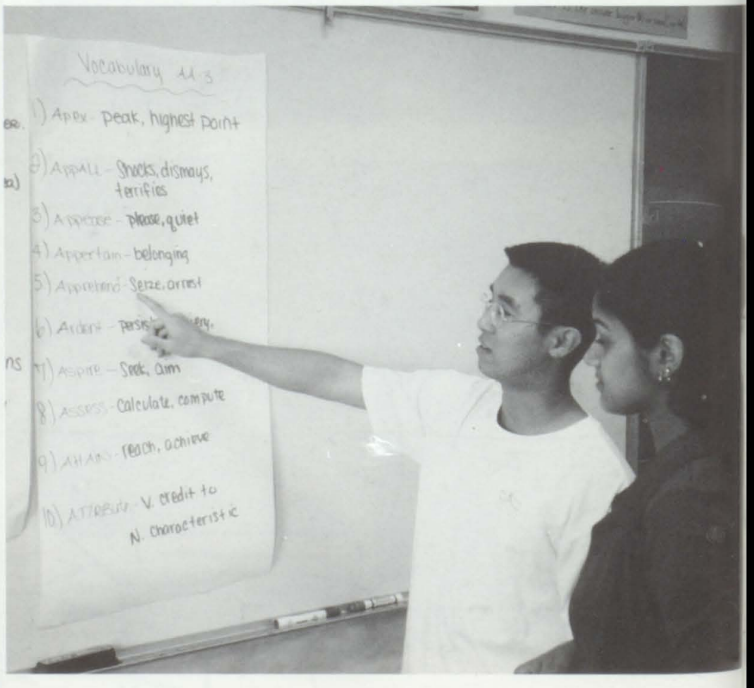


Above: Jeff Beck stared at the computer screen intensely trying to make out what the stuff on the monitor actually meant. He poked his brain with his finger hoping that he would soon come to understand the meaning of it all.

Right: Philip Ponsaran sat at the computer terminal and contemplated on what else he should do to make his yearbook page look more alive. He studied layouts from many magazines such as Time and ESPN and hopefully came up with a creative and eye-catching design.



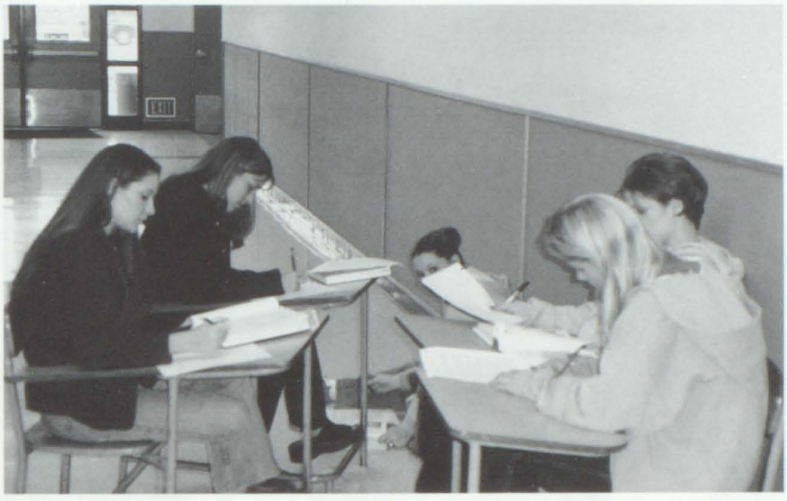
Right: Need to improve your vocab? Then go to Henry Tsai. He would teach you new words such as "copious," "verisimilitude," and "apprehend." Just ask Sheweta Kumari. She was one of his satisfied customers.



Vocabulary 11-3
1) Apex - peak, highest point
2) Appall - shocks, dismays, terrifies
3) Appease - please, quiet
4) Appertain - belonging
5) Apprehend - Seize, arrest
7) Aspire - Seek, aim
8) Assess - Calculate, compute
9) Attain - reach, achieve
10) Attribute - V. credit to
N. characteristic

Left: Just after engaging in a thundering debate, Heath Holguin and Ryan Lam turned to the Philosophy book to find out who was right. Ryan proved his point. It was Descartes and not Nietzsche that said, "I think, therefore I am."

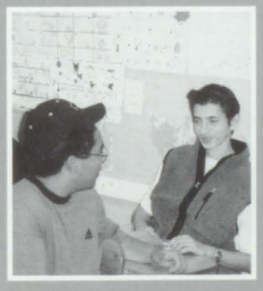
Below: Torrie Florio, Cheryl Stewart, Lindsey Thomas, Mare Baptista, and Jennifer Wiggins, sat outside of Mrs. Nelson's room and studied for their Psychology test. They felt that they could comprehend more in a quiet, group environment than in a classroom with 25 other students.



Hit Those Books

Diligent students who actually read the textbooks cover to cover

David Carlisle took advantage of the library's resources and was able to complete the ever-so challenging homework assignment in his Honors Biology class.



Philip Ponsaran and Eugene Shapiro discussed the differences between Existentialism, Relativism, and Naturalism right before their big English test.

Where would school be without the sounds of the rustling pages from students flipping through their textbooks studying at the last minute for their test next period?

Madina Mojadedi approached Mr. Jones to ask him an important question from the reading that she had the previous night. She inquired about Sociology and human interaction in nature.

Fredy Espinoza spent his lunch time in the library working on some math homework. He carefully punched the numbers into his calculator and wrote the answer on a separate sheet of paper.

For years, Washington High School has awarded seniors with outstanding achievements. The Bank of America plaques and certificates were just one way of showing the hard workers just how proud the school was of their great accomplishments. Bank of America plaques were awarded to the top student in each of the four general areas. Students who received a plaque submitted applications in order to qualify to win cash prizes for their efforts throughout school. Bank of America also financed certificates awarded to a department-head selected student in each individual academic area.

2000 Husky Awards

Each year key Washington staff members-- Skip Cain, Linda Fernandez, Carol Brahmst, and Steve Mangini-- select a group of committed students to receive the honored Husky Award. Eligible students submit applications based on their academic achievements, awards, after-school activities, and community services throughout their high school careers. Each award winner was honored on Senior Awards Night. Husky Awards were just one more incentive to get out and get involved, whether it be at school or in the community.

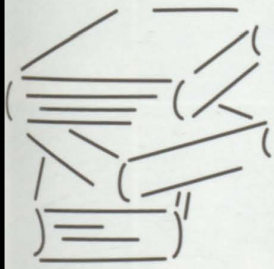
While Jessi Kaur and Marc Chiesa listened attentively to the Spanish lecture, Ambika Sopory secretly wrote notes to her friends.

Jackie Booth used the comfortable Student Center couches to finish up her homework for fifth period.

Even in her studies, Aadika Singh never forgot to smile at her friends.



Studying two hours after school everyday never bothered these dedicated decathletes, Eunji Cho and Eddie Culin.

Arzoo Haider never once missed a day of her Garfields.

Wahingtonians told us their favorite moments in school

Light bulb anyone?

How many bimbos does it take to change a light bulb?
Five. One to hold the bulb and four to rotate the ladder.

How many politicians does it take to change a light bulb?
Four.
One to change it and three to deny it.

How many 'Real Men' does it take to change a light bulb?
None. 'Real Men' aren't afraid of the dark.

How many doctors does it take to change a light bulb?
Three. One to find a bulb specialist, one to find a bulb installation specialist, and one to bill it all to Medicare.

How many Psychiatrists does it take to change a light bulb?
Zero. The light bulb will change itself when it is ready.

How many lawyers does it take to change a light bulb?
How many can you afford?

The faculty of WHS performed 'The Wizard of Oz' for their faculty skit.

Surprise! Surprise! Who knew our teachers could be so enthusiastic and frenzied! The WHS faculty performed their skit on the last day of Spirit Week, usually known as the Unity Day. The theme was the 'Wizard of Oz.' They were very creative, innovative, and very enchanting. From the 'Yellow Brick Road' to the clever explosives done by the science faculty, the teachers brought out the true spirit in their students. Students found it very fun and amusing to guess which teachers were behind the costumes. The costumes, performances, and overall, the whole scenario took a lot of effort, and our faculty did a great job at it. The whole play was about Hank and Hannah (our mascots, played by Ms. DiBianca, and Mrs. Shug) trying to get back the Husky spirit, and make their way to Oz. There they ran into many people. Some of the other main characters were the Tinman (Ms. Reynolds), the Lion (Mrs. Bynarowicz), and the Scarecrow (Ms. Pavlecic) who helped Hank and Hannah find the WHS spirit. Of course, they had to go through a lot of conflicts along the way. Other interesting roles were done by Ms. Porter who played the wicked witch of Oz. Our principal Mrs. Duran also took part in the play. The 'Munchkins' were played by several teachers. Mrs. McIntosh played the fairy and other teachers were part of the forest, which took a lot of creativity. Overall, the teachers did an outstanding job on the skit and they made the last day of Spirit Week very memorable.

Above: Ms. Reynolds wiped off her sweat on her forehead while she jollied along with her friends, the cowardly lion, the scarecrow, and Hanna to save the Husky Spirit.

Above: The forest came alive during the skit. It showed how original and creative the faculty was during the skit. The flora bloomed overnight after Mr. Mangini seeded the gym.

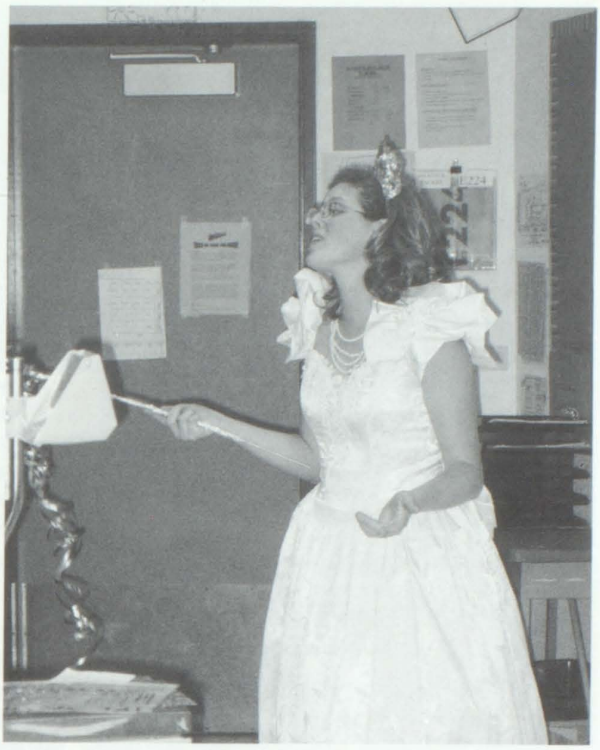
Above: "We need to get the spirit back to WHS and we need your help, Wizard!" exclaimed Hanna (Mrs. Shug) to the Wizard played by principal Mrs. Duran.



Above: "Bibbidy Bobbity Boo!" said the enchanting fairy, Mrs. McIntosh, as she waved her magic wand and she granted her students their wishes.

Above: "We're off to see the wizard, the lovely wizard of Oz. . . !" sang a few of our fellow faculty members, the Scarecrow, Hanna the mascot, the Lion, and the Tinman trying to get back the Husky Spirit.

and the crowd goes WILD !!!!!!!!!

Left: Mrs. Salzmann and Mrs. Howerton tried to relieve stress after a hectic spirit week. Mrs. Salzmann played a munchkin in the faculty skit, while Mrs. Howerton just watched.

Around the World. . .

Take a look at different traditions and festivals celebrated by many of our fellow students!

While walking down the hallways, and going to our classes, we felt proud and happy about the diversity found in our school. Students from all around the world came and studied at Washington High. Also, many of us celebrate myriad number of festivals, and have a lot of family traditions. Some of us decorated our houses with Christmas trees, and colorful lights, while the others fasted, or visited the holy places, such as temples, mosques, or churches. Festivals are a time of happiness, and overall, we celebrated with our family, friends and other loved ones. Ramadan, Diwali, Hanukkah, Halloween, Christmas, Thanksgiving are only a few of the festivals celebrated by our fellow students. The pictures show that many of them had a lot of fun during their festivals and celebrated them in their own unique ways. Take a look at them and learn about the wonderful festivals celebrated by many of the Washingtonians.

Right: Junior Tasmeem Zainuddin (right) went to all the way to India to attend her sister's wedding. They both wore posh Indian dresses usually worn during marriages and other important ceremonies.

Above: Gabe Pacheco, Stephanie Brown, Frank Martinez and Kristin Tuers had fun in the summer by attending the Fremont Arts and Wine Festival of 1999.

Right: "What better way to show off your presents than wearing them!" thought Liz Civiletti who wore the glove clips which she got for Christmas. The photo was donated to the Yearbook by Rachel Richardson.

Left: "Ho! Ho! Ho!" bellowed senior John Dattke, dressed as Santa Claus, while he was granting Mary Antenor-Cruz's wishes on Christmas Day.

Below: Senior Rajni Bhardwaj was wearing a traditional Indian dress. Her family was celebrating "Diwali," which is also known as the "Festival of Lights." The festival is very important to all Hindus across the world, who celebrate the festival by fireworks, and by lighting up their houses with lights and candles.

Left: A few Burmese students of WHS, May Soe, Jane Ong, Nway Win, Yin May, Nwe-Lay Chu, and Wendy Soe (May Soe's younger sister), celebrated the Burmese New Year at Lake Elizabeth. The festival is celebrated in April, and the New Year is also called the "Water Festival," where you throw water on each other. The significance of this is to start fresh and clean for the New Year.

Above: "Happy Halloween!" exclaimed seniors David Dominguez and Kristen Hiller while they posed for the picture. They celebrated Halloween by dressing up in fancy costumes and had a great time at Kristen Hiller's party.

Above: Carol Freire, who was eight when this picture was taken, was with her mom, and was celebrating the June Festival which took place in Brazil. The celebration is for St. Peters, St. John, and St. Anthony. She was starting a bonfire. Other celebrations and activities on this day included partying, wearing colorful dresses, and eating delicious food.

CLASS OF 2000

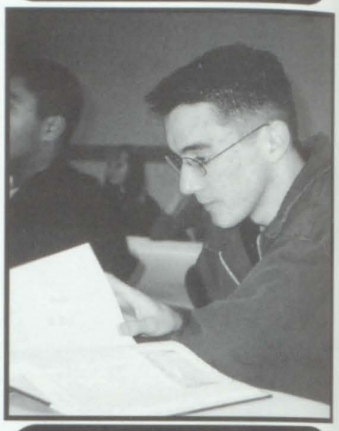
Kendra Waters & Davina Hooker

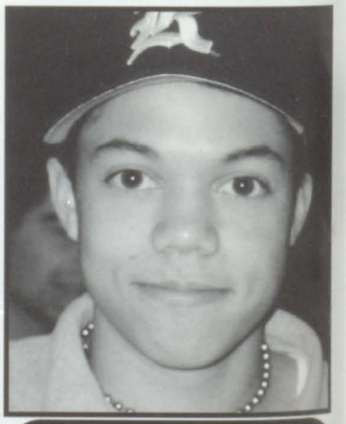


Marc Chiesa

Abe Park

Right: Chrissy Lemmon and Andy Smythe looked at their lead singer for the cue to start pumping out their music.

Far right: Who Knew! Richard Watson had great vocal talents. His band's version of "Video Killed the Radio Star" turned out to be a big hit.



Myles Madlock

It was seven-thirty on a Wednesday morning. Everyone rushed from their cars to get out of the light sprinkle that was falling from the grey sky. The Class of 2000 was ready to eat!

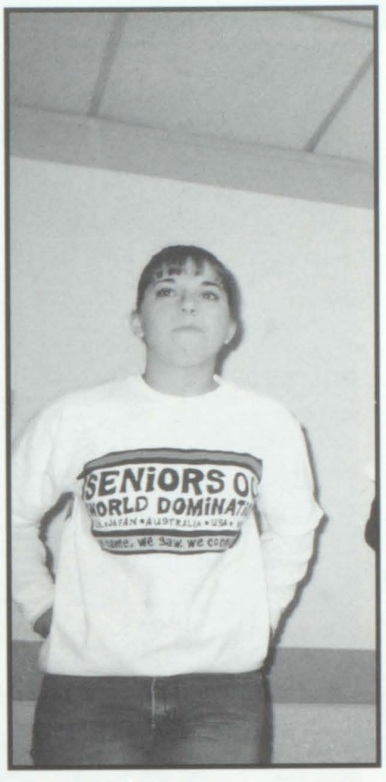
It started off with a buffet line around a few large tables. The food consisted of muffins, doughnuts, breakfast burritos, a wide variety of personal-sized cereal boxes, fruit, milk, apple juice, sausage, and ham. The tables were loaded, full of people and food.

The first act to take the stage was the boy band singing "Because of You" by 98 Degrees which the crowd really enjoyed. Next up the improv team performed along with Comedy Sports. There was also a band who sang the first video ever to be played on MTV, "Video Killed the Radio Star."

Inbetween acts, our hosts announced the long awaited results of the senior favorites.

Class Of 2000

Left: This table obviously got their grub on. "It looks like it's about time for nap, huh guys?"



Left: M.C.'s Jessica Moore (pictured), Chrissy Lemmon, Nanyamka Scott, and Stephanie O'Neil took great pride in announcing the senior favorites. They kept everyone's attention by using extra long pauses before revealing them.

Below: Myles Madlock, Tonya Glanz, Ryan Hammond, Nick Noard, and Matt Close had everyone in tears. Their performance was so hilarious that people actually got six-packs from laughing so hard.

Left: Nick Noard, Sabeen Ali, Myles Madlock, and Matt Close performed some improv sketches which sent the crowd roaring.

Left (clockwise from left): Eddie Culin, Samir Pathak, Marc Chiesa, Desmond Cheung, and Henry Tsai sang their pretty little hearts out with the song "Because of You." They were so good that some girls were in tears and were trying desperately to get near the stage.

..WE BE GRUBBIN'

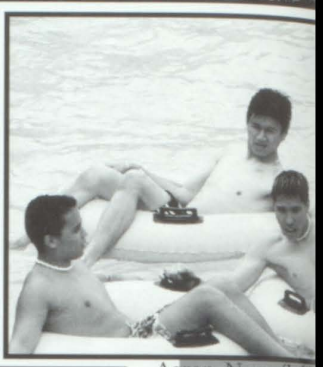
From left to right: Chad Balanza, Trevor DeBenning, Jeremiah Pricer.
Let me in! Let me in! Trevor DeBenning couldn't contain his excitement to hit the dangerous waters of the Half Pipe.

Chrissy Lemmon, Annie Terry, Jessica Moore, and Stephanie O'Neil modeled the season's latest bathing suits with style and charisma.



Aaron Nuss (left) and Desmond Cheung (center) stared in confusion as Eddie Culin tried to balance himself by holding onto Aaron's float in the Lazy River.

Sarra Reid was enraptured by the appearance of the sun as the lightning ceased.

Peter McClure and Meghan Boundy made it safely off the "Thunder" waterslide before ironically being evacuated from the water because of thunder.

Once upon a time, the senior class took a break from their studies to enjoy a day in the sun on Sept. 22, 1999. They arrived at Water World in Concord, anxious to hit the slides. The rain forced them to find shelter, but their spirits remained high. When the clouds cleared, the seniors rejoiced and the day was saved. They lived happily ever after... until they had to get back on the buses.

Picnic

The rain can't hold us down! Josh Haffer and William Hadfield found other ways of enjoyment outside of the water.

The sun was always shining in Liz Schechter's eyes as she enjoyed a peaceful and relaxing ride down the Lazy River.

Michael Wehner and Rebecca Garabedian shared a private moment before leaving the park at three o'clock to return to school.

It's been four long, challenging years. In that small amount of time however, the class of 2000 has grown, matured, rallied, and celebrated together. From Freshman orientation to graduation day, our class has worked together to shape a unique personality as a class. In between we saw construction, football games, dances, and midterms. We enjoyed many victories and mourned our losses. Now that the time has come to leave high school behind, we realize that during the whole time we were fighting to win the Spirit, we had it in us all along. There's no doubt about it, we've come a long way. The class of the millennium: that says it all.

Congratulations!

Hi everyone! Although high school is over for me, the memories will never be lost. There are some people I've gone to school with since elementary school, and to those- we've been stuck with each other for way too long!!! There's only about 20 of us that went through Glenmore, Centerville, and Washington as Seniors now together. Nelson, Zach, Liz, Lindsey, Nicole, Jenni, Gabby, Abe, Cassy, Paul, Ryan, and anyone else I didn't mention cuz I know there are more-we're the Original Glenmore Crew! I want to reminisce about my first few years of soccer till now. There was Kristi, Sara, and Becky on the Foot Stompers; Kelly, Amanda, Emily, Jevona, and Jessica on the Blue Bullets; and April and Heidi on Express. Remember CYO basketball (JM & KK)? Xena- I love TENNIS! KS & LF- BINGO! Gurr-E-ella! KK...carpool from 7th through 10th. CT-sneaking out to go to church?! CB-close since 9th grade. TB- Do I have any split ends? CH-What's your favourite color? CC- I feel like I got big knockas! Crayola-let's get stuck in a playground at 3AM while the sprinklers are on. VLF-thanks for the 200 TP rolls Summer '98. LK- I don't feel like practicing... let's go get icecream. Hi Nikki! JS- They stole your ashtray!!! Arual Kcabenil! TT-DIMPLES! TZ-5's ABC's. JB-Lab parties at the estate. Hi Bri!!! I love you. V-Girls Soccer-KA! Go Nads & Piece of $#!% ! Nick-14 & 375 637. Burger King makes their food way too hot! Good luck everyone! MIA

Whew! Like they say, time flies when you're having fun-and it's been a blast! Thanks to all who made it worthwile for me. Mom&Justin- ALWAYS there for me. Megs-my best friend(lots of lesb. pictures to prove!); Steph, Nay, Chrissy- we made senior yr rock! Ambika-my inspiration/competition; Christine-my Felicity co-watcher; Corinne-my soccer buddy(goodtimes, noodlesalad); Val-my hairdresser; Jessie-always had a smile 4 me; Erin-my GHA co-founder; Jeff-my moving guy(smellslikebutt!); Annie-my first CJH pal; & Ryan, Paul-taught me more about myself than anyone. I've done it all with you guys: parties, study groups, sleepovers, movie nights, SuperBowl fiestas, all-nighters, t.p. runs, slurpee runs, basketball games, dates, dances, dinners, bouncin', clubs (GHA), camp-outs, and too many other things. I love you all so much! I'm in eternal debt for all the love, laughter, & lessons you have given me. Best of luck in the future.

Love, Jessica.

It takes a lot of understanding, time and trust to gain a close friendship with someone. Friendships have come and gone throughout our high school years, but ours has always remained. Some people come into our lives and quickly go. Some stay for a while and leave footprints on our hearts, and we are never, ever the same. For us, we are those people.

Melissa Marie and Gina Ariel.

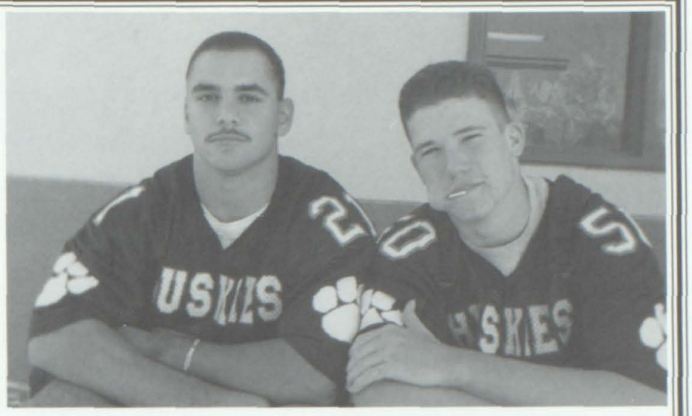
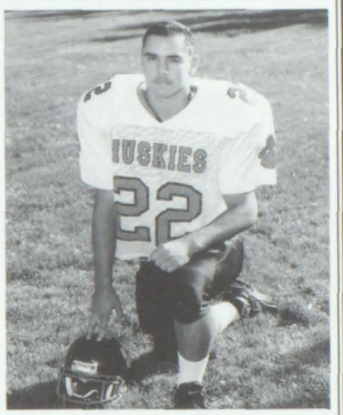
Becky & Sarah

For all the bad times in high school, friends make up for it all. The guys helped too.
To our friends, Heidi G. and Lara K. - Just be real. We love you Jenny McLain!

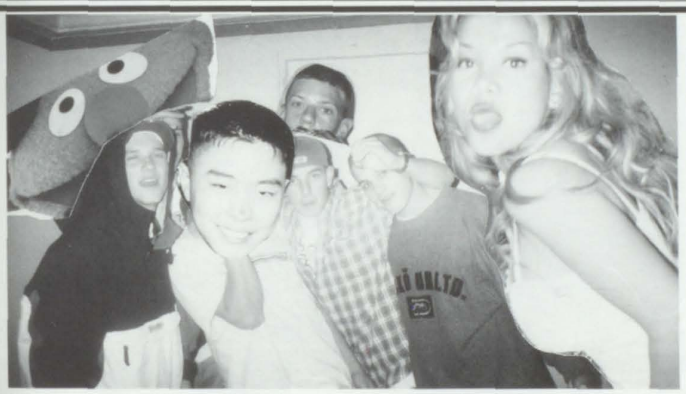
Johnny Parra



To all that have been there for me, you guys are the best. Thank you 412. You know what's up. Maressa & Stephanie K. don't think I'll forget all of the things you've done for me. Erin, who thought we would be parlaying together when I first met U exactly 10 years ago when I started football and U were cheering for me. Lisa M. I remember I used to consider you my little sister & I still do to this day, take care and keep your head up. To all of the D.S.G. you girls know what's poppin. Late nite creepin at Anthony's house. Parlay, Parlay... All day, All day...And to my boy Phil my best advice to you is to stay out of the Washington Bull?#!t next year because it's not worth it. I can't forget you Liz who always protects me from all of those Gold digging Girls and scandless 855 4035. If it wasn't for you always making me feel guilty I'dprobably have slept with the whole damn school. My 2 Niles boyz Reag and Logan, what's up with the 01281715 ? Lil' No, remember 1st grade slaggin Rabbit feet, 4th grade Rodney King beatings on Johnny; 6th grade "Kevin, that's going to stunt your growth" Look at us now. " Let's kick it w/ the other girls" " no, how about the airheads?" "Forget it let's just get faded!" Mellissa, it was fun during the summer...going to the movies and giving me and my friends a private lap dance w/ your 2 friends. Andria, well...what can I say? It's been an experience. Too bad things didn't work out. I wish you the best in the future. David J. and Ryan H. "where the ladies at?!" 911615 4012535. R.I.P. Face 3 And to anyone who I forgot to mention... I'm sorry but keep in touch w/me through out the years. And my best advice to the soon to be seniors is to stay out of the high school drama the way I did, come and go knowing that you left school on good terms w/ everybody.



I'm out #21



In 96 I was Just a kid and I'm the same one, as a freshman I had heads and I'll name some: My boy Lowden, wild cypher sessions we learned our lessons, 9-buds deep 5.0 no time to creep. Fat Boy sitten on blunts and all the ugly moves, Soups in the kitchen analyzing till it's smooth. Surprise fools with C.E.M. significance, always squeezing safe in all predicaments. My girl Nikki walked by in a hurry , I looked twice and thought that it was very blurry. I felt that it was getting darker ... until I seized the moment and then I finally caught her. Erin Yo I'm hiden in the bathroom, try to stop me,pounding Russia's finest like Balboa first name Rocky. As I bounce not provoken accept reverse appreciation of my token, of ill mic caressings, I give praise to all of my recent Buddah blessings. But still no fakes around every person, every block realize you're fake but to me it's no shock. Easy come easy go to my Friend brotha Beau. But a A-40 A.G. can you swoop me? Pops is trippin looken like he'll shoot me. Legends shows, Alkaholiks,and Scientifics, the best at the Phoenix shoutin for Hieroglyphics. SRC ah man not again, Ms. Motta I ain't high I'm just good when I pretend. Under the influence heck nah you seein things, nice to attendance clerks, always, by bringin things. Hey young bucks all it takes is a little charm, mind over matter and no need for alarm.

To all of my little gurlz
This year flew by w/ a quickness- whut can I say?!
My luvlie dawlz kept my smile fresh w/ every new day.
How about dinner at Chili's- table for 4!!
Then grab a construction sign 2 even up the score.
Thank goodness for Pac-Bel & the 3-way call,
Not to mention stress relieving mid-day trips 2 the mall.
Superficial 8176435 always climb up in the mix,
Little do they know that up the sleeve there's always new trix.
While U got me rollen... I can't 4get-- Trick Puh-Leez!
Oh, goodie! It's friday nite, grab some juice & hand Sarra the keyz.
Gimme a moment 4 this small break,
It's another "Gurlz Nite Out" & Leesha made cake.
Lily's over there loungen intently on 1 of the guyz,
While Nikki sits w/ a devilish grin- mind at work on our infamous lies.
Night's w/ Lost Boyz quickly lost spark,
But none the less we endured,2 see our Lyssa & keep her outta the dark.
Let's crash at my place, the nights will last longer,
But driving past an un tee-pee'd house makes fury grow stronger.
Bust out Snoop Dawg & crank th 5417 loud,
It matters not if BLONDE'S spitten rap tends 2 draw crowds.
Let's roll 2 Santa Cruz 4 a "PUMA"- filled day,
& swear 2 our mom's we thought it wuz the right freeway.
Bundles of laughs & drama out the door,
But it's all left in Happie thoughts---- who could ask 4 more?!

Watch where U shuv those pencils,Ladiez.
Don't 4get that 1 time in the New Building, Lil.
No hard feelings 2 all of my EX- Prince Charmings so K.I.T.
DAWLZ 4ever...else it AIN'T NO FUN.
Cluelessly yours,
A Wandering

To My Darling Daughter Patrice Caryn

You have been the greatest challenge of my life...
You have taught me so much...
patience, love, laughter...
How to rise to each challenge...
You have never backed down from each challenge... on ice, snow or sibling rivalry.
You have followed your own path & got there first.
Your capacity for love & empathy is over whelming... for children, animals and even your mother.
And now you begin your next challenge... to adulthood.

Keep following your path...
your strength and compassion will take you far.

I'm very proud of all that you are... and will be!!!!

CONGRATULATIONS ON YOUR SURVIVAL!!!!
You have much to be proud of.
Love,

MOM
